A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It seems that life today is so fast paced that sometimes it is difficult to find enough time to plan everything out in advance. Yet most people feel better if they know that have tried to put things in order.

We know that the thought of one's own death is hard enough in itself! We also know that there is an uneasiness of not knowing how to go about pre-planning one's own funeral as so many are doing today ...

"Why are they doing this!," one might ask. Our answer to this is .... Prearranging your funeral is good planning as well as considerate to your family. By recording your wishes regarding the service now, you provide a guide for those you love to follow later at a very difficult time in their lives. It provides your family with a peace of mind in knowing that everything is being done as you wanted it .... We at the Deware Funeral Home feel you should first discuss your funeral preferences with your family and find out their thoughts. Then come and discuss it with us. We will answer all questions, have all necessary literature available and we will be glad to take you through the selection process and we will provide you with the necessary forms. This, of course, is at no cost or obligation.

And, if you wish, we are available to answer all questions concerning pre-payment plans. Yes, pre-arranged funeral planning is good planning ... Why not call us or stop by today ... We welcome such visits and calls ...

Self-Service Stations, Smoking, Property Ordinances To Be Redrafted

Three proposals by Mayor Francis McCauley regarding self service gas stations, smoking regulations in eating establishments and cleaning up property will be redrafted before they are put to a vote, said Ordinance Committee chairman Michael Cheney Monday night.

The proposal to allow a percentage of gas stations in Quincy to offer self service will be rewritten to include a state law regarding access for the handicapped, Cheney said.

The ordinance proposal regarding regulation of smoke in eating establishments is being redrafted, said Cheney, by the city solicitor with the cooperation of Councillor Timothy Cahill, a restaurant owner, and the health commissioner.

The measure regarding cleanup of property will remain in committee until questions such as who will enforce the law and whether first warnings will be given are addressed.

"That's what a council's function is," said McCauley. "It's to review proposals and possibly make changes."

HONORED -- Atty. Richard W. Barry (right) of Quincy, is presented a plaque naming him a life member of the Fellows of the Massachusetts Bar Foundation by foundation president, Raymond Kenney. The bar foundation is a charitable organization that finances legal research, makes loans and grants to law students, and helps support legal services of the poor. Barry was named a life member for his "outstanding dedication" to the welfare of the community and to the foundation.

Tax Bills In Mail By March 30

The city hopes to have second half property tax bills in the mail by March 30, now that the City Council has adopted the mayor's plan of classification presented at Monday night's meeting.

The bills will be due 30 days after they are mailed.

The plan sets the residential tax rate at $12.22 per thousand dollars of assessed.

The average single family homeowner with a house the tax rate for commercial, industrial and personal property (CIPP) will be $22.41 per thousand dollars of assessed value, up $1.42 from last year's $20.99.

valued at $117,000 will pay a total of $1,430, $98 more than last year, said Mayor Francis McCauley during the 15-minute presentation.

The mayor noted that speedy action by the council would mean that the city will not have to borrow money for the first time in his administration.

Later in the meeting, the classification plan was unanimously approved by the council without discussion.

"It's the lowest rate we could give to residential homeowners," said Councillor at Large Stephen McGrath, who acted as council president in the absence of Councillor Patricia Toland.

"There really was no alternative unless we wanted to tax residential owners at a higher rate.

"I think the councillors understood the whole process," he said.

The mayor said he appreciated the quick action of the council.

He said that members of the assessor's office took the city's recap sheet, which includes revenues, disbursements and the classification plan, to the Department of Revenue in Boston Tuesday for its approval.

Once that is given, the processing of bills can begin, he said.

Estimated first half property tax bills were sent out last spring.

Nursing Home Employees Threaten To Strike

About 60 employees of the Robbin House Convalescent Home, 205 Elm St., Quincy, voted last week to go on strike March 18 if a settlement is not reached before then.

Nursing home officials had no comment Tuesday.

The number one issue is a pension plan, according to Gregory Spear, organizer of District 1199, New England Healthcare Employees Union.

Wages are also an issue, according to Spear.

"Workers are paid $5.45 an hour to start," he said.

There is also understaffing, according to Spear.

About 35 employees picketed in front of the Robbin House Friday, he said.

"The nursing home workers have spent up to 22 years providing dignity to elderly citizens," said Spear.

"Yet when they get older, they won't have dignity themselves because they will have no pension plan," he said.

Richard Sweeney, Re-elected Cemetery Board Chairman

Richard J. Sweeney, Jr. of 41 Alton Rd., South Quincy, director and treasurer of Sweeney Brothers Home For Funerals, has been unanimously elected chairman for the third straight year of the Board of Managers, Public Burial Places in Quincy.

A member of the board since 1979, Sweeney was first elected chairman March 6, 1986. He is past president of the Kiwanis of Quincy and current vice president of the Kiwanis Foundation of New England. Sweeney is a member and past director of the Massachusetts Funeral Directors Association.

Peter P. Gaeieia of 20 Stanley Circle, Quincy Center, a member of the board since 1973, was elected vice chairman while Robert J. LaFleur of 43 Curtis Ave., Quincy Point, who was appointed by Mayor Francis X. McCauley in July 1987 to the position of Graves Registration Officer, was elected secretary.

McCauley Proclaims Red Cross Month

Quincy resident Helen Shea, immediate Past-Chairman of South Shore Red Cross Board of Directors, explained "Each year, hundreds of South Shore people, not unlike thousands of Americans, turn to the Red Cross following disasters involving fires or flood, for classes in First Aid, CPR and Water Safety, and for facts about AIDS.

"The Red Cross provides blood and biomedical products and delivers services to members of the armed forces and veterans," she said.

Mrs. Shea concluded, "The American Red Cross responds every time! For 125 years, the Red Cross movement has instilled a spirit of hope in people around the world. March is Red Cross month and a great time for our neighbors to support Red Cross in their hometown."

"Here in the South Shore," said Robert J. Quinn, volunteer chairman of the South Shore Region of the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay and Senior Vice President of the South Shore Bank, "we receive some of the funds for Red Cross operations through the United Way drive.

"To ensure support for Red Cross services, our volunteers and staff are approaching Red Cross Month with a four-pronged campaign-- to thank people for supporting the Red Cross through their United Way gift, to inform them about Red Cross services, to recruit additional volunteers and to solicit new contributing members to the Red Cross family in the South Shore," Quinn said.

Richard Koch, Sr. Honored Posthum

Robert Bosworth of The Sun staff presented a framed copy of a special Quincy Sun Page One to Thomas Koch, son of the honoree and who is now executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging and Quincy Youth Commission.

Extra copies were presented to those attending.

The proceedings were videotaped by The Sun. Excerpts were shown on Sun Ch. 26 Monday and Tuesday. A videotape copy of the entire program will be presented to the Koch family later.

Mayor McCauley, a long-time friend of Mr. Koch told of the working relationship.

"I first got to know Dick Koch back in 1963 when I was first elected to the City Council. At that time, Dick was executive director for the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

"At the time I was elected Mayor, Dick was the head of the Park, Recreation and Forestry Department. A year and a half later, we ran into some serious problems not in his department but in the cemetery department.

"Things were going down hill," McCauley said. "In 1982 it got so bad that work wasn't getting done there and you couldn't see the tombstones from the grass.

"Dick helped us out that year because he sent over some of his people on an overtime basis to get the place straightened out.

"Early in 1983, knowing this couldn't continue and knowing that it had to be straightened out because the cemetery is very sensitive, I called Dick into my office. We had conceived a plan to take the Cemetery Department which was overseen by the Cemetery Board, similar to the Park and Recreation Board, and to in effect, keep the board but bring the Cemetery Department under the control of Dick Koch."

"What it meant was doubling his responsibility. He already had a massive job in taking care of the parks and the playgrounds and the beaches of our city.

"I well recall that conversation," McCauley said. "It was probably about five years ago, in the spring of 1983, and when I got done telling him what I wanted him to do, he had already drafted legislation which was typical of Dick and he said, 'Well, if you think I can be of help, Mayor, certainly I'll be glad to do it.'

"He never once asked 'What's in it for me. I'm getting a double responsibility, what's going to happen to the pay check.' Never asked it. Never asked for that," McCauley said.

CITY COUNCILLOR James Sheets, Joseph Burke, member of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board; Remo DeNicola, Assistant City Clerk Thomas Burke, Mrs. Marilyn Brooks of the Park Department staff, Raymond Cattaneo, executive director Park-Recreation-Cemetery Departments and David Donaghue of the Koch Club.

CITY COUNCILLOR Tim Cahill, School Committeeman Steve Durkin, School Committee Vice Chairwoman Mary Collins, who was a selection judge; Mrs. Charlotte Digiacomo, chairman of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board; City Recreation Director Barry Welch, former Councillor John Lydon and Councillor Lawrence Chretien.

"But he took that department and the results were dramatic. Nineteen eighty-three was extremely much better than 1982 and it continued on. Dick had a knack for getting the most out of people and he got it from being a very quiet person.

"I don't think in all the years I knew him he ever raised his voice. He never yelled at anyone, he never hollered. He didn't have to do that. He had an awful lot of respect. He understood what was going on and certainly the job he did for the city of Quincy, and for me in particular as mayor, will never be forgotten by me because it certainly was something that is appreciated.

"Now instead of a stack of complaints, we frequently get calls and letters saying 'I've never seen the cemetery as good.' Each year it seems to get better.

"And so Dick Koch did an awful lot of good," the mayor said.

McCauley also praised the Koch Club which Koch founded 40 years ago for helping "young people enormously."

"I think it's a great tribute to Dick Koch that he was selected. Certainly the judges should be commended for their selection of Dick Koch. He will remain in our hearts and thoughts forever," he said.

McCauley also expressed his congratulations and best wishes to Koch's wife, Simmy, who accepted her husband's award, and the entire Koch family in attendance.

"You certainly can be proud of your father. He did a great job in our city for many years."

Fr. Heery fondly recalled his friendship with Mr. Koch who was an active parishioner of Sacred Heart Church.

"It's really a joy to be here and be a part of this very fitting award to a very outstanding gentleman, Dick Koch.

"You know, Dick walked with us too short a time. But in that short span of years, he had the good fortune of marrying a lovely, lovely woman, Simmy Koch, who became the mother of his children. Together they raised a beautiful family that is really the pride and joy of not only the city of Quincy, but Sacred Heart Parish.

"And Dick's great joy also was the grandchildren that came along. They were the delight of his life," Rev. Heery said.

"And he also had many, many gifts. And he had the particular gift of organizational skills, something I kind of envy. And the ability also of delegating. He could get certain people to do certain tasks and he always knew the job assigned would be completed.

"He did a wonderful job the short time he was with us. And his memory will long live amongst all of us and most especially his grandchildren, when their fathers and their mothers tell them about their father.

"But I would like, if I might, to take issue with the mayor. He did say that Dick Koch never raised his voice," Rev. Heery said kindly.

"I can remember a celebrated volleyball game in Dick Koch's backyard. I was playing in that game and it was very close, a tie breaker. He let his voice be heard loud and clear.

"He wasn't on my side though. I did once after that give him a book of rules for volleyball. I don't think he ever got past the table of contents. We had a way of making up the rules as we went along," Rev. Heery said as the crowd laughed.

"But that was his lifestyle that was his way. He was a gentle man, but he was a giant to walk among us.

"May his gentle soul rest in peace."

Bosworth noted that The Sun "Citizen Of The Year Award" is a community award in that the community has input into the selection process from beginning to end.

Sun readers nominate those they feel deserve the recognition and then a panel is selected to make the final choice from the field of nominees, he explained.

"So," he said, "it is truly a community award and The Sun is the vehicle for presenting it."

Bosworth said he believes that a newspaper that calls itself a community newspaper should get involved in that community in addition to reporting the news.

"Like," he said, "recognizing outstanding individuals who give generously of their time, talent--and their heart--to their community.

Bosworth noted that Fr. Heery, in nominating Mr. Koch, said of him, "Richard 'Dick' Koch has been 'Mr. Quincy' for many reasons: his love for this historic city, his love for its poor, his love for its youth.'"

"Those of us who knew Dick will whole heartedly agree with that" Bosworth said. "He had a big [illegible] he spread that magic [illegible] those of us [illegible] circumstances.

"Dick Koch was [illegible] kindred spirit [illegible] along often enough [illegible] lifetime. He gave so [illegible] himself to so many [illegible] causes.

"He helped the young, elderly, the hungry, the [illegible] and the ill. He was always there when anyone needed a helping hand. He had the biggest helping hands in Quincy and a heart to match them."

Mr. Koch was founder of the Koch Club which will observe its 40th year in May, co-founded the Quincy City Club and was active in the Cancer Crusade, the Heart Fund, the United Fund, South Shore Association for Retarded Children and the South Shore Christmas Festival.

He served with Bosworth as co-chairman of the Quincy South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee which has raised more than $1 million to help fight muscular dystrophy.

"Perhaps the Koch Club was Dick's favorite of all," Bosworth said.

He noted the club has given thousands of youngsters the opportunity to participate in sports.

"The important thing with Dick was participation," said Bosworth. "He didn't care how far you hit the ball or how many baskets you could shoot. The accent was on participation. Everyone got the chance to play.

"That was Dick Koch--a Rembrandt original."

Lotta Crabtree:

She Was The Darling Of The Nation

This biography was compiled by the members of Alpha Delta Kappa International Honorary Sorority for Women Educators, XI Chapter, Quincy, in recognition of the varied contributions of Quincy women over the last 200 years.

She was an immediate hit; the darling of the nation in the last of the 19th century. Her specialty was comedy, but it was her personality and youthful charm that won the hearts of most of her audience.

She wore colorful costumes and made funny faces to suit each character she played. Plays were written for her, she often played all the characters.

Lotta Crabtree was born in New York Nov. 7, 1847. Soon after gold was discovered in 1847, her father left his family behind and went to seek his fortune. When Lotta was four, her mother, Mary Ann, took her west, to join her father.

After they were settled in California, Lotta enrolled in dancing school. Under her mother's strict supervision, she began her career, entertaining. Lotta sang and danced for the gold miners. For many of them, life was a struggle. They needed someone to make them laugh.

Lotta created interesting characters and kept them alive, on stage, for many years. As she grew older, she kept her youthful appearance and could still play children's roles. Her mother took care of Lotta and guided her career. Lotta's popularity as a comedienne and her earnings in the theater were unmatched.

After her mother's death, Lotta invested a lot of money in real estate, in Boston and Quincy. When she retired, she enjoyed spending her money helping needy people.

Lotta Crabtree gave joy during her life and continues to provide for others in her will. She died quietly, in a Boston hotel, in 1924, at the age of 77. After her death, many people tried to claim her fortune, that amounted to over $4 million.

There were some bitter fights over her money. Wisely, the judge honored Lotta's wishes, providing money for the charities that help both people and animals.

Crabtree Road, in the Squantum section of Quincy, was named after Lotta. It is where she once had a large home.

There is a fountain in San Francisco called Lotta's Fountain. It was able to survive both earthquakes and fire since 1875. It is located where three streets come together, so that many people could drink its cool water and also give their horses a place to rest.

Lotta Crabtree gave two very important, lasting memorials. The lingering memory of laughter and a cool, refreshing drink to the thirsty and poor.

Cheney Calls For Household Toxic Waste Program

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney submitted a resolve Monday night, adopted by the City Council, asking the mayor to consider funding a household toxic waste program for the spring of 1988.

"The City of Quincy held a successful toxic waste collection program in 1987," stated Cheney.

"The residents of the City of Quincy have expressed support for another toxic waste collection day.

"There is currently no facility for our residents to safely dispose of their household toxic waste," said Cheney.

Cheney also recommended that the city accept the League of Women Voter's offer to assume responsibility for the public awareness portion of the toxic waste collection program.

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, chairman of the city's Recycling Committee, said he thought the program could be incorporated into a recycling program.

Sherlock Solves Another Case

Sherlock has solved another case.

Only this time, it's not an English sleuth who did the job, but a new Automated Fingerprint Identification System known as Sherlocke being used by the Quincy Police Department.

"It has become fully operational through the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Department of Public Safety," said Police Chief Francis Finn.

The system helped solve four breaking and entering cases during which valuable items had been stolen from Schlager Ave., West Quincy, according to Det. Robert Bird.

"Detectives Robert Ciriello and Robert Curtis went to the apartment house that night and as part of their investigations, processed the four apartments for latent fingerprints," said Bird.

"They found and lifted three latent fingerprints which were returned to the station," he said.

The prints were taken to State Police Headquarters, Boston, where they were accepted for a search by the new AFIS computer, according to Bird. The prints were identified and Quincy Police notified.

The findings of the computer were confirmed by Bird who notified Ciriello and Curtis.

"They obtained warrants for the subject who is an out of town resident and a person with whom our department has had no previous encounter," said Bird.

"Needless to say, the subject's recorded fingerprints would not be in our files, and if a file search were made here, it would have resulted in countless hours of searching with no results," he said.

The North Quincy girls' basketball team's season came to an abrupt end last week at the hands of an excellent Durfee team in the opening round of the Division I South Sectionals, as it dropped a 61-35 decision to the fifth-seeded Hilltoppers from Fall River.

The Raiderettes ended their season with a 13-8 record, while the win gave Durfee an 18-3 mark. It then dropped a 54-52 overtime squeaker to Boston English.

North got off to a good start with its 1000-point scorer, Nancy Flukes, hitting the game's opening basket. North was whistled for three quick fouls as Durfee took a 4-2 lead.

"Those calls did not permit us to play our usual tough defensive game," said coach Paul Bregoli. "All our kids backed off. Both officials were from their conference. In tourney play each conference is supposed to get one each."

Flukes tied the score on a jump shot but Durfee ran off seven unanswered points and North turned cold, missing three layups and two free throws. Debbie Panaro broke the Durfee run with two free throws. North trailed, 15-8, after one quarter.

six points on two offensive rebounds and a basket at the buzzer on a nice pass from Flukes.

Trailing by 11 entering the last quarter, Flukes picked up her fourth foul 14 seconds into the quarter. Durfee outscored the Raiderettes, 17-2, with a Panaro layup the only points for North, which missed shot after shot.

"We suffered through a tough shooting night (13 for 57 from the floor) and ran into a good Durfee team," said Bregoli. "Combine that with what I can only term as 'inconsistent' officiating and you have the result of the game. But I have no regrets on this season. These kids battled back all year despite the injuries and surprised a lot of people in qualifying for the tournament.

"Flukes had a spectacular year, scoring 405 points this year and finishing with 1026 for her career. She carried us this year and did everything she was asked to do. Karrie Pistorino has to be the toughest little kid I've ever seen, playing with a torn ligament, playing in pain, but always playing all out no matter what.

Couple that with the leadership and steady play of Patty Feeney and the hard work and hustle of Rita Rooney, and we had the ingredients.

"Our bench was great, too. Seniors Stacey Welch, Tarra Meyer, Kerri McDonald and Melissa Miles all did their jobs and provided the steady play needed from the reserves. The future continues to look bright. Juniors Paula Tolson, Deirdre Murphy, Kellene Duffy, Debbie Panaro and Karin Reister all got important game experience, while Tricia Mitton and Kerry Tolson both look capable at helping a great deal next year. We had a great year and nothing will ever change that."

Flukes had 12 points and seven rebounds against Durfee, Murphy had eight points and five rebounds and Panaro six points.

After Flukes made another runner in the lane and Panaro hit for two more free throws to cut the lead to five, disaster struck the Raiderettes when Flukes was called for an offensive foul, her third, forcing her to the bench along with Tolson and Deirdre Murphy, both of whom had picked up two fouls.

North's reserves dug in, however, and hung tough as Patty Feeney hit two free throws, Karin Reister hit a layup, Stacey Welch converted an offensive rebound and Folson hit two free throws as North trailed, 26-20, with 2:30 left in the half. However, Durfee went on a 10-1 run with only a Rita Rooney free throw to show for North and Durfee led at the half, 36-21.

Flukes hit a corner jumper and Murphy scored inside to cut the gap to 36-25. After a Durfee hoop, Flukes hit another baseline jumper with four minutes left in the third quarter. The North bench was called for a technical foul when an obvious hacking foul as Murphy tried to shoot was not called. Durfee made both free throws and scored again to take a commanding 42-27 lead. Murphy then took charge underneath, scoring

Squirt B's Edged By Framingham For Title

Quincy's Squirt B hockey team came within an eyelash of winning the state championship last weekend at the Randolph Ice Arena, winning four games before bowing to perennial state champion Framingham, 3-2, in the finals.

Quincy's second place finish was the best effort by a Quincy Squirt B team in the past five years.

The team, coached by Rich Reinhardt and Ralph DiMattia, was organized only six months ago with only three holdovers from last year. It qualified for the state tournament with wins over Brookline, Tri-Valley and Dedham to take the District 3 (Norfolk County) title.

Quincy opened championship play with a 13-0 romp over Danvers, as goalies Mike Manganaro and Joey MacLennan recorded their 11th shutout of the season, and Chris Geary paced the offense with a hat trick and an assist.

Ron McGann had two goals and two assists, Steve Barrett two goals and an assist, A.J. Carthas two goals and Timmy Kunz, Jamie Murphy, Jim Keegan and Dan Mann one each.

Jimmy Gallagher, Kunz, Mann, Keegan, Carl Dobbins and Dan Boylen had assists.

Quincy next defeated Arlington, 4-2, overcoming an early 2-1 deficit on two shorthanded goals by Kunz, and hanging on with tight defense to preserve the victory.

Kunz and Chris Geary had two goals each and Robbie Callow, Dobbins and Boylen had assists. Coach Reinhardt praised the work of defensemen Eric Griffin, R.J. DiMattia and Jason Fennelly.

Next came a 6-0 victory over the Hull Seahawks, the 12th shutout for Manganaro and MacLennan. McGann scored two goals and Geary one in the first three minutes of the game. Kunz had two goals and Gallagher one. Carthas and DiMattia had two assists and Barrett and Mann one.

This win clinched the South division of the 16-team tournament and Quincy next faced North division winner South Boston, winning by an 8-1 score.

Quincy pulled out to an early 5-0 lead and coasted from there as Mann scored two early goals and Barrett, Kunz and McGann had one each. McGann, Carthas and Dobbins had later goals. McGann had three assists, Kunz two and Geary, Barrett, Mann, Dobbins, Fennelly and Carthas one each.

The championship game with Framingham was a brilliantly-played contest with Framingham scoring all three of its goals on first period power plays. Quincy cut the lead to 3-2 in the second period and scored what looked like the tying goal in a scramble in front of the Framingham net. One official called it a goal but was overruled by the other.

40 Youngsters Treated To Special Ski Trip

Forty children from the South Shore YMCA in Quincy were recently treated to a special day of skiing at Wachusett Mountain Ski Resort.

Ricky Smith Pontiac-Subaru in Weymouth, WJDA 1300 radio, ski reporter Bill Hoffman, and Wachusett Mountain Ski Resort worked together to give the children an opportunity they would have otherwise missed.

The local Pepsi Cola bottler of Milton sponsored a bus, complete with refreshments, to transport the kids out to Princeton.

All the boys and girls, many of them from the YMCA's "Every Kid's a Winner" program, were given rental equipment, lessons and lift tickets.

Quincy, North Bid Brockton Farewell

The Quincy and North Quincy football teams have played their last games against Brockton, which has more than twice the enrollment of both schools.

Brockton, which is having trouble scheduling games, received another jolt last week when Everett announced it will not play the Boxers next fall.

Brockton is protesting this move, as Everett did not give a year's notice. It is taking the case to the MIAA and, if it gets no satisfaction, will take the case to court.

The Boxers have been able to schedule only six games to date for next fall.

'Christian Enlistment' At Quincy Point Congregational

On "Loyalty Sunday," March 13, Quincy Point Congregational Church will observe their "Annual Christian Enlistment" when all church families prepare and present their financial pledges for the support of the church's budget for 1988-89.

At 10 a.m., members and friends of the church are requested to attend the morning service of worship and to have their pledges dedicated.

One of the pastors will continue preaching the Lenten series of sermons on "Who Are We?"

This Sunday, the sermon will be titled "We Are The Lifted Up!" Each sermon during the Lenten season seeks to focus upon the unique characteristics of what it means to be a Christian person in today's world.

Future sermons will center on the responses, "We Are The Glorified!," "We Are The Blessed!" and "We Are The Raised."

South Shore residents are invited to attend these Sunday 10 a.m. services.

During the service more than 35 enlistment workers will be commissioned for their role in this year's Enlistment Program.

Following the service, all enlistment workers are invited to a roast beef dinner in the Social Hall. They will then receive their final instructions for visiting church families whose pledges have not yet been received.

Throughout the afternoon and during the coming week, they will make brief visits to members and friends of the church, informing them of current church life and inviting them to support the church financially and personally.

At the same 10 a.m. hour, church school classes are provided for infants through high school. A newly furnished crib room is under the supervision of Chris Mendez and her assistants.

Parents wishing to register their children in the church school should call the church office at 773-6424 or speak with Glenn McGhee, church school superintendent.

Pastors are the Revs. Fred and Carol Atwood-Lyon.

Purple Heart Awarded Posthumously To Timothy J. Lynch, Sr.

A Purple Heart was awarded posthumously Tuesday to Timothy J. Lynch, Sr., a long-time Quincy resident who died Dec. 11, 1987 before knowing he was to receive the medal.

The medal was accepted by his son, Dr. Timothy J. Lynch, Jr., of Quincy during a special ceremony at Ft. Devens.

"I am only sorry my Dad did not live to see he was receiving it," said the younger Lynch. "The medal will be a personal treasure for me."

The elder Lynch was an Army sergeant when he was wounded in France in 1945 during World War II.

He was injured by shell fire while volunteering to repair a bridge. His platoon was commanded by Lt. Dale Robertson who later became a television star.

"My dad was hospitalized for a couple of months and discharged later that year," the younger Lynch said. "He never talked much about it, but did tell me and my mother that Robertson was his lieutenant."

Carmela Lynch, his mother, died in 1983.

Before and after his naval service, Timothy Lynch Sr. was a supervisor for 30 years at the Boston Naval Shipyard. He retired in 1974.

He then worked in parking enforcement for the Quincy Police Department for 12 years.

Gen. George Washington established the Order of the Purple Heart to honor men wounded in the Revolutionary War.

It has been awarded to those wounded in action in subsequent wars.

3 Adults Join Squantum First Church

Three adults joined the church and four young people began the discipleship experience by which they will eventually join the church, as members of the First Church of Squantum renewed their covenant with God and with each other during a special "Covenant Sunday" worship service Sunday.

The new members were Beth Harper, Marion McGarry, and Katrina Silver. They were sponsored by church members Kate MacRitchie, Hazel Mayne, and Barbara Walter. Representing the congregation to give the new members the right hand of fellowship were Sally Johnson, church moderator, Doug Barnum for the Board of Trustees, Ruth Swenson for the Board of Benevolence, Richard MacMillan for the Board of Christian Education, Barbara Edgar for the youth ministries of the church and especially The Way Up, and Gretchen Bumpus and Stewart Scott for the Board of Deacons.

The young people who entered the Covenant of Discipleship were Lori Ogilvie, Kim Olson, Blythe Bumpus, and Karin Reister. Representing the church to welcome them were Mary Ruth Scott and Evelyn Ahearn. Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, spoke to the young people about "Popcorn People."

Dr. Langevin's regular sermon for the morning was entitled "His Bread, His Wine."

The Youth Choir combined with the Chancel Choir to sing the offertory anthem. Hymns were sung by the congregation.

Greeters for the morning were Doug and Allyson Barnum. Ushers were Harry Holmes and Stewart Scott, and the Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Sandra Ahearn and Ellen Ogilvie.

Before the covenant renewal service, members of the congregation gathered for a Covenant Breakfast sponsored by the young people of the church to raise monies for youth ministry.

On Sunday afternoon, the pastor met with the young people in the Covenant of Discipleship as a regular part of their preparation leading to membership in the church. They will meet with the pastor Sunday at 9:15 a.m. for a special Sunday morning worship service and again at 4:30 p.m. for their weekly meeting.

The church is offering two different Lenten programs this year. The first group, which is studying "Contemporary Films and the Christian Faith," met Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. to discuss "The Mission" starring Jeremy Irons and Robert DeNiro. The film topic March 15 will be "Trip to Bountiful."

The other group, which is held Wednesday nights, is working through "Big Stories in the Old Testament." This week the subject was Moses. On March 16, the group will conclude its study of Moses. This group meets for supper at 6:30 p.m. and moves upstairs for discussion at 7:15 p.m. The supper menu this week was spaghetti.

The Chancel Choir has a meeting for rehearsal Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday mornings at 9:30 a.m. Mary Ruth Scott is director. The Board of Deacons and the Board of Trustees will each hold their monthly meetings at the church Monday, March 21 at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday, March 12 young people from The Way Up will work around the church to get it ready for the Easter season. Various members of the church will supervise.

On March 13, there will be two services, one at 9:15 a.m. for members of the Covenant of Discipleship and the other at 10:30 a.m. for the rest of the church. Sunday School meets during the service and a nursery is provided. Visitors are always welcome.

Quincy Teachers Honored At State House Ceremony

As part of Women's History month, Gay Carbonneau and Mary Schiess, two Quincy teachers, will be honored at a State House reception for their curriculum units focusing on Massachusetts women, March 15.

Mary Schiess, a language arts teacher at Central Middle School, designed a writing unit which incorporated the accomplishments of women like Clara Barton, Mary Pratt and Louisa May Alcott into writing exercises for middle school students.

Gay Carbonneau, a music specialist in the elementary schools, directed a cantata called "Abigail Adams," with words and music by Marjorie Jeffries of Milton. Some students who participated in the cantata last spring at Furnace Brook School, have been asked to perform some excerpts at the awards ceremony at the State House.

Mary Schiess commented, "I was thrilled to have my unit chosen for the award because I think it demonstrates how easily women's history can be integrated into the curriculum to increase students' awareness and skill level."

Gay Carbonneau said, 'I believe the performance of the Abigail Adams cantata gave students an understanding of the contributions of an outstanding Massachusetts woman from history and the opportunity to work with a contemporary Massachusetts woman of great artistic creativity."

Miss Schiess and Miss Carbonneau will receive a formal commendation signed by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and excerpts from their works will be included in a curriculum guidebook for Massachusetts teachers.

Local Program Gives Older Homeowners Free Reverse Mortgage Counseling

Free counseling on equity conversion services is available for South Shore homeowners age 60 and older who need supplementary income to meet health care costs, home repairs, and other necessities.

The Protestant Social Service Bureau (P.S.S.B.) in Quincy, a non-profit agency, now participates in the Massachusetts Elderly Equity Program (MEEP), a two-year-old measure to help older homeowners find financial alternatives.

The state program is the first such effort nationwide.

P.S.S.B. is one of eight participating agencies statewide that offers free counseling to determine the individual homeowner's needs, provides referrals to lending institutions or defines other resources.

"Elderly homeowners are often not aware of their home equity. Many are cash poor, but house rich, which means they have a limited income but untapped resources based on the value of their homes. When converted, the equity can help make ends meet, pay for home repairs or assist with medical expenses," said Dorothy A. Cutler, of Milton, who serves as the Elderly Equity Conversion Counselor at P.S.S.B.

"We do not make any decisions. We provide free information about many resources that older homeowners may be unaware of in today's complex world. There are many choices and I help them sort out what's right for them," said Cutler, who is an experienced financial advisor.

Cutler examines the pros and cons of reverse mortgages, property tax deferrals, home improvement loans, equity loans, family loans, and others.

"The necessary personal facts and figures are obtained to determine exactly what are the homeowner's needs. These could range from a new roof to a supplement to their monthly income."

"The facts are assessed and the client is provided with a list of options," said Cutler.

Although new to the South Shore, the program has helped some 5,000 older homeowners statewide receive counseling between July 1986 and July 1987, according to the state Executive Office of Elderly Affairs.

P.S.S.B.'s free service is available by appointment to homeowners age 60 and up living in Plymouth and Norfolk counties. Families of elderly homeowners are also welcome to inquire.

Other programs at P.S.S.B. include Shared Living, which helps small groups share houses and apartments, and Home Share, where live-in helpers are placed in homes with an elderly person who can't live alone, but wishes to remain independent.

Although funded in part by local Protestant churches, P.S.S.B. serves South Shore residents of all religious faiths.

It was the first election in Quincy under the new ward and precinct lines which were made equal by population and reduced the number of voting precincts from 39 to 30.

City Clerk John Gillis said there were complaints from some voters who had to go to polling places further from their homes than under the old wards and precincts lineup.

Dukakis won his home state by nearly a 3-to-1 margin over his nearest competitor, the Rev. Jackson. Dukakis topped the ballot with 58 percent, Jackson had 19 percent and Missouri Congressman Richard Gephardt collected 10 percent.

Dukakis also took the biggest prizes on Super Tuesday, winning the Texas and Florida primaries. These two states have the most Democratic delegates. The governor also topped the ballot in Rhode Island and Maryland.

At press time, Dukakis had picked up the most Democratic delegates, 464. Gore, Tennessee Senator, and Jackson, who also finished very strong in the South, had 378 and 371 delegates respectively.

A Democratic candidate must have 2,082 delegates to be nominated.

Other big Super Tuesday winners on the Democratic side were Gore and Jackson. Gore won five states in the South, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

The Alabama primary was between Gore and Jackson, but too close to call at press time.

RICHARD GEPHARDT

11% vote

JESSE JACKSON

13% vote

On the Republican side, Bush took a giant step to gaining his party's nomination by winning 16 states, including Massachusetts, Sen. Robert Dole finished second in those states that Bush won.

Bush now has 745 Republican delegates and needs just 36 percent more of the remaining delegates to win the Republican nomination.

Bush won Massachusetts, and many other states by big margins over Dole. In Massachusetts, Bush had 58 percent, Dole 26 percent and Congressman Jack Kemp had seven percent.

Returns from four states, Washington, Idaho, Nevada and Hawaii were unavailable at press time.

$3,000 Grant For Management Training

State Secretary of Communities and Development Amy S. Anthony has awarded a $3,000 grant to Quincy for management training for school principals and assistant principals.

The money is among $940,000 in grants to 154 communities and school systems through a program designed to help communities make permanent improvements in local government.

The Incentive Aid awards provide cities and towns with the resources to fund professional positions and new programs which can help improve local government efficiency and school system management.

4-Year Mayor, Council Terms Appear Doomed

"If the overwhelming majority of people called to put it on the ballot, but I only got one call. And the caller was against it."

Sheets, who had earlier indicated he leaned towards putting the question on the ballot, said he now had mixed feelings and voted against it.

"The mayor made a good case for a four year term for the chief executive," said Sheets. "But I don't see a lot of sense putting it on the ballot if there is no support for it."

To Retire June 24

Valenti Stepping Down As Fire Chief

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Fire Chief Carl Valenti has decided to call it a career after almost 31 years with the department.

"My wife, Emily and I talked it over, and I think it's time to go," said Valenti, who will retire June 24.

"I've accomplished all I can on the job," he said. "It's time to start a new chapter in my life."

Valenti worked his way up through the ranks of the department and was named acting chief, pending results of a civil service exam, Aug. 5, 1985. He succeeded Chief Edward Barry who retired.

Valenti was sworn in an permanent chief May 5, 1987.

A resident of Weymouth, he will be 60 years old April 5.

CARL VALENTI

"I'll be sorry to see him go," said Mayor Francis McCauley. "I've worked well with him. He has been a good chief."

McCauley noted that the department's four deputy chiefs will take the chief's exam Saturday.

"If a civil service list is not established in time, I will appoint an acting chief in the interim," he said.

Those scheduled to take the exam are Deputy Chiefs Joseph Jackson, Thomas Gorman, Frances O'Hare and Paul O'Connell, according to Valenti.

"Any one of the four would do a good job," said Valenti. "They are all good people."

Valenti said his decision to retire wasn't made on the spur of the moment.

"I've been thinking about it for a while," he said. "I really love the job, but it's time to do something different."

Valenti said being on call seven days a week, 24 hours a day, was beginning to take its toll.

"My wife has been very supportive," said Valenti. "She deserves a retirement, too.

"This job has affected her as well, with calls in the middle of the night.

"We share our problems and our happiness."

Valenti and his wife have four grown children, Cynthia, Theresa, Michael, and Stephen, as well as seven grandchildren.

"It's only my wife and I now," he said. "It's time for us to start enjoying things, maybe do some travelling."

"It's time to stop and smell the roses."

Valenti said he is proud of having risen to the top job.

He said he also takes pride in being the first chief of Italian descent.

"That makes me prouder than anything," said Valenti. "It was hard work getting here."

Valenti said he and his wife are considering a trip to Italy.

"We can go anyplace we want to," he said. "We won't have to worry about getting back at a set time.

"I think it's going to be nice.

"I'll miss the job. I've been on the job more than half my life.

"I have a lot to be thankful for.

"I was always proud to be a firefighter. It's a very honorable job.

"I've worked with a great bunch of guys.

"But it'sn time to start a new chapter.

"There are other things in life."

Morrissey Has Mixed Feelings Over Redistricting

Rep. Michael Morrissey gives mixed reviews to the new redistricting plan approved by the House of Representatives Monday night which will give him about 3,000 new constituents in a different area of the city.

Approval is still needed by the Senate, and it must be signed by the governor.

Redistricting is done every 10 years.

"I'll be giving up four precincts in West Quincy and picking up four in Wollaston," said Morrissey.

"I've spent 10 years working on issues and winning support in West Quincy.

"There have been some good issues and opportunities to get involved. I'll miss that.

"But now I have the chance to run in some of the area I had run in 12 years ago.

MIKE MORRISSEY

"It will be a challenge to represent four new districts, a chance to broaden my base, meet new people, and renew old acquaintances."

Morrissey's district will include Ward 4, Precinct 3; Ward 3, Precincts 3, 4, 5; Ward 5, Precincts 2, 4 and 5; and Precinct 6, Wards 1-5, for a total of 35,984 constituents.

Senate approval could come as early as a week, said Morrissey.

"As soon as it is approved, I will be out on the street campaigning," he said.

"I look forward to spending time in my new area this summer."

Morrissey noted that he and Rep. Robert Cerasoli are still available to represent constituents of Rep. Thomas Brownell who left at the end of last year to become a judge.

"I'll still be happy to respond," he said.

Public Drinking Fine Doubled To $100

Hoping it will act as a deterrent, the City Council unanimously voted Monday night to raise the fine for public drinking from $50 to $100 for the first offense.

The fine will be $200 for subsequent offenses.

"A $50 fine is not enough," said Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the Ordinance Committee which discussed the measure earlier in the evening.

"A large sum of money will be a deterrent."

Cheney had originally proposed a $200 fine for the first offense, but City Council President Patricia Toland said that was too much.

"I understand the aim to make it hurt," said Toland, "but that is too expensive, and the police will be less apt to arrest people for it."

A compromise of $100 was reached by the council.

"We encourage strong enforcement," said Cheney. "Public drinking is a problem in the summer."

Police Guard For Recounts Cost $23,739

The City Council voted Monday night to appropriate $23,739 to pay for the police guard of ballots during the recount of mayoral and councillor at large races in last November's election.

"That's what it cost to guard the ballots in the recounts requested by Joseph LaRaia (who ran for mayor) and Ronald Iacobucci (councillor at large candidate)," said City Clerk John Gillis.

There was no change in the outcome of the races after the recounts. Neither LaRaia nor Iacobucci was elected.

Gillis has submitted legislation which would require those who request recounts to pay a portion of the cost if the outcome does not change significantly.

Snow Storms Cost City $586,813 -- So Far

It has cost the city $586,813 so far this winter for snow removal, $286,813 over the $300,000 that was budgeted, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

"We don't budget large amounts," said McCauley, who noted the unpredictability of the season.

"We will use surpluses from other departments, or add the difference to tax bills," he said.

In recent years, the city has not had to add any snow removal costs to tax bills, McCauley said.

Sewer Fee Seen Financing System's Rehabilitation

The city should be able to rehabilitate its entire sewer system in eight to nine years with the proceeds of a sewer rehabilitation fee in effect for about 10 months, says City Councillor James Sheets.

Sheets, who represents Ward 4, proposed the fee.

So far, over $600,000 has been raised by the fee which is one percent of the total cost of new construction.

"By the end of June, we should have about a million dollars," said Sheets, after a recent City Council meeting.

"Then we can start spending it according to the recommendation of the public works commissioner."

Sheets said the money will go towards building new lift stations, and rehabilitating old ones.

Plastic sleeves may also be installed over old pipelines, but the work will mainly be on lift stations, he said.

Sheets said he hopes a lift station in West Quincy will be one of the first projects.

Patricia Toland Candidate For State Representative

Toland made her formal announcement at a combination reception and 56th birthday party last night (Wednesday) at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

In a prepared statement, Toland said:

"Government, I firmly believe, when used wisely, can be used effectively to change things that ought to be changed and to keep things that ought to remain. I welcome opportunities to serve the public, particularly in this community I call home.

"Since my last birthday, such an opportunity, a new opportunity has arisen. As most of you know, for many years Quincy was extremely well served by having Tom Brownell as one of its state representatives. On Jan. 5 of this year, however, our city suffered a loss that surely will be an outstanding gain for the commonwealth – that being that Tom was sworn in by Governor Dukakis to become an associate justice of the Plymouth District Court. So now, about 35,000 Quincy citizens are in need of a new state representative. Ladies and gentlemen, I intend to be that representative.

"I'm a proud Democrat and tonight I am proud to announce my candidacy for state representative in the Second Norfolk District. You have all supported me so well for so many years. I hope and trust you'll be with me once again.

"Friends, let no one fool you, it's a political fact of life that as a freshman representative, Tom Brownell's successor will have a lot of catching up to do. But I am up to the task! I have the experience and the leadership abilities to serve Quincy on Beacon Hill.

"Issues are facing our community that must be dealt with forcefully and responsibly on the state level. Even when (hopefully) a Democrat is elected to the White House, it is obvious that we cannot rely entirely on Washington. The State House is where things are happening that touch our lives in so many ways.

PATRICIA TOLAND

"I want to become a state legislator first and foremost to help keep alive what has become known as the Massachusetts miracle. Today, we are basking in the sun and enjoying good times - but only good, honest work will keep the miracle going.

"Studies are showing that we are heading towards a very serious labor shortage. However this is a wonderful problem to have. Between now and 1995 Massachusetts industries will be looking to expand employment by about 300,000 workers. Whether or not these jobs are actually created though depends primarily on whether we can provide businesses with a new supply of well-trained and well-educated workers. This won't be easy. The number of persons aged 15 or 16 to 24 - the traditional source of new labor is predicted to drop by 25 percent during this period.

"What does this all mean? Now, more than ever, the Massachusetts economy depends on the talents of our workforce. There is no better way to keep things moving than by continuing to open the doors of opportunity to everyone who wants a job. For those of us already living well, it is very much in our own interest to take the steps that will also help others.

"Never before has it made more economic sense to eradicate illiteracy. Never before has it made more fiscal sense to support the E.I. choices program for reducing welfare. And as someone who taught in an elementary classroom for eleven years, never before has it made more common sense that we provide our kids with a solid education from early childhood right on up to college age.

"Housing is another area that cries out for action. Home ownership, or at the very least, an affordable rental opportunity is part of the American dream. There are some of the important reasons as to why I am running for state representative; however, I must emphasize what I feel is the issue that jumps out at us right now because it affects the quality of all our lives so much - and that is the environment.

"It makes no sense to continue fouling our own nest. We must take better care of our environment. Just look at Quincy Bay and you will see the cost of neglect. We are entering an era of shocking high water and sewer rates. And while I feel we must follow through on our commitment to make our harbor clean again, let's keep a wary eye on the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

"For one thing in order to keep people's bills down, the authority should be looking at making a much more vigorous water conservation program. In order to keep toxic materials out of sewage, they should implement a tougher industrial pre-treatment program. One of the main reasons I oppose the incineration of sludge at the shipyard, and I do mean the shipyard because what happens there is important to all people in Quincy because of toxic materials, I'm sure everyone in this room can agree on this.

"Of course, there are some unfortunate by-products of a growing economy. For example, the production of hazardous waste increased 300 percent in just two years. The cost of managing solid waste has gone absolutely through the roof. And the utilities tell us we need nuclear power plants to keep the lights on. It ain't so!

"Answers to these dilemmas lie in conservation, recycling, and alternative energy sources. Reduce the problems as much as possible and then be innovative to overcome them. Who wants to live near a landfill or at Clean Harbors? Who wants to live near an incinerator or a nuclear power plant? Your quality of life is at stake, so take these matters into your own hands. A good place to start, I might suggest, is to elect a Democrat with proven leadership abilities and experience.

"Friends, we all want the same things for our families and ourselves - jobs, affordable housing, and a healthy environment in which to enjoy the fruits of our labor. Add it all up and you're talking simply about improving the quality of life. Fundamentally, that is the very purpose of government.

"That is why I've always treasured my roles in government and that's why I'm running for state representative from the Second Norfolk District."

Now You Can Dance On Sundays

By KRISTINE STRENGE

Residents who have enjoyed dancing in Quincy on Sundays won't have to change their plans after action taken by the City's License Board.

The board eased a ban which prohibited dancing on Sunday in Quincy except at weddings and christenings.

According to City Clerk John Gillis, also board chairman, until the ordinance is officially changed dancing will be allowed. But, when the change occurs dancing establishments will have to come before the board and get permission for one year.

When the issue surfaced about seven years ago, Gillis was the only License Board member in favor of Sunday dancing in Quincy.

"I think it's a very good thing. I've been in favor of it (Sunday dancing) for seven years," he said.

Last week the issue was brought before the board when Singles World Couples World Inc., which has been operating a ballroom dance for senior adults Sunday at George F. Bryan V.F.W. Post since April 1974.

Sgt. Richard Laracy, Liquor Inspector gave the board a letter which stated that there are a number of Quincy bars and lounges and private dances on Sunday.

The License Board's action followed the City Council's unanimous adoption Monday night of a resolve by Councillor at large Stephen McGrath asking the board to take the "appropriate action" to permit Sunday dancing in Quincy.

"I recently became aware of problems with continuing Sunday dancing," said McGrath, "particularly at the Bryan V.F.W. Post where such dances have been operated since 1974.

"An ordinance bans Sunday dancing in Quincy except with the permission of the License Board."

McGrath said he was bringing in the resolve so that applicants wouldn't have to come before the License Board every week to seek permission.

"If the License Board doesn't take appropriate action, the City Council will," said McGrath, whose resolve was met by applause from onlookers attending the meeting, many of whom attend the Bryan Post dances.

"There probably was a purpose for the ordinance at the time, but now it infringes on self expression," said Councillor Michael Cheney, who was also cheered.

Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro joked that McGrath should change his name to the "dancing councillor at large."

"Dancing is a wholesome, fun and recreational activity," said Council president Patricia Toland.

"It's not something we should try to discourage."

A BOOK FAIR was held recently at the Merrymount School. Checking out the books for sale were students, from left, Andrew Byrne, Scott Pyer, Chuck Feeley, David Keddy and Eric Dickens.

6 Councillors To Attend Washington Meeting

Six of the nine city councillors will be traveling to Washington, D.C., for the National League of Cities Legislative Weekend in Washington, D.C. March 19 to 22.

"We will be talking about what we need from the federal government," said City Council president Patricia Toland.

"We'll talk about the priorities of the cities, and have seminars and discussions," she said.

On the final day, the legislators will go to Capitol Hill to talk with senators and congressmen.

Scheduled to make the trip in addition to Toland are Councillors Theodore DeCristofaro, James Sheets, Thomas Nutley, Stephen McGrath and Timothy Cahill.

Liquor Store License Suspended For Selling To Minor

The city's License Board suspended Keltic Liquors' liquor license for one week and suspended the suspension for one year for selling beer to a minor, at Tuesday's meeting in City Hall.

According to a report by Sgt. Richard Laracy, Liquor Inspector, Kim Nugent, an 18 year old of Braintree, came out of Keltic Liquors, 301 Quincy Ave., Quincy, with a case of beer on Feb. 3. Laracy said he asked the girl for an I.D. and she gave him a liquor I.D. saying she was 25 years old and from Revere.

Laracy said, "This girl looks about 19 years old and the picture was not her."

Nugent told Laracy it was not her and she was not asked for an I.D. when she ordered the beer.

James P. McGrath, owner of the liquor store who sold Nugent the beer, told board members he assumes full responsibility for not asking Nugent for an I.D.

McGrath said he has been emotionally drained for the past eight months due to the deaths of his mother from Alzheimer's Disease and his brother.

"My attention has not been on the business," he said.

Police Chief Francis Finn, told McGrath that being in the liquor business is hard, but he must assume responsibility.

McGrath said, "I think it took this to wake me up."

City Clerk John Gillis, also chairman of the board, pointed out that this is not the first time McGrath has had liquor violations.

The board suspended his license for one day June 23, 1981; the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission suspended his license Oct. 26, 1981, and the board suspended his license for seven days Sept. 2, 1982.

McGrath was also given a verbal warning by sergeant Laracy for serving a minor Dec. 21, 1987.

In his police report Laracy said "Liquor I.D.'s are nothing but a joke, everyone under 21 years old has them. I am working on a report to the board to try to stop their use in the city of Quincy."

Newspapers Should Speak Out On Nicaraguan Control Over 'Free' Press

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

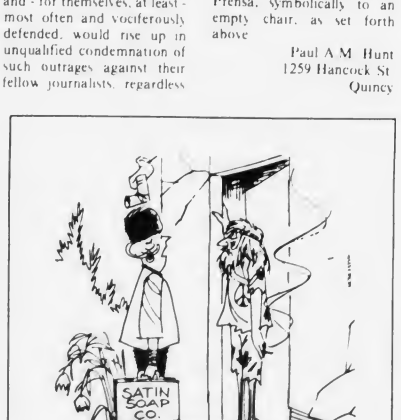
It is time for our nation's newspapers to end their silence on the repression of free expression in Nicaragua.

Throughout the debate on whether the United States should support the Nicaraguan Freedom Fighters, newspapers have devoted an enormous amount of space to the political and policy questions. Very little outrage, however, has been expressed over the fact that La Prensa, Nicaragua's only free, opposition newspaper today publishes only because the government allows it to, and then only because of international pressure on the Sandinista regime to demonstrate its willingness to allow democratic liberties.

The principles of a free press in this country are based on our Founding Fathers' firm belief that neither restraint nor license were acceptable conditions under which to conduct public debate or the exchange of ideas. They further believed that such principles applied to all people, not just a few.

In Nicaragua, La Prensa not only operates under the constant threat of its 'permission' to publish being withdrawn, it also operates with uncertain supplies of paper and ink, no vehicles for the delivery of newspapers, and few and often intimidated employees - all as a direct result of Sandinista harassment.

It seems to me that America's journalists, for whom the right of free expression is most precious and - for themselves, at least - most often and vociferously defended, would rise up in unqualified condemnation of such outrages against their fellow journalists, regardless of nationality.



There is no more tangible evidence of Sandinista outrages against La Prensa than what I witnessed just a few days ago in Washington, D.C. during The American Legion's annual Washington Conference. National Commander John P. Comer was to have presented the Legion's most prestigious public relations award to La Prensa in recognition of the paper's long struggle for freedom of the press. Instead, he presented it to an empty chair. All those associated with La Prensa were unable to attend, purely and simply because of either bureaucratic roadblocks or very real concerns over their personal safety and the survival of La Prensa.

Continued failure of America's journalists to take an unequivocal stand against the outrageous treatment of La Prensa, regardless of their political views on the larger issue of Nicaragua, calls into serious question the depth of their commitment to the inalienable right on which they base the claim to professional and personal freedom for themselves.

I urge you to take a stand and provide whatever real or symbolic and moral support you can to your brothers and sisters at La Prensa.

This information was given to me by National Commander John "Jake" Comer at the American Legion Award's Dinner March 3 in Washington, D.C., where I witnessed the award being given to La Prensa, symbolically, to an empty chair, as set forth above.

Yes, Kelly Is Running

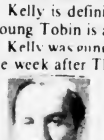
There's been some speculation that former City Councillor Leo Kelly has had a change of heart and will not run for state representative.

Don't believe it.

That report is about as accurate as predicting he won't show up with a green tie on St. Patrick's Day.

The fact that Kelly hasn't made any official announcement of his candidacy ignited speculation that he, for one reason or another, had decided to pass up the run.

KELLY



Some were even wondering if he and Steve Tobin, son of former Mayor-Senator Arthur Tobin, had sat down, talked things over and for some reason Kelly was willing to withdraw to prevent a split of crucial votes in Ward 1 where both live.

Now, that one is pretty far-fetched.

There has been no such meeting. And there won't be.

Kelly is definitely going to run. And at last report, young Tobin is a definite candidate.

Kelly was ring-ho to make his official announcement the week after Thomas Brownell vacated the seat and slipped on his black robe as associate justice of Plymouth District Court.

BROWNELL

But, weeks have gone by without an announcement, spawning the speculation that Kelly had changed his mind.

"No way," says he.

Well, why no announcement yet when he was so close to announcing a few weeks ago?

"Well," he says, "I was going to announce back then when it looked like a special election would be called to fill the seat."

So now that the seat will remain unfilled until a regular election in the fall, Kelly sees no reason for an early announcement or early campaign.

He's well known in the district. He can take his time before sailing his hat into the ring.

"I don't want to peak too early," he grins.

INCIDENTALLY, Kelly thinks he may have a good omen in his corner.

When Brownell became a judge he had to give up his chairmanship so Kelly moved up to chairman.

"I succeeded him as chairman," says Kelly. "That could be a good sign that I will succeed him as state representative."

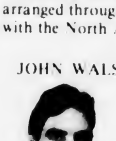
HAROLD

There he was in Rome on a recent trip and attending a Papal audience. There were 2,000 people in attendance.

And, Harold was seated up front. As a result, he got the chance to meet and talk with Pope John Paul.

Harold told the Pope he was from the Boston area.

"That's the archdiocese of Cardinal Law," the Pope noted. "How's he doing?"



"He's doing just fine," Harold replied.

Harold's seating up front at the Papal audience was arranged through the Cardinal's office in coordination with the North American College in Rome.

Concept Of 'Required' Service Is Repugnant

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A recent Patriot Ledger editorial entitled "Student Service in Quincy" advocated the idea that students be 'required' to perform community service to get a taste of the working world and gain a sense of community.

This proposal needs to be shot down before it gets off the ground. The concept of 'required' service is repugnant to any thinking citizen in a free society, but history is replete with its application in totalitarian states.

Soviet Russia and its satellites 'require' all citizens to serve the state when and where they are needed. Other recent examples are China's Red Guards and Germany's Hitler Youth.

We fought the War of 1812 in part to end British seizure and impressment of American sailors into their navy. Over a century ago Lincoln freed the slaves, putting an end, I thought, to the concept of 'required' labor in America.

Let us remember that in a free society, government is the servant of the people, not their master. We created government to serve us, not to enslave us. While I applaud efforts to get people, especially young people involved in community projects, and while I wish that more of them would do it, government, whether federal, state or local simply has no right to 'require' such service except in defense of the nation in time of war.

Any attempt to 'require' service smacks of totalitarianism and is a blatant violation of our 13th Amendment protection against involuntary servitude. I can only wonder about the mind set of anyone who believes this is what America should be about.

Women In A ~~Man's~~ World

Gail Alden:

She Likes Cutting Men's Hair Better Than Women's

(This is the fourth in a series of articles about women in professional and business fields that were once considered strictly a male's domain).

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

In the world of men's barbershops and hair salons, Gail Alden of Quincy fits in perfectly.

But that wasn't always the case.

Gail, 39, a hair stylist or "barberette" at Ken's Hi Style Salon, 5 Revere Rd., Quincy Center, can recall the early times in her career when "some guys refused to have me cut their hair."

"They were afraid of me," she said with a laugh.

Those times have certainly changed. Men cut women's hair and now women cut men's hair. And that suits Gail just fine.

"I get along 100 percent better with males than I do with females," Gail said, responding why she decided to be a men's hair stylist and not a women's. "I like them. We get along," she said.

"I had no desire to cut women's hair. It's something inside me that made me do it," Gail added.

Although she cuts mostly men's hair, Gail does have a few female clients, mostly relatives.

And doing her job right.

"I like to have a guy going out of here looking nice. I give advice and always ask them what they want. I do it as a female and as a hair stylist. I speak the truth."

Gail became a licensed hair stylist almost 10 years ago after successfully completing a program at the Massachusetts School of Barbering in Boston's South End. She got her first job a short time after with a barbershop in the North End.

Gail worked there six years until the shop closed and she was forced to find another barbershop. "I didn't want to move out of the North End. I liked dealing with the people there, especially the tourists. They're friendly people."

Gail was then hired by Joe Avitabile and Nicky Mastracola, owners of Men's Hi Style Salon in downtown Quincy. She's been cutting hair there for three and a half years now.

"I miss a lot of my (North End) customers but some of them do come here (to Quincy) and they are just super," Gail said, adding, "The customers in Quincy are super, too."

As with any job, Gail has her share of likes and dislikes of the men's hair styling profession.

"One of the reasons I like my job is that I get to meet all different types of people. Just cutting hair is lousy.

"You need people with good, lively personalities. You've got to have fun while you're cutting hair. You can be working nine hours a day, but because you're having fun, you don't feel the pain of standing on your feet."

Gail said the business is also a great way to "know different nationalities, different occupations."

"The customers range from low to middle to high society. You get to know and understand these people some more," she said.

In a way, Gail is like the stereotypical bartender, offering all sorts of advice on a number of subjects, may it be hair styles, fashion tips or wise words on family matters.

"I'm like a psychiatrist. There are some days I don't want to talk but you have to," she explained.

Barbershops and hair salons are renowned for colorful customers and their conversations and Men's Hi Style Salon is no exception.

Conversations and mini-debates are mainly focused on sports, politics and current events, Gail pointed out.

"I get a little tired talking about sports and politics all the time," she said, adding recent exhausted topics include the Super Bowl and the presidential election. Regardless of the content matter, Gail does her share of talking.

"I engage in any conversation that goes on here. I always voice my opinion to keep the conversation going. That's the way I am," she said.

There have been other female barbers at Men's Hi Style Salon besides Gail but they left for one simple reason.

"They couldn't put up with it. You need an all-around personality when dealing with men," she says.

"You can't always use nice talk; sometimes you have to use bad talk, too. In dealing with men, you have to have a personality like that," she explained.

As a female, Gail stands her ground in a male-dominated atmosphere. And the bottom line is she is well-liked and always respected by the men that frequent the salon.

"They treat me like a lady. They know me and they can kid around with me. It's all in fun."

Despite the enjoyment of working in a men's hair salon, Gail admits there are drawbacks.

"There are no benefits and you have to pay for your own tools. Also, you can work all day and not get a break," she said. Gail also said she sometimes must deal with inconsiderate customers and money problems can surface when the work pace slows down.

But perhaps the biggest drawback is the long hours she works on her feet. On busy days, Gail said she stands for eight or nine hours at least.

"Physically, it's too much on your legs. It's not good for your system. It is non-stop work and sometimes you can't eat lunch. It's really rough," Gail said.

Even on the "slow" days, Gail is still on her feet six or seven hours. And besides cutting hair, Gail cleans the salon and answers the phone.

But despite her hectic work pace, Gail still finds time to attend computer programming courses at Quincy Junior College.

"I wanted to try something different and I like it. Mentally, it makes my mind alert and it gives me something else to concentrate on."

Furthermore, Gail is thinking about getting a job as a computer programmer in the future while staying on as a part-time hair stylist.

Gail said she couldn't leave the hair styling business because she would "definitely miss it."

Navy Office May Close At Shipyard

March 17-23
35 Years Ago

Samuel Wakeman, general manager of Bethlehem Shipbuilding Division in Quincy, said that unless the Fore River Shipyard gets more Navy contracts the Navy's office at the Yard, opened in 1898, will have to be closed.

Meanwhile, George A. Daley Jr., chairman of the Quincy Shipbuilding Committee, asked the South Shore Congressional delegation for its help in obtaining a $12 million contract for refurbishing a Navy ship.

A spokesman for the shipyard, where 1,600 workers had been laid off since Jan. 1 following delivery of the USS Northampton, said Bethlehem would welcome the contract despite the fact that the yard was geared for work on new ships.

TAX RATE HEADED DOWN

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. estimated that Quincy's 1953 tax rate would be $48.80, a decrease of $5 from the previous year, after the City Council finished trimming and passed the city budget.

The Council vote was 6-1 with Councillor Carl W. Anderson in opposition. He said he approved everything in it except the $2,050 raise for the city manager which would hike his salary to $16,000.

New England Boiled Dinner

A Tried And True Recipe

Even though our Saturday night crew loves to eat out and relax over a leisurely dinner, I decided on a "pot luck" supper last Saturday with each of the guests bringing a surprise. One of the brothers, John, and sister-in-law Anita, brought this week's favorite meal, a boiled dinner. And you call that "pot luck!" Our family always made the traditional New England boiled dinner using smoked shoulder rather than anything else and after boiling the ham for a couple of hours a lot of the salt is out of it. Anyway they had this lovely arrangement of cabbage, carrots and potatoes surrounding the ham and then the soup made from all of this. Here is a tried and true recipe for a boiled dinner.

NEW ENGLAND BOILED DINNER
1 smoked shoulder
(4 lbs upwards to how much you need)
2 onions
1 large head of cabbage
4 or 5 good sized potatoes
4 carrots

Rinse the smoked shoulder, cover with water, and boil for at least two hours. I usually change the water after an hour. After that add all the vegetables and simmer for the next hour to hour and a half. It works out great this way and easy all in one big pan. Cut the cabbage in large hunks, the potatoes can either be left whole or cut in half. The carrots, peeled and cut in large pieces and also the onion. The blend of all of this needs no other seasoning. If you feel real ambitious you can make a corn bread to go with it. Not knowing what the other guests were bringing, my brother Phil and sister-in-law Teresa brought stuffed shells and homemade pizza. I made baked macaroni and cheese with pasta wheels and homemade baked beans. It was definitely a "pass the roll-aids night," but lots of fun!

Quincy Hospital Offers Community Health Screenings

In conjunction with its physician referral service, Quincy City Hospital is offering community health screenings, each Wednesday afternoon.

The screening consists of a comprehensive blood chemistry analysis, which will evaluate blood glucose, cholesterol, BUN, creatinine, calcium, hemoglobin and several other parameters.

A urine specimen will also be taken for analysis.

A registered nurse will review the results of the screening test with the patient. Copies of the test results will be given to the patient's personal physician. If the individual does not have a personal physician, the nurse will assist the patient in the selection of a physician through the Quincy City Hospital Doctor Directory (physican referral service). Incorporated into this referral is the matching of the patient's individualized medical needs with the specialty of the physician.

Community Health Screenings will be offered each Wednesday, from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the out-patient department. Date of the next screening is March 16. Patients will register for the testing through the Out-Patient Registration area in the Admitting Department. Fee for the screening is $10, and is due at the time of service. Cash, check or bank card are accepted for payment.

For additional information on the Community Health Screenings, the hospital's Diabetes Clinic or the free blood pressure screening clinics which are held regularly at the hospital, contact the Ambulatory Care Department at the hospital at 773-6100, ext. 3009, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

Domestic Violence

How Can You Protect Yourself Against Abuse?

Here are some of the ways that you can help to protect yourself from abuse.

- Leave home if you feel you are in real physical danger. If you think relatives may not want to help, call the police for assistance to a local shelter for battered women.
- Save evidence of the assault. Keep torn or bloodied clothing, go to the hospital for treatment and get copies of your treatment records. See if witnesses will testify.
- Report the assault to the police as soon as possible. They will investigate to see if they can make an arrest. In many cases under the new Domestic Violence Law we can. The police can also tell you about local assistance, counseling and shelters, and take you to the hospital. If you decide to leave your home temporarily, the police can stay while you pack your clothing and other personal items.
- Don't leave the children alone with the batterer. They may be in danger of abuse. Also, leaving them could constitute abandonment in the eyes of the court and hurt your chances of getting custody in the future.

Your Legal Rights Under The Abuse Prevention Act

A victim of violence by a family or household member has a right to:

- Receive emergency protective orders on a 24-hour basis from the District Court, such as an order restraining your attacker from abusing you, an order directing your attacker to leave your household, temporary custody orders, separate support and damages orders. These orders can be issued without filing for seperation or divorce and without the assistance of an attorney.
- Have the police serve any orders issued against the abuser.
- If a restraining order or vacate order is violated, this is a criminal offense and allows the police to arrest the abuser at the scene.
- There is no filing fee for protective orders and you do not need an attorney.
- If the court is closed and there is a substantial likelihood of immediate danger of abuse, the police officer present can contact a judge for you.
- You have the right to request any police officer to remain on the scene if you are in immediate danger to prevent further abuse.
- You have the right to request any police officer present to drive you to the nearest hospital for medical treatmant.
- You have the right to file criminal complaints for assault and battery, and threats, or other related offenses.

Many families have problems with physical or emotional abuse. DO NOT be ashamed or embarrassed to ask for help.

When a police officer responds to a domestic abuse problem he will file a DOVE report. This report will be sent to the Family Service Unit of Norfolk County. The Family Service Unit provides services and information for families experiencing domestic disturbances. The unit will be in touch with you by phone or letter within the next few days or you can contact them at 472-2515.

REV. WILLIAM McCARTHY, second from left, pastor of St. John's Church, Quincy Center, was presented 1988 James R. McIntyre Good Scout Award from Mrs. Sheila McIntyre at the recent Good Scout Party sponsored by the Massasoit Campers Association. Also shown are, Donald Gohl, last year's recipient, and Glen Buscher, co-chairman of the event.

THE BUELL FULLER Scout Award was presented to William Shaw, second from left, a Quincy resident and a 59-year veteran scouter, by John Fuller. The award was named in honor of John's twin brother, Buell, who along with John were two of the oldest active Scouters in the country. With them are Erik Nystrom, Scout executive for the Greater Boston Council, Harold Crowley, emcee.

At Good Scout Party

Fr. William McCarthy, William Shaw Honored

A Quincy priest and Life Scout along with a retired auto mechanic and Eagle Scout were honored recently at the Good Scout Party sponsored by the Massasoit Campers Association to benefit Camp Massasoit.

Presenting the James R. McIntyre Good Scout Award to Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church and Life Scout was Sheila McIntyre, honorary chairman for the party and wife of late James R. McIntyre, former mayor of Quincy, state senator, and later counsel to the Massachusetts Senate.

Each year the recipient of the award is a person who has demonstrated through his deeds a commitment to youth and his community and who by his life demonstrates a belief in the principles of Scouting. A native of Haverhill, Father McCarthy has served in parishes in Chelsea and Dorchester, before coming to St. John's Church in 1977. He has been a champion of the homeless and the less fortunate serving as a member of the Quincy Housing Authority, the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, the Quincy Teen-Age Mother's Group, a director of the American Red Cross, and the South Shore Council on Alcoholism.

Don Gohl, co-chairman of the party, stated: "Father McCarthy by his work with the homeless and the less fortunate of all ages has truly earned the reputation of being a Good Scout and is most deserving of the James R. McIntyre Good Scout Award."

In a surprise announcement, Co-Chairman Harold Crowley called upon John Fuller to present the first Buell Fuller Scout Award to William Shaw of Quincy, a 59-year veteran scouter.

The Buell Fuller Scout Award was named in honor of Buell Fuller who along with his twin brother John were two of the oldest active Scouters in the country. Buell died in December. The Buell Fuller Award will be presented annually to an individual who has given outstanding service to Scouting.

Shaw, a retired auto mechanic and Eagle Scout, began his Scouting career as a member of Troop 5, Braintree, in 1928. In 1933 he attained the Eagle Scout Award and later moved to Houghs Neck in 1935 where he served as Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 6 until 1946. Over the next 25 years he served as a commissioner, member of the advancement committee, den leader, and assistant Scoutmaster. He served as Scoutmaster of Troop 21 in Wollaston from 1971 until 1978 and at the same time carried out the duties and responsibilities of District Commissioner for Quincy and Milton. He later served as District Chairman and now keeps busy as chairman of the District Advancement Committee.

Shaw, in accepting the award, expressed his gratitude to the association and to John Fuller for an honor which equalled any honor he had received during his long scouting tenure.

Massasoit Campers Association President Glen Buscher of Squantum thanked the assembled audience for their generous support of Camp Massasoit which served generations of Quincy Boy Scouts as a summer camp before becoming a year-round camping facility for Scouts from throughout New England. Last year the camp hosted over 3500 Scouts and Scouters, the largest number of campers accommodated in its 60 year history.

Alice Zildjian, 93

Husband Headed Cymbal-Making Firm

A memorial service for Alice "Sally" Frances (Goodale) Zildjian, 93, of Hingham, a former milliner in Boston whose late husband, Avedis Armand Zildjian, brought the Zildjian cymbal-making firm to Quincy in 1929 will be held at a later date.

Mrs. Zildjian died March 6 at Queen Anne Nursing Home.

She lived in Dorchester and in Wollaston many years before moving to Hingham.

Mrs. Zildjian devoted herself to supporting her husband in the family business, and taking care of her family, according to her granddaughter, Deborah Zildjian.

Mrs. Zildjian and her husband were married 60 years before his death in 1979.

"Even though she wasn't active in the business she was always there in terms of emotional support for my grandfather," Zildjian said.

The cymbal firm was founded in 1623 by an alchemist in the Zildjian family in Constantinople, Turkey, who had discovered a method of treating alloys that gave cymbals a melodic sound.

The firm, which dominates the world market for cymbals, was moved from Fayette St., Quincy to Norwell Industrial Park in 1971.

Mrs. Zildjian "had a definite idea of what her role was and what she wanted to do" her granddaughter said. "But when she wanted to have a good time, she did.

"She had a very good sense of humor. She loved parties. She liked to entertain and to travel," Zildjian said.

She said Mrs. Zildjian learned to drive in late years when her husband bought her a Cadillac convertible. "She didn't know how to drive, but she learned how and we always used to make her bring the top down," her granddaughter said.

Mrs. Zildjian was a member of the Neighborhood Club in Quincy and the Florence Crittenton League in Boston.

She was a former drama chairman of the Wollaston Mothers' Club.

She is survived by two sons, Armand A. Zildjian of Hingham and Robert Zildjian of Norwell, seven grandchildren and four great-granddaughters.

Funeral arrangements were by the Downing Funeral Home, 21 Pond St., Hingham.

Memorial donations may be made to the Crittenton Hasting House, 10 Perkins Rd., Brighton, Ma., 02135.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"What a man thinketh, that is he," wrote an unknown philosopher of India in one of the ancient treaties known as the Upanishads. "This is the eternal mystery," he wrote. "Man becomes that of which he thinks."

Norman Vincent Peale puts it this way, "Any person who makes up his mind to be a strong and effective person and holds to that deep desire can be what he thinks. Life dares you to be that. Accept that dare and you can do it. Mobilize the powers of your mind, develop your faith, think positively every day all the way. If your goal is specifically conceived and firmly fixed in your consciousness, powerful influences out of the life force within you and around you will come to your aid. Don't reject but draw upon the tremendous power within the mind."

A negative, defeatist attitude toward life and its problems can only bring negative end results. A positive attitude toward life attracts positive results.

Yes, how you look at a problem, how you look at life, determines whether it will be happy, full, and rewarding, or gloomy, depressing, and unrewarding.

How are you looking at life today? ...

Arson Blamed For Fire At Site Of Earlier Blaze

An early morning fire Saturday at the Towne House Apartments, 151 Sea St., still under renovation from a four-alarm fire last June, caused an estimated $2500 damage and Quincy's fire chief says it was arson.

"The fires were definitely set," said Fire Chief Carl Valenti.

"There were three points of origin, two near the electrical service in the basement and one in apartment 107.

"There is no way they could have had three separate fires going at the same time (and not have it arson)," Valenti said.

The fires were discovered by the night watchman John Berry, according to the fire chief.

He notified assistant building superintendent Leo McSharri and the two men extinguished the basement fire, he said.

The fire department put out the fire in apartment 107 which is being used as a supply room for the electrical contractor, according to Valenti.

The first alarm came in at 3:37 a.m., and the all out was at 4:39 a.m., he said.

The fire at the building owned by Franklin Simon of Braintree is being investigated by the State Fire Marshal's office, Quincy Police, Quincy Fire Department and Fire Prevention Bureau.

Probable cause of the fire last year was listed as careless disposal of smoking material, according to Valenti.

The owner had just recently written to former tenants that he is now ready to rerent the apartments which were newly rebuilt and refurbished.

According to the letter, a May 1, occupancy is planned.

Teenagers Prepare Squantum First Church For Easter Season

Teenagers from The Way Up and their leaders worked around the First Church of Squantum Saturday to get the building and the grounds ready for the Easter season.

Twenty persons participated.

The Way Up is a specialized youth ministry that has been ministering for nearly 25 years to young people on the South Shore not involved in any church. It is a Christian missionary program.

The Way Up is sponsored by Protestant churches on the South Shore and throughout the state. Founder and director of The Way Up is the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, an American Baptist minister and the pastor of the First Church of Squantum. Leadership for The Way Up is provided by members of various South Shore churches, including the Squantum church.

According to Dr. Langevin, the initial phase of getting young people involved in the Christian programs of The Way Up often consists of work projects like the one in which the teens engaged Saturday in Squantum. Some of the teenagers participating in The Way Up have been involved with the juvenile court, have been in trouble at school or in the community, or have had family problems. Others have been in no trouble at all and enjoy the activities.

Dr. Langevin explained, "The idea of The Way Up is to get young people involved in constructive activities that also are fun, to provide them with friendship and some of the social services they need, and, if they are interested, to invite them to worship and learn about Christ."

The Way Up also provides chaplaincy services for several institutions in which young people are detained by juvenile courts in eastern Massachusetts.

At the First Church of Squantum Sunday, Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "A Very Personal Question."

Greeters for the morning were Cliff and Shirley Mason. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Kate MacRitchie and Sally Johnson.

Sunday afternoon the pastor met with the young people in the Covenant of Discipleship as a regular part of their preparation leading to membership in the church. They will meet with him Sunday at 9:15 a.m. for a special worship service and again at 4:30 p.m. for their weekly meeting.

The church is offering two different Lenten programs this year. The first group, which is studying "Contemporary Films and the Christian Faith," met Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. to discuss "The Trip to Bountiful" starring Geraldine Page. The film topic on March 22 will be "Places in the Heart" with Sally Field.

The other group, which is held Wednesday nights, is working through "Big Stories in the Old Testament." This week the group continued its study of the life of Moses. That study will conclude March 23. The group meets for supper at 6:30 p.m. and moves upstairs for discussion at 7:15 p.m.

The Chancel Choir is rehearsing Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays at 9:30 a.m. The Youth Choir meets to rehearse on Sunday mornings at 11:45 a.m. Mary Ruth Scott directs both choirs. The Board of Deacons and the Board of Trustees will each be holding their monthly meetings at the church Monday, March 21, at 7:30 p.m.

The schedule announced for Holy Week includes an all-member breakfast Palm Sunday March 27 and the traditional Palm Sunday service at 10:30 a.m., the Lord's Supper on Maundy Thursday March 31 at 7:30 p.m., an Easter Sunrise service (April 3) at 7:30 a.m. at Moswetuset Hummock, an Easter morning breakfast, and the traditional Easter service at the church at 10:30 a.m.

There will be two services: March 20, one at 9:15 a.m. for members of the Covenant of Discipleship and the other at 10:30 a.m. for the rest of the church. Sunday School meets during the service and a nursery is provided. Visitors are encouraged to attend.

'Suddenly A Cross' Sermon At Bethany Church

There will be two worship services Sunday, March 20, at Bethany Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, corner of Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

The chapel service is at 9 a.m. and the sanctuary service at 10 a.m.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach at both services on the topic "Suddenly A Cross" based on the Gospel of Luje 23:13-26.

Lay scripture readers will be Wendy Eng in the chapel and Sylvia A. Hofsepian in the sanctuary.

At the 10 a.m. service the Chancel Choir, under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, will present the anthem, "O Where are Kings and Empires Now?" by Croft.

The service is broadcast live at 10 a.m. direct from Bethany's sanctuary over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

In addition, a cassette tape of the service can be obtained for 12 by contacting the church office.

The associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will lead a weekend retreat for Bethany members and friends Saturday and Sunday, March 19-20. The retreat is being held at the Craigville Conference Center on Cape Cod.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. with classes for children of pre-school through eighth grade. Nursery care for babies is also provided as well as a toddler class for young children. Bethany's professional early childhood coordinator, Pamela Ford Curran, will supervise the care of infants through first grade.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor with light refreshments. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

On Wednesday, March 23, at 7 a.m. there will be a Lenten Devotional Service in the Bethany chapel. Theme of the weekly services is "The Twelve Christ Chose" examining the lives and work of the Apostles and the meaning of discipleship today. Rev. Huntington will give the meditation on "Jude and Judas," and lay leader Marsha Archer will offer prayer and read the scripture.

Following the 30-minute service, a light continental breakfast will be served in the parish house. Both the worship and breakfast are open to the public and people can leave for work or shcool by 7:45 a.m.

For additional information about Bethany's ministries or programs, contact the church office weekdays 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 479-7300.

At Encore Consignment It's Quality At The Right Price

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The sign at 66 Billings Rd., North Quincy, may read "Encore The Quality Consignment Shop" but inside it looks every bit like a new clothing store.

Step inside this neatly decorated, color coordinated and well-kept consignment shop operated by Gail Buccini and you'll find a full assortment of used but high quality clothing for children and women as well as many shoes, hand bags, hand-made crafts and jewelry.

And all at a good price.

At Encore, an arrangement is set up whereby a customer or consignee brings clothes to be sold by the shop, the consignor. Clothing is ticketed at a 50 percent consignment basis meaning if the product is sold, the consignee gets 25 percent and the consignor receives 25 percent of the sale price.

Gail says consigned clothing sells for about half at what it originally sold for, even if it's brand new.

As a result, those who have no use for old but quality clothing can bring it to Encore with a chance of selling it. And if you're in the market to buy clothing, you could very well find a bargain not found in any other store.

Encore accepts a limit of 10 items of clothing at a time only on consignment days and hours Wednesday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Gail, who has managed Encore Quality Consignment for eight years, emphasizes that all clothing must be brought in laundered or dry-cleaned, pressed and on hangers.

"We try to take the best of everything. Clothing must be clean and in good condition and quality," adding items must be in style and in season.

In addition, clothing can stay on the racks a maximum of 60 days. At the end of 30 days, items are reduced by 25 percent. Clothing left beyond 70 days becomes the property of Encore and is sent to a charity such as the Salvation Army or St. Vincent DePaul Society.

Gail says people who use a consignment shop should keep things in perspective. "People shouldn't expect too much. People come in here looking for bargains."

For those who do keep their perspective, they are bound to find a bargain at Encore. The consignment shop is literally full of high quality clothing, rack after rack. Some customers may even come across a bigger bargain than expected since Encore has a designer name section with such labels as Liz Claiborne, Chic, Sasson and Espirit.

Encore carries women's clothing size eight to extra large. Children's sizes range from infants to extra large. Near the front of the store is a hand bag and shoe assortment and in the rear is a jewelry collection along with a bric-a-brac displaying many used and new hand-crafted items.

Gail says Encore is suited for people who tend to change their "whole wardrobe around."

"It's ideal for people looking to add to their wardrobe because they have gained or lost weight. And children are always outgrowing clothes."

For Gail, her business pleasure comes from meeting and serving her customers. "It's interesting. The best part of my job is meeting the people."

And the numbers show that "We've had well over 4,000 people come into Encore since it opened," Gail says. Furthermore, the shop may receive as many as 1000 new items per week during its busiest times, notably the period from October to December and April to June.

Encore's clientele live in the Quincy-South Shore area as well as in surrounding towns. Gail added that she's had many out-of-state customers who buy and consign at Encore.

"The nicest part is the people I meet and the people I work with," she says smiling. Gail's more than able staff includes Debora Nigro, Marlene Stuart, Catherine Graham, Gloria Fantasia, Lynne Buccini (Gail's daughter who manages Purdy's Homemade Ice Cream Parlour), Laurie Powers and Diana Francis.

Encore is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The shop takes Master Card, Visa, personal checks and will hold items up to three days.

Over the years, both the staff and customers have grown closer together. Gail says "Many are repeat customers and a lot of them are like family. Some spend all day browsing and talking to us," she added.

"We have the nicest customers in the world. They go away very happy."

And come back even happier.

Take it to Accent Upholstery, 70 Billings Rd., North Quincy, where owner Paul Picariello will give it a fabulous "furniture facelift."

In fact, Paul, who has owned and operated Accent Upholstery for five years now, can upholster living room sets including chairs, love seats and sofas as well as dinette, kitchen and dining room sets.

Although upholstering can be tough manual labor, Paul enjoys his profession and finds it very rewarding. "I feel comfortable with it. First, you have to like people and second, you have to be honest with them," he said.

"Knowing a person comes in looking distraught but goes out looking happy and astonished after the job is completed makes it very rewarding. It's like bringing furniture back from the dead.

Furthermore, Paul never ceases to amaze his customers with the quality work he does day in and day out.

"Customers can never actually visualize their furniture until after it's finished. Most of the time they're satisfied more with what I give them rather than what they see new at a store," he says proudly.

And Paul has a right to be proud. He spends about 20 man hours (two days) upholstering chairs and 70 man hours (three and a half days) upholstering bigger jobs such as sofas. As for the majority of his work, Paul says he upholsters mostly living room furniture since that is used the most.

"People are amazed at what comes in looking like that (pointing to a very worn chair) can be turned into that" (pointing to a newly upholstered chair.) The difference is like night and day.

In addition, prospective new furniture buyers can save money bringing their old furniture to an upholsterer like Paul. "People thinking about getting new furniture should consider upholstery," he says.

To bring furniture "back to life," Paul performs several tasks. First, he checks out the frame to make sure it's solid. Next, Paul strips furniture down to the bare frame while checking out springs. Then, he replaces webbing and burlap and puts new padding in seats, cotton in arms and backs and foam rubber in cushions.

In addition to these steps, Paul repairs recliners that have broken rails, springs and also redowels frames.

Accent Upholstery is a "family oriented" business where Paul gets assistance from his wife, Susan, and their three boys: Paul Jr., 23, Craig, 18 and Michael, 15. Susan, who works full time for a mortgage company, does the bookkeeping. Paul Jr., a plasterer, Craig, a cabinet maker and Michael, a student-athlete at North Quincy High School, all help their father in the shop.

"It keeps the family close. If I need them, they're here to help me," Paul says.

As for being located in the North Quincy business district, Paul says he "loves it."

"People are very friendly. I get a lot of business from the walking traffic. Having a shop in North Quincy has been very rewarding to me," he says.

For anyone considering upholstery, Paul has this advice: "If the frame is structurally sound, it's well worth doing. Think of the frame, then picture what it would look like with a new fabric."

Accent Upholstery's clientele is centered around the Quincy-South Shore area but stretches as far as Danvers and Cohasset and beyond. Many are repeat customers because, as Paul notes, "If you have the right tools and the mind for the trade, 99 percent of the time it works out well and customers are satisfied."

If you're interested but unsure about upholstery, just call Paul and make an appointment for him to visit your home. There, he will inspect your furniture and give you the facts about upholstery.

And not only does Paul upholster all sorts of furniture, he counsels people who wish to try it themselves. "I know the ins and outs of upholstery."

Some popular trends in the upholstery business are mauve color tones as well as cotton and nylon fabrics. "Older type fabrics such as needle point are coming back, too."

Perhaps Paul's business philosophy best exemplifies his pride and quality work: "A piece of furniture is in here once and once only."

Ward 6 Highlights Democratic Action

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Three groups of candidates ran for the Ward 6 Democratic Committee for the first time in a number of years.

"It has happened in other wards," said Rep. Michael Morrissey, a member of Group 1 which was elected from Ward 6 in last week's election.

"Four years ago, Ward 2 had a challenge," he said.

"It was really interesting."

Timberlake In Key Role As B.U. Wins ECAC Conference

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Boston University basketball team clinched the ECAC North Atlantic Conference championship last Saturday at Harttord and an automatic berth in this week's NCAA championships with a 69-58 win over Niagara, and a hon's share of the credit must go to Quincy's Jeff Timberlake, junior co-captain, who has had a fantastic season.

Timberlake, the conference championship tourney MVP, who played his high school ball at Boston College High, where he holds the school's records for assists, will be a key for the Terriers, who face Duke Thursdas. This will be BU's first NCAA appearance since 1983.

Timberlake is BU's assist leader and is only two assists away from the school's single-season mark of 218.

He is second in the NAC in assists (an average of over 10 a game) and steals and ranks among the top ten in the conference's free throw shooters. In addition, he is averaging 10 points a game.

He has been feeding the Terriers' high scorers, Larry Jones, the NAC Player of the Year, and Dredenck Irving, a first team all-conference selection, throughout the year, and gained honorable mention All-NAC status.

In the first two conference championship tournament games, Canisius and Hartford bottled up Jones and Irving and Timberlake turned from feeder to scorer and scored a career-high 22 points in both games as the Terriers topped Canisius, 64-55, and Hartford, 82-73.

In the title win over Niagara he scored 12 points, giving him 56 in the tourney, including several three-point shots, and had 11 assists.

"Jeff has been our most vaulable player from the start of the year," said BU coach Mike Jarvis. "He is the key that has allowed Larry and Dredenck to enjoy such exceptional seasons.

Following his first 22-point game against Canisius, Jarvis said, "Jeff has some good scoring games when he's had to. The sign of a good player is to be flexible, but hopefully, he won't have to score 20 again against Hartford." Timberlake did score 22 again as Jones and Irving were pretty well tied up.

"It was easy for me because the shots I was making were wide-open jumpers," Timberlake said. "They were covering Larry and Dredenck and I had the open shots and they were falling."

The conference title, BU's first since 1982, ended three years of frustration for the Terriers. The last three years they made the finals but each time lost to Northeastern.

"Jeff came up to me before the Niagara game and said, "Today we'll be cutting down the nets and not watching the other players doing it.'"

Timberlake was skeptical about his chances of making the BU squad when Jarvis succeeded John Kuester as head coach three years ago.

And so was Jarvis, who had considered revoking Kuester's scholarship offer to Timberlake, who went largely unnoticed by college recruiters.

"Basically, I wasn't sure how he would fit in at BU," said Jarvis. "I didn't anticipate that he'd become one of our mainstays."

Not only has he become a BU mainstay, but what Jarvis calls "the glue to our team. He's not the fastest, nor the quickest, and he can't jump the highest. But his mental toughness, desire to win and court awareness--those are things you can't give to anyone."

What can Timberlake do next year to surpass what he has done during his first three years at Boston University?

Shea Wraps Up Spectacular Career At B.C.

By JACK DUNN

After a long season of seemingly endless bus rides and disappointing losses, the Boston College hockey team recently concluded its regular season at Lowell University.

In a year in which all "home" games had to be played on the road, due to the construction of a new arena, and the losses outnumbered the wins, (13-18-3) the season's one saving grace has been the exceptional play of senior co-captain Danny Shea of Quincy.

Shea had another outstanding year adding 52 points (21-31) to his career totals of 69 goals and 121 assists. He finishes fourth on the all-time Boston College scoring list, and first in assists. Shea is considered a leading candidate for All-American honors, and he has been mentioned as a consideration for the Hobby Baker Award, given to the best hockey player in the nation.

No one seems to appreciate Shea's outstanding play more than B.C. Coach Len Ceglarski, a former All-American and currently the winningest coach in NCAA history. "Danny was our best hockey player this year," said Ceglarski. "He was our team leader and the most consistent player on the ice."

Faced with an inexperienced team which had lost three of its starters to the U.S. Olympic Squad, Ceglarski was forced to rely more and more on Shea's experience as the season progresses. "Danny played in every possible situation this year," he said. "He played hurt, he played tired, he played short-handed and on the power play, and he never complained about a thing."

With the loss of Craig Janney, Brian Leetch and Greg Brown to the U.S. Olympic team, Shea was called on not only to provide veteran leadership, but to carry the scoring burden as well. She responded splendidly by leading the team with 20 goals, including one of two goals in the final 1:54 to beat fourth-ranked Harvard in the Beanpot consolation game. "That was definitely a thrill for me," said Shea, as "I felt that we had something to prove after being shut out by Northeastern in the opener."

DAN SHEA

Having something to prove has always been an obligation for Danny Shea. Shea came out of BC High an unheralded player in 1984 despite having set an all-time school scoring record of 124 points and being named Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic in his senior season. That same year, however, Shea was recruited by BC along with highly touted stars Ken Hodge of St. Johns Prep, Dan Kopecky of Austin Prep and Joe McEarchan of Matignon.

"I remember people telling me that I could never play at BC with the talent that they had there," said Shea. "I began to question myself for the first time in my life, but that just made me more determined to prove to everyone that I belonged."

By Shea's senior year Hodge and Kopecky had left the school, and McEarchan had quit hockey. Shea had emerged as the unquestionable leader, and one of the best players in Hockey east. With his aggressive play and non-stop hustle, Shea had also captured the hearts of hockey fans everywhere, and the respect of opposing players.

"Danny's a tough kid," said Ceglarski, admiringly. "He had the difficult task of leading a team that lacked the talent of past years, but he succeeded because the players respected him for his toughness and his determination."

After being invited to three U.S. Olympic Sports Festivals, Shea narrowly missed making the '88 Olympic Hockey Team. This past year, however, he was drafted by the Pittsburgh Penguins in the first round of the NHL supplemental draft. "I am really looking forward to trying out for the Penguins," said Shea. "Like any other New England kid who ever put on skates I've always dreamed of playing in the NHL."

The Penguins will invite Shea to their rookie camp this summer where he will have to overcome his greatest challenge--proving that he can play in the NHL. But having something to prove has become an expected part of the routine for Dan Shea, and this year, with a little luck, he just might prove once and for all that he belongs.

Quincy 7th, 8th Graders Win Tourney Titles

The second annual Presidents Youth Basketball Tournament ended last Sunday at the Vo-Tech gym with 18 teams fighting for a place in the finals.

The tourney, started last year by Quincy High coach John Franceschini, has three divisions, sixth, seventh and eighth grade boys, and Quincy won two titles and the third team was edged by a point in the semifinals.

The eighth grade team, led by Joey Crespi's 22 points and great play at guard, defeated Sharon, 51-44, for the championship. Center Jason Anderson chipped in with 17 points and pulled down an amazing 25 rebounds.

Point guard Dave Jolley was superb running the offense and scored 11 points and 'Mr. Steady,' Christian Ciavarro, was outstanding. Also playing were Mike Malvesti, Gary Collins, Chris Olsen, Jamie Arnstein, Paul Kearns, Dave Raftery, Mike Chiccino and Mark Zabrowski. The coach was Ron Mariano.

In the seventh grade final Quincy put on a show, leading by 17 points at one time and defeating Sharon, 51-46.

The backcourt duo of Sean Donovan (15 points) and Mike MacDonald (13 points) led a balanced attack throughout the game.

Mike Kavanaugh proved the big difference, controlling both boards throughout the game and scoring eight points. Robbie Kane and Pat Shea were defensive specialists throughout the week. Also playing for coach Bob Cochrane's team were Pat Clifford, Tim Byrne, Brad Douglas, David Bogan, Mike Staiti, Matt Fennessy and Matt Dwyer.

The sixth grade team dropped a 42-41 squeaker to Sharon in the semifinals.

Mike Kenny and Noel DiBona led the team all week. Brian McPartlin and Jason Fennessy led the attack, while Brian Raftery dominated the boards all week. Fourth grader Jeff Russell provided the fans with a few great offensive moves and three-point baskets. Also playing were Mike Lombardi, Marc Thibeault, Tom Foley, David Gunter, Chris White, John Green, Eric Zimmerman, John McLoughlin and Chris McPartlin. Cochrane also coached this team.

All three Quincy teams are playing this week in the Milton Youth Tournament at Milton High.

Franceschini was happy about the tournament and the development of the program. He thanked the tournament committee, Cochrane, Mariano and Quincy High assistant coach Ray Papile.

Quincy Girls Frosh Team Completes Good Season

The Quincy High girls' freshman basketball program was revived this season for the first time since 1984 and the young First Ladies had a good season.

Their record was 9-6, but several losses were in close games that could have gone either way. The highlight of the season was a come-from-behind victory over a strong North Quincy team, with a fine pressure defense enabling Quincy to overcome a 10-point deficit.

Offensively, Quincy, coached by Mary Holleran, a former North Quincy standout, relied on the precision outside shooting of Amy Baker and Erin Doherty.

Coming off the bench to give the team a needed lift were Jennifer Verlicco, Karen Dwyer, Keri Calhoun, Maureen Cully, Amy Chenette, Dale Parry, Vera Pepdjonovic and Joan O'Connor.

Helping out Holleran when they were available from the varsity and junior varsity teams were Jennifer Richmond and Christine Barrett.

"I was very impressed with the team's performance," said Holleran. "The girls showed a lot of pride, especially in the North Quincy game, and continued to improve steadily throughout the year."

Park Department To Meet With Managers, Coaches March 23

The Park-Recreation Board and Park Department officials will conduct the annual managers and coaches meeting on the use of municipal ballfields for the 1988 season Wednesday, March 23.

The meeting will be held at the Park and Recreation Complex Meeting Room, 100 Southern Artery, Merrymount Park, at 7:30 p.m.

Purpose of the meeting is to resolve any duplication of requests preceding the Monday, April 4, meeting when Park and Recreation Board members approve applications presented by baseball and softball leagues and teams.

Also discussed will be utilization of fields by adult softball teams and the problems created for neighboring property owners by indiscriminate parking, debris and lack of compliance with the rules and regulations governing the use of public park, playground and beach areas.

Raymond C. Cattaneo, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments noted the increasing interest in adult softball, youth soccer programs and the growing number of girl's and women's leagues that have developed over the past number of years.

All leagues must be represented at the meeting in order to assure a fair assessment of the permits that will be issued for the 1988 season.

St. Patrick's Day Plunge At Wollaston Beach

Swimmers from the New England Marathon Swimming Association will celebrate St Patrick's Day by diving into Boston Harbor.

The 12th annual St Patrick's Day swim will be held at Wollaston Beach today (Thursday) at 10 a.m.

Come on down and enjoy a nice cool St. Patrick's Day Plunge, invites Jack Tutt, a harbor swimmer and the organizer of the event. "It's a lot of fun with swimmers, music and refreshments" he adds.

Supporting the swimmers will be volunteers from the Boston Harbor Monitoring Program, a group of over 100 volunteers who test the harbor on a weekly basis in Boston and Quincy. These volunteers will be testing the water quality of the harbor for dissolved oxygen, salinity, temperature, and transparancy as part of a 10 year scientific study to compile a database on Boston Harbor. This study is lead by Mass Audubon Boston with the cooperation of six other environmental groups.

Betsy Johnson, Director of Mass Audubon Boston, notes "The water may be cold this Thursday, but in the winter dissolved oxygen levels are higher and coliform counts are lower than in the summer."

Although the swimmers will go in at Wollaston Beach today, after the end of May they take off for Nantasket Beach because the water becomes so polluted she said.

"Swimmers know about the pollution problems in Boston Harbor first-hand. The Boston Harbor Monitoring Program is a way for people to work towards a solution for a clean harbor while learning about it themselves," Johnson adds.

"Anyone interested in volunteering to make a difference for Boston Harbor can call us at Mass Audubon Boston, 367-1026, to find out more about the program."

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

Check Your Tires On Regular Basis

Checking your auto's tires on a regular basis is always critical, but especially now when temperature shifts can cause the pressure in the tires to vary dramatically.

AAA Massachusetts suggests investing in two gauges to ensure the accuracy of your readings.

"To make checking your tires as easy and accurate as possible, purchase two gauges: one that reads up to 40 pounds per square inch (psi) and another that reads 80 psi or more," says John F. Paul, AAA Massachusetts' manager of technical services and in charge of the AAA Automotive Diagnostic Center in Rockland. "Use the 40 psi gauge to check your tires and the 80 psi gauge to check your temporary spare, which probably requires higher pressure than standard tires."

Proper tire pressure is printed in your car owner manual and on the sidewall of the tire.

Study New Car Owner's Manual

To get the best performance and most enjoyment out of your new car, spend some time studying your owner's manual, says AAA Massachusetts.

Owner's manuals include valuable information on how to operate controls, make repairs and use safety equipment.

"New-car owners should familiarize themselves with the owner's manual," says John F. Paul, AAA Massachusetts' manager of technical services and in charge of the AAA Automotive Diagnostic Center. "Reading it from cover to cover and marking key pages with paper clips is the best way to begin. Some things in the manual can be understood best while actually sitting in the car and working the controls."

A lost owner's manual usually can be replaced by contacting either the manufacturer or the dealer's parts department. Manuals for cars up to 10 years old generally are available.

Road Grime A Car Culprit

Wet highways and melting snow cause road grime and salt build-up on cars and pose a safety hazard to motorists as well as being harmful to automobiles.

"You can solve this winter problem by washing your car often," said John F. Paul, AAA Manager of Technical Services and in charge of the Triple-A Automotive Diagnostic Center in Rockland. "Don't wait for spring rains to wash off salt and grime. Sponge off your car frequently and hose off the entire underside where salt accumulates. Pay special attention to the undersides of bumpers and fenders.

"Although newer model cars are designed to withstand rust, moisture and road salt sticks to auto bodies and corrosion begins," explained Paul. "Good car care is important year-round, but New England winters require extra effort!"

AAA Road Safety Tips

Fight fatigue and drowsiness at the wheel. Triple-A suggests you wear lightweight, loosely-fitted clothing and keep a flow of fresh air coming into your car.

Snow and ice at intersections are "traffic polished" and very slippery. Slow down well before reaching corners.

To prevent front-end tire damage, slow down on rough surfaces, steering clear of potholes. Water-filled potholes are deceptive - they may be deeper than they look.

Never start your car in a closed garage - carbon monoxide gas from the car's exhaust is poisonous and can't be detected until it's too late.

Don't be a peep hole driver. Remove ice and snow completely from windshield and rear mirror. And don't forget the side windows.

Unlocking Ice Miseries

Slush, sleet, and freezing rain can cause problems for motorists even before they get behind the wheel, but AAA Massachusetts says those troubles can be avoided by thinking ahead.

"Frozen emergency brakes and door locks can be among the most common auto ailments," said John F. Paul, AAA Massachusetts manager of technical services and in charge of the AAA Automotive Diagnostic Center in Rockland.

"When you park your car after driving in slush or sleet, don't set the emergency brake unless absolutely necessary--turn the wheels in toward the curb," he suggested.

Should you find your brake has frozen, it sometimes can be freed by driving a few feet in reverse. If this is not possible, Paul says the cable under the car must be allowed to thaw.

"To prevent frozen door locks, carefully put a strip of adhesive or plastic over the keyhole, treat the locks with antifreeze lock compound, and spray a silicone coating around the doors and glass seals," the AAA official said. "To open a frozen lock, just heat the key with a match or lighter before inserting it into the lock. If you find your doors frozen shut, pound the edges with the heel of your hand."

As always, read your owner manual before attempting to open a frozen lock. Some manufacturers use plastic lock mechanisms which can be damaged with heat and certain lubricants. And remember - don't operate a power window until the top edge is free of ice.

PRAYER OF APPLICATION TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, who light all roads so that I can attain my goal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and who in all instances of my life are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you and even in spite of all material illusion, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Repeat this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the favor will be granted even though it may appear difficult. McCauley Prods Council On Sewer Use Fee

Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday that the City Council should have acted by now on the sewer user fee he proposed in his inaugural address in January.

"If we don't get the sewer user fee, we'll have to use our reserves now to balance the budget.

"I'd like to have a better view of the city's financial picture for fiscal 1989," he said.

McCauley's comments came after the council's ordinance committee failed to take action on the proposal Monday night.

After a brief, 15-minute discussion of abatements, the matter was left in committee.

"Councillors need more time to digest the information," said Councillor Michael Cheney, Ordinance Committee chairman.

"I hope the matter will be resolved quickly," he said. "The mayor is preparing the budget.

"It's important that we take some action in the very near future.

"I encourage councillors to read all the information, and it will be discussed at length at the next Ordinance Committee meeting," he said.

Cost to the typical family of four in Quincy would be about $95 this year.

"We have to have lead time if we are going to implement it," said McCauley.

Quincy Hospital's Special Procedures Suite In full Operation

Dr. Frederick S. Keller, professor and director, Angiography and Interventional Radiology of the Department of Radiology at the University of Alabama Medical School at Birmingham, recently paid a visit to Quincy City Hospital, to view how the hospital's unit functions.

According to the Siemens Company, Quincy City Hospital has the only Special Procedures and Digital Subtraction Angiography Suite in operation in the United States.

Dr. Norman Sorkin, M.D. of the Quincy City Hospital Radiology Staff, said "Our angiography suite is equipped with the latest in technology that is unsurpassed. Some of that is unsurpassed. Some of the capabilities of this new room include one of the finest digital subtraction angiography units, the ability to image in any plane, bi-plane filming, and a unique device so as to make peripheral angiography simpler on even the most difficult cases. The equipment will greatly enhance the scope and quality of the diagnostic and interventional procedures available to the residents of the South Shore."

Fate Of Great Hill Water Tank Topic For HN Council

The future of the Great Hill water tank at Houghs Neck will be the subject at a meeting of the Houghs Neck Community Center Council March 24 at 7 p.m.

The meeting to be held at the Houghs Neck Community Center is a postponed meeting of the Community Council in cooperation with Ward 1 Councillor Michael J. Cheney. It is the regular meeting night of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and the Citizens Advisory Committee.

There has been a proposal to remove the tower, a Houghs Neck landmark erected in 1914.

Quincy Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson will make a presentation on existing conditions and future plans for the water tank.

The meeting is open to the public with Great Hill area residents particularly urged to attend.

Frosty Frolics

BABY, IT'S COLD, but members of the New England Marathon Swimming Association took it in stride during the 12th annual St. Patrick's Day plunge. Supporting the swimmers were volunteers from the Boston Harbor Monitoring Program, a group of over 100 volunteers who test the harbor on a weekly basis for such things as dissolved oxygen and salinity in Quincy and Boston. Water temperature was 40 degrees.

City, Union Reach Contract Agreement

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A tentative, three-year contract agreement was reached Monday night between the city and the 425-member local unit of the Hospital, Library and Public Employees Union, officials from both sides announced.

The tentative agreement will be presented shortly to the general membership for ratification.

"It is pretty much in line with the so-called 'police package' and the agreements with other unions," said Mayor Francis McCauley.

The police contract was the first one settled, McCauley explained.

The contract with the local HLPE union, Quincy City Employees Union, will be retroactive to July 1, 1987 and will run until June 30, 1990, said McCauley.

It is expected to be ratified by the membership, according to John Keefe, HLPE executive director.

The contract calls for a 3 percent raise July 1, 1987; two percent raise June 30, 1988, six percent raise Jan. 1, 1989, and 6 percent raise Jan. 1, 1990.

"It's a little bit lean in the first year, but the second two years are a bit better," said Keefe.

According to Keefe, a major stumbling block in negotiations was the city's proposed deletion of 67 positions from the union.

"The agreement doesn't call for the union to give up any city employee bargaining rights," said Keefe.

"Once the city conceded, we were able to reach a settlement," he said.

In addition, the union received such things as increases in night shift and weekend differentials, longevity, uniform allowances, and car allowances for city employees who drive their own cars on city business.

"I'm relieved," said Keefe. "Negotiations have been going on since February, 1987."

McCauley noted that last week, a contract was settled with the teacher aides.

"That leaves three unions," McCauley said, "the fire department, police superior officers and health department nurses.

"Things are moving right along."

Labor Takes Issue On QHA Appointment

The Norfolk County Labor Council and Building Trades Council, through the AFL-CIO, will seek an opinion from the Attorney General's Office on Mayor Francis McCauley's recent appointment of a labor representative to the Quincy Housing Authority.

"Carmine D'Olimpio is not the issue," said D'Olimpio, who was not reappointed after 15 years as a Quincy Housing Authority board member.

James P. McDonald was appointed instead.

"The issue is the process," said D'Olimpio, business agent for the Bricklayers and Allied Craftsmen Union of Quincy for 28 years and president of the Quincy and South Shore Business Trades Council for 20 years.

"The mayor did not follow the process as proscribed by statute," he said. "The selection process was flawed."

Mayor Francis McCauley disagrees.

"We complied with the rules and regulations set down by statute," said McCauley.

The mayor said he wrote to the Teamsters and Central Labor Council Jan. 11, informing them that he would not be reappointing D'Olimpio.

"I reappointed him in 1983.

"But it's good to give someone else a chance."

McCauley said he asked both organizations to submit names for the position.

He said he received two names from the Teamsters about Jan. 25, including McDonald's, but none from the Central Labor Council.

According to McCauley, the law states that the mayor must choose from a list of two to five names, or wait 60 days if he receives no names.

"We did get two names from the Teamsters," said McCauley.

"We did the job properly. I discussed it with the city solicitor.

"McDonald has an excellent labor background," he noted.

D'Olimpio said that, according to law, the appointment must be made "from a list of not less than two or more than five names representing different unions."

"The mayor said that two names were recommended, but they were from a single union, (not different unions)," D'Olimpio said.

D'Olimpio also contends that the lists may be submitted within 60 days after a vacancy occurs, and his appointment did not expire until Feb. 28.

"Accordingly, the list of names from the Central Labor Council and the Teamsters must be submitted on or before April 28, 1988," stated Atty. Paul F. Kelly in a legal opinion for the Quincy and South Shore Building Trades Council.

At Kelly's suggestion, the City Council recently moved to reconsider its earlier confirmation of McCauley's appointment.

But McCauley said that can't be done.

"It was an improper motion to reconsider," he said.

"The appointment stays."

McCauley Defends Mayor, Council Raises

"It's always difficult to propose to raise your own salary," said Mayor Francis Mccauley.

"It looks self serving," he said.

"But I don't think a chief executive would be overpaid at $55,000 in 15 months."

McCauley's proposals to raise, in two steps, the salaries of the mayor from $50,000 to $55,000 a year, and City Councillors from $9,000 to $10,000 a year, will be included in the city budget proposed for fiscal 1989.

The budget will be presented to the City Council for its consideration April 4.

A separate order will be sent along with the budget proposing to raise the salaries of school committee members from $2,400 to $5,000 a year.

That raise was proposed by school committee vice chairperson Mary Collins, and was unanimously adopted by the committee, McCauley said.

"They have responsible jobs," said McCauley, "they put in a lot of time, particularly during negotiations.

"That's a reasonable amount of money."

McCauley noted that "years ago, the school committee was never paid."

The City Council raises would be in increments of $500 effective Jan. 1, 1989, and July 1, 1989.

The raise for mayor would be $3,000 Jan. 1, 1989 and $2,000 July 1, 1989.

"A law stipulates that salaries can't be increased in the year they are passed," he said.

If the salary for mayor is increased to $53,000 Jan. 1, at least five department heads will still be paid more, he said.

They are city auditor, $53,630; data processing head, $54,171; fire and police chiefs, $63,012; and school superintendent about $70,000.

McCauley noted that in the 1960s, the salary for mayor was only $10,000, but that the officials also held other positions.

Tax Bills In Mail Next Week

Second half property tax bills should be in the mail the beginning of next week, and possibly earlier, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

The city was scheduled to start printing the bills Tuesday night, he said.

They will be due May 1, said McCauley.

First Sunday Dancing Permit

James McGettrick, owner of Nostalgia, 797 Quincy Shore Drive was the first applicant to receive permission by the city's License Board to hold Sunday dancing.

According to McGettrick, the nightclub has had dancing during the week for 29 years and there have not been any problems.

"I always hire a detail police officer and for Sunday I will have two officers," he said.

Board members agreed that because there has not been any problem in the past, permission should be granted.

In addition to seeking permission McGettrick must pay $100 for the license which is good for one year.

Last week the board eased a ban which prohibited dancing on Sunday in Quincy. But dancing establishments must still go before the board for permission.

Police Chief Francis Finn said, "We (the Board) want to control it (Sunday dancing) to some degree."

Asbestos Being Removed From Old Courthouse

Old asbestos pipes are being removed from the former Quincy District Courthouse which is scheduled to be demolished soon to make way for the $54 million Presidents' Place project in downtown Quincy, an official said.

The old courthouse building had been used by Quincy Junior College for classes.

Classes are now being held in a new building constructed nearby by one of the project developers, the Ricciardi Co. of Quincy. The project is also being developed by Campanelli Industries of Braintree and the Boston Five Cent Savings Bank.

It will include a 10-story residential condominium building, five and eight story commercial buildings and four-level parking garage.

According to James Lydon, project manager for the Ricciardi Co., the asbestos pipes are being removed by a contractor with a certificate from the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

"The workers will wear special protective wear," said Lydon, former Quincy planning director, "and the material is sealed in containers.

"It is brought to a hazardous waste dump.

"You can't do significant demolition work until you remove the hazardous material," said Lydon, who estimated the removal would be done this week.

The next step will be removal of portions of the building to be salvaged, according to Lydon.

"That will be particularly the granite work, and interior fixtures which might have value," he said.

"The pillars at the front of the building will be used for the entrance to the office building," Lydon noted.

"It's difficult to pin things down to a time schedule," he said. "It's a time consuming process.

"The whole thing will come down in a couple of months.

Lydon noted that the basement has been dug for one of the office towers.

Holbrook Man Charged With Quincy Woman's Murder

A Holbrook man is being held without bail at the Norfolk County Jail in Dedham after pleading innocent at his arraignment Monday in Norfolk County Superior Court in connection with the December, 1986 murder of Lois Damon, of Quincy, co-owner of a Braintree convenience store.

William F. Buckley, 35, of Lantern Rd., Holbrook, was arrested March 18 and charged with first-degree murder, assault with intent to rape and armed robbery. Buckley was ordered held without bail by Judge Mel I. Greenberg.

A pre-trial conference is scheduled for April 6.

A Norfolk County grand jury failed to indict Buckley last December, but when it was convened last week, it found "probable cause" to indict him. Assistant District Attorney Judith Cowen did not comment after the arraignment about what might have changed the grand jury's finding.

"This has been an accumulation of painstaking police work. There was not the so-called big break," Cowen said.

Damon, who was the mother of two children, co-owned the Dairy Mart Convenience Store on Hayward St., Braintree, with her husband, William.

"The extreme viciousness and heinousness of this crime staggers the imagination," Cowen said in arguing against bail for Buckley. "He killed a 31-year old woman who was the mother of two little babies."

Buckley's attorney, Paul Carroll, who asked the bail hearing be held postponed until Friday, questioned the strength of the prosecution's case against his client.

"The facts may not be enough to support a conviction," Carroll said.

Buckley was held at the Foxboro State Police barracks over the weekend after his arrest.

Sources familiar with the case said Buckley was a regular customer at the Dairy Mart where Damon was found murdered 15 months ago.

The sources said Buckley killed Damon and stole the store's lottery receipts to pay off a drug debt.

McCauley Expects $109,772,573 Budget

Mayor Francis McCauley said he expects to submit a municipal budget of $109,772,573 for fiscal 1989 April 4 to the City Council for its approval.

The council will have 45 days to act on the budget which will go into effect July 1. It can reduce the budget, but not add to it.

The budget is considerably larger than last year's $96,058,260 which was passed by the council.

Among the items which raised the budget were salaries, $6.3 million; Blue Cross Blue Shield, $1.8 million; and pensions, $470,000, said McCauley.

"State aid is also down," noted McCauley.

Chretien To Hold Public Meetings On Traffic

Ward 3 City Councillor Larry Chretien will hold public meetings March 29 and 30 onb traffic safety and congestion within the area bounded by Newport Ave., Beale St. and West Squantum St.

The first meeting will take place Tuesday, March 29, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the Wollaston School gymnasium.

The second meeting will take place Thursday, March 31, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the Montclair Men's Club on Holbrook Rd.

In attendance at both meetings will be Capt. William Murphy of the Police Department and David Kinnecom, the city's traffic engineer.

Chretien said, "A recent study has shown that the area between Beale St. and West Squantum St. is one of the worst in Quincy in terms of traffic. In order to best address the problem, we in city government need the public's input. I encourage residents to attend either or both meetings."

Prayer Service At Marina Bay On Vietnam Veternas Day March 29

Developers and friends of Marina Bay, in association with the Quincy Vietnam Veterans Combined Armed Forces, will host a Prayer Service on Vietnam Veterans Day, Tuesday, March 29, at 5 p.m.

The prayer service, which will honor all Vietnam Veterans of Quincy who served in the Vietnam War, will take place in front of the Marina Bay Memorial Clock Tower, North Quincy.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley will be joined by other local and state-wide dignitaries to mark the occasion.

The Marina Bay Memorial Clock Tower was dedicated last fall to the men and women of Quincy who are still missing in action or who died while serving in the Vietnam War.

The 132-foot, gold-lead domed memorial, fone of the first privately funded memorials of its kind, is also inscribed with the history of Marina Bay and a quote from the late President John F. Kennedy.

The public is invited, and encouraged, to attend the tribute and commemoration to those Quincy veterans who served in the Vietnam War.

The quote on the Marina Bay Memorial Clock Tower from the late President, John F. Kennedy is, "A nation reveals itself not only by the men it produces, but also by the men it honors, the men it remembers."

New Logo Contest For Quincy Trail

The contest will officially begin Friday, April 1 and end Saturday, April 30.

With the exception of members of the Quincy Tourism Association, Inc., the contest committee and their families, the contest is open to any Quincy resident of any age.

Association President Loren Strout, said:

"The contest is being held to select a logo for the Quincy Historic Trail, because a two-year study of the trail by the association has found the trail to be poorly identified by the present signs for the trail.

"A proposal has been submitted to Mayor Francis McCauley, City Council President Patricia Toland, and chairman of the City Council's committee on Tourism, Timothy Cahill, that describes the recommendations of the association, which includes brand new signs of different design and color for the historic trail," Strout said.

"The logo will appear on signs relating to the Quincy Historic Trail, and will play an important role for years to come, in that it will help anyone trying to travel the trail to identify easily.

"The association is giving serious consideration to using the logo on any printed material that relates to the Historic Sites and the Trail that they are all a part of."

Contest entry forms with rules and instructions will be delivered throughout the city. Some locations are City Hall Tourism Information Desk and the Quincy Historical Society on Adams St.

Or you write Quincy Tourism Association, 853 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02170 - Attn: Contest. Entry forms will also be available at the following participating member businesses:

Three winning entries will be selected: First prize $150, second prize $75, and third prize, $50.

The association plans to announce the winners within 30 days of the closing date of the contest, and prizes will be awarded within 90 days of the close of the contest.

Strout added: "Here is a chance for someone to leave his or her mark on the City of Quincy. It is expected that the logo will be used for years to come, and viewed by thousands of tourists and local residents, from the present to the future!"

Bite The Bullet

Will the five-vote opposition bloc in the City Council stand firm to reject Mayor Francis McCauley's second attempt to give the mayor and city councillor's four-year terms?

McCAULEY

There's been a little arm-twisting going on behind the scene by proponents hoping to get one of the five to switch over to their side before the final showdown vote probably April 4.

McCauley who got sacked two years ago trying to run four-year terms through the City Council now is making another bid, this time as a referendum question play.

He has noted that no sooner does a mayor get elected than he has to start thinking of running for re-election.

It takes time away from his duties as mayor, he says. And, he says, the trend is toward four-year terms in most parts of the country.

The opposition, in effect, says that Quincy -- not other parts of the country -- is their main concern and four year terms don't fit Quincy.

The City Council's Ordinance Committee at its March 8th meeting voted 5-2 that McCauley's proposal "ought not to pass."

Voting against it in committee were Committee Chairman Michael Cheney, Timothy Cahill, Thomas Nutley, Charles Phelan and James Sheets.

Voting for it were Ted DeCristofaro and Larry Chretien.

Not present for that vote were Council President Patricia Toland and Steve McGrath, both of whom have indicated they are in favor of putting the question on the ballot although both voted against four-year terms two years ago.

McGrath is expected to be a candidate for mayor in 1989. Toland says she's not interested in being mayor but is a candidate for state representative.

Unless someone's mind is changed, the final vote would be 5-to-4 against the four year terms.

The opposition feels that the mayor and councillors should be accountable to the people every two years and that four year terms make holding office a convenience for incumbents who can "coast" two or three years of a four-year term.

Proponents insist all they are doing is letting the voters decide.

Opponents counter that the voters did not initiate the proposal and that they -- the City Council -- should have the courage to make the decision and not toss it into the laps of the voters who never asked to have it tossed to them in the first place.

CHENEY

"I don't hear any great outcry for it," says Cheney. "If petitions with the names of 2,000, 4,000 or 5,000 voters were submitted to the City Council, I might think differently. But this was originated in the mayor's office, not by the people."

He and others -- like Cahill, Nutley and Phelan -- think that if a councillor votes for the proposal it will be interpreted that he (she) is in favor of the four-year terms rather than just voting to put the question on the ballot.

"The trouble with four year terms," says Cahill, "is that if the people want a change in office, they would have to wait four years to make it. Now they only have to wait two.

CAHILL

"If a mayor or councillor is doing his job right, he or she can virtually stay in office as long as he wants.

But if you have four year terms it would be like having the same people in office forever."

Cahill thinks the four-year term is too much a convenience for the incumbent. He notes it also gives them a lot of time to run for other offices between four-year terms.

"It also," he says, "makes an office holder less responsible to his constituents."

PHELAN

Phelan, a first year councillor, says he has talked with constituents in Ward 5 and failed to find a good reason for putting the question on the ballot.

Nutley says he feels a mayor and councillor should be accountable to the people every two years and that the council should vote on this matter and not pass it off onto the people.

NUTLEY

"We're here (in the council) to make the tough decisions," he says. "I'm very strong for the two year term."

Chretien, in his freshman term, says that changes in the way government operates should be decided by the people.

CHRETIEN

DeCristofaro says he personally opposes the four-year terms proposal but is voting to put it on the ballot.

Neither Toland nor McGrath has publicly made a stand on the issue this second time around although both have indicated they favor the question going on the ballot.

DeCRISTOFARO

Two years ago, both opposed the four-year terms when they were first proposed by McCauley.

The proposal was shot down 8-1 with only DeCristofaro voting for it.

"If it ain't broken, don't fix it?" said McGrath at that time.

McGRATH

He meant the present Plan A city charter calling for two-year mayoral and city council terms is working just dandy. So why tinker with it?

This year's proponents reportedly are working the hardest on Sheets to get him to switch his vote.

TOLAND

Cheney, Cahill, Nutley and Phelan have taken a stronger stand against the four year terms and putting the question on the ballot than Sheets has.

Sheets who voted against the four year terms two years ago, earlier this year indicated he favored putting the question on the ballot but voted against it in Ordinance Committee.

SHEETS

"The mayor made a good case for a four-year term for the chief executive," he said. "But I don't see a lot of sense putting it on the ballot if there is no support for it."

Sheets probably got a little extra tugging from both sides the past few days -- not at City Hall but in Washington D.C.

He and five other councillors attended the National League of Cities Legislative Weekend from Saturday through Tuesday.

Making the trip with him were McGrath, Toland, DeCristofaro, Nutley and Cahill.

Can't you hear it now?

"Come on over with us, Jim," from McGrath and Toland.

"Stay with us Jim," from Cahill and Nutley.

You can argue for or against four-year terms.

But there is one fact in this proposal that is not debateable.

The four-year terms proposal was born in the mayor's office and not among the grass roots of the people. And incidentally he is the only mayor in Quincy's history to push for four year terms. Two year terms were enough for the likes of Thomas Burgin, Charles Ross, Amelio Della Chiesa, James McIntyre and others who served in recent history and had to be accountable to the people every two years.

The people have not asked that this question be put on the ballot. And if it is, it would be putting the cart before the horse.

It would seem the City Council should bite the bullet and make the decision and let the people know where they really stand.

And not try to lob it like a hot potato to the people who haven't asked to handle it.

Each of the nine councillors should stand up and be counted or whether he or she is for or against four-year terms and not duck behind a "let the people decide."

The people apparently want them to decide. And they should.

Women In A ~~Man's~~ World

Barbara DiNatale:

Quincy's First Woman Police Officer Now Assistant Court Prosecutor

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Quincy Police Detective Barbara DiNatale wanted to be a police officer from the time she was a young girl.

"Four cousins of my father were Boston Police officers," said DiNatale, who grew up in Milton and continues to live on the South Shore.

"They made it sound really interesting," she said.

But it's doubtful the experiences of her relatives were any more interesting than her own career turned out to be as Quincy's first woman police officer.

Since joining the Quincy Police Department as a provisional officer in 1972, her assignments have ranged from working undercover on a narcotics unit, to developing a system of specialized response for rape situations, to her work now as assistant Quincy Police prosecutor at Quincy District Court.

"I love it," said DiNatale, who before her current assignment had worked for 13 years in the juvenile department at the courthouse.

"I've always enjoyed working with children," she said.

"But there was a burn-out factor. I did a lot of sexual abuse cases.

"Adult cases are less involved. Most of the emotional issues are dissipated. This is a good change," she said.

As assistant police prosecutor with Lt. Donald Riley for almost two years, DiNatale works on arraignments, bail hearings, clerk's hearings, and some conferences.

"I handle anything short of trials," she said. "All the Quincy criminal cases."

About 50 percent involve motor vehicles, she said, and the rest are such things as larcenies and assault and batteries.

Getting a conviction isn't always the most important thing in less serious cases, said DiNatale.

"If something positive was done, if whatever problem there was was solved, then justice was served," she said.

DiNatale said that at the courthouse she is working with more and more women from other police departments.

"They're not in great numbers, but it is increasing," she said.

That wasn't the case when she first joined the Quincy Police Department.

She was the only woman officer, though there had been a policewoman position, with diminished responsibilities a few years before.

In 1975, when she was sworn in as a permanent officer she was joined by Linda Sparks, and two weeks later, Kathleen Roche, all now detectives. Officer Susan Perch is now a member of the department as well.

"It was intimidating for the men as well as for me," said DiNatale of her early days with the department.

"It changed the way police work was perceived.

"They saw it as very threatening."

Though it was uncomfortable for her at first, she never thought of quitting.

"I felt bad initially," she said. "A whole group of people didn't like me.

"They thought I was taking something away from them. I was a symbol of what they were losing.

"But I don't ever remember being harassed."

Now, most of the men welcome working with women, she said.

"Half the population is made up of women, and it is important that they have representation.

"Women and men bring certain unique qualities to police work," said DiNatale.

"Women don't have the same physical strength as men," she explained.

"But about 80 percent of police work is service oriented, and about 20 percent law enforcement.

"It's not the image that is portrayed on TV.

"Many officers were told in police academies that they were crime fighters.

"But a majority of calls involve such things as domestic violence, child abuse, lost children, barking dogs, neighborhood disputes.

"It's important that officers receive training in those areas.

"For years, there was no training, particularly in domestic violence.

"Proper intervention takes a lot less time than arresting someone and making out a report, and you're less apt to have to go back and answer the same call the next day.

"Police Chief Francis Finn made a big commitment towards such training," she said.

Crisis Intervention and Conflict Management was initiated in Quincy in 1978, according to DiNatale who developed the program.

"I've always been interested in social issues, and ways the police could make a positive response to social issues," she said.

DiNatale also developed a system of specialized response to rape situations.

"All detectives are schooled in how to interview rape victims," she said. "It's important for a woman to be involved."

"A woman can't offer a sense of protection like a man, but there are certain details a victim might be embarrassed to reveal to a male.

"Those details might be important in the investigation."

For six months starting in September, 1978, she was on loan from the department to DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) where she was the first executive director for the organization which set up a home for battered women and their children.

"I had been a volunteer member, but they needed someone full-time to coordinate things from volunteers to meals," DiNatale explained.

"The first shelter opened over the Labor Day weekend and we had three families."

Mayor Arthur Tobin arranged for space in the Gordon House at Quincy City Hospital, and the hospital provided meals, DiNatale said.

"It was a different situation at DOVE," she said.

"I didn't tell the clients that I was a police officer in case they had had prior negative experiences with the police.

"They might feel threatened."

DiNatale, who never worked as a uniformed officer, said the best part of her job is the people.

"It's a people-oriented job," she said. "The skills you develop are people-skills from talking and dealing with people.

"You get a real sense of satisfaction working things out.

"I find it very challenging, and it doesn't get boring."

A graduate of Wheaton College with a bachelor's degree and Northeastern University with a master's degree in criminal justice, her family was at first upset with her career choice.

"They thought I would be hurt," she explained.

Though she has been in some dangerous situations, she has never been seriously injured, DiNatale said.

"You have to rely on your insights and training on how to respond," she said.

Police work is an excellent career for a woman, said DiNatale, who was promoted to detective after about a year on the job.

"Things are always changing," she said.

"Every day is different than the day before.

"You see things the majority of the population doesn't see.

"It's a real slice of reality."

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin announced he would be a candidate for re-election, thus setting up a ballot box confrontation in the fall with former Mayor Charles A. Ross, the only other announced candidate.

Burgin, who had never been defeated for public office, was first elected to the City Council at age 21, served as Council President at 25 and was elected Mayor in 1935 and re-elected in 1936 by the largest margin in history.

'Travels With Jesus' Sermon Topic At United First Parish Church

The Palm Sunday sermon at historic United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents," is entitled "Travels with Jesus."

To be delivered by Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, the sermon will have as its theme the humanity of Jesus and the significance of his teachings for modern life.

Norman Corey will play organ works by Bach, Walcha, Bolyce and Pachelbel. Jim Van Doren and Tom Hurlebus will serve as ushers, and Kendra Kilraith will host the social hour following the service.

Members of the congregation will bring "Guest at Your Table" boxes to which they have been making donations throughout Lent. These will be received during the morning offering. Proceeds will go to the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee to support world wide programs in community development, education, and human rights.

As the congregation sings the final hymn, the children and youth will enter through the great doors at the front of the church and distribute palm branches to everyone present.

'The World Has Gone After Him' Bethany Palm Sunday Sermon

The Palm Sunday worship and celebration will take place in the sanctuary of Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, Sunday, March 27, at 10 a.m.

The entire congregation will join in singing "The Palms" by Gabriel Faure as the processional hymn.

The worship service will be broadcast live direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 a.m. over the South Shore radio station, WJDA, 1300 kc.

The Chancel Choir under the direction of Peter F. Krasinski, organist, will sing the anthem "Prepare the Way," a Swedish melody arranged by Morten Luvaas, and as the offertory Claude Means' composition "The King Rides Forth."

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon "The World Has Gone After Him."

Rev. Mr. Arnold will also lead the action-scripture reading with the children, based on the Gospel of Mark 11:1-10.

The Rev. Joel Huntington, associate minister, will serve as the liturgist and offer the pastoral prayer. Jean Ross will be the lay scripture reader.

Palms in the chancel will be placed by the Bethany Churchwomen. At the opening of the service, small missionary palm crosses made by native Masasi Christians in Tanzania, Africa, will be given to all worshipers, the gift of Rev. and Mrs. Elden D.J. Zuern.

Children of the Sunday School will attend the first portion of the service in the sanctuary and then go to their classrooms from 10:30 to 11. Nursery care will be provided during the entire hour for babies and toddlers.

As a dramatic way of reliving the experience of Palm Sunday when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a colt, the foal of a donkey, and was hailed as king, a live colt will arrive at 11:15 as part of the festivities. Following the worship service the children will be able to ride the colt, with supervision, on the Spear St. lawn between the chapel and the sanctuary.

Long, fresh palm slips will be distributed by youth of the church, and persons will be able to wave the branches and join the Church School children in shouting "Hosanna."

The religious and education aspect of this is to enable the participants to remember more vividly the details and meaning of the Palm Sunday events regarding Jesus and his disciples.

Also at 11:15 a.m., there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor with light refreshments.

Individuals and families from the community are welcome to come and share in the worship, rides and fellowship.

For additional information on any of Bethany's programs and ministries, contact the church office at 479-7301.

Palm Crosses Will Be Distributed At Wollaston Congregational

On Palm Sunday Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern will preach a sermon titled "Where Was I On Palm Sunday" at Wollaston Congregational Church.

At the sanctuary service the choir will sing two anthems "Hallelujah, Amen" from Judas Maccabaeus by G.F. Handel and "The Holy City" by Stephen Adams. The organist, Donald A. Reade will play "Variations on St. Theodulph" by William Vogel and "Rigaudon" by A. Campra.

Palm crosses will be distributed to the congregation, gifts from Rev. and Mrs. Zuern. The crosses were made in Tanzania. The sale of them provide earnings to villagers educational and health programs, and needs of the refugees.

Nursery care is provided for infants and pre-schoolers. Church School for grades one through eight and the senior discussion group will meet at 10 a.m.

A fellowship hour follows the worship service to which all are invited.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One of the hardest things to face in life is the burying of a loved one. At a time when grief and sorrow have taken over emotions, survivors must make many decisions when they are least able to do so.

To make the burden survivors face easier to handle, many funeral homes are offering pre-planned or pre-arranged funerals, a concept that is increasingly growing in popularity.

For some people, planning in advance gives assurance of a funeral that will represent their personal beliefs or life-style. For others, it is a way to help their families deal knowledgeably with their death.

We at the Deware Funeral Home would like you to come in and discuss your thoughts concerning pre-arranging and pre-financing. We will take you through the selection process and provide you with the necessary forms at no cost or obligation. We will be happy to introduce you to our funeral trust and pre-need funeral plans.

Romantic folklore that continues to delight

Superstition and folklore have long been associated with love and romance. In ancient times, charms, magic potions and other supernatural or magical forces frequently were employed as a way of trying to control one's destiny, especially in matters of the heart.

Love Potions: A Book of Charms and Omens (Salem House Publishers), written by Josephine Addison and illustrated by Diana Winkfield, relays to the reader a variety of ancient love potions, incantations and beliefs in a way that is at once whimsical and informative.

For instance, according to Addison, a dove, the symbol of peace and gentleness, was often given to the bridal pair as a wedding gift with the promise of a happy life. However, it was considered very unlucky if the donor had paid money for the birds, so something else was usually offered in exchange for them.

It was also thought, explains Addison, that if the bride did not cut her wedding cake that she would remain childless.

Emergency spotcleaning tips for your wedding dress

It's every bride's nightmare: You're wearing your dream wedding dress and someone accidentally splashes you with salad dressing or douses you with wine.

Bride's magazine has this advice to make sure a wedding day spill doesn't ruin your big moment:

Learn about your dress fabric before hand. Ask your salon owner or salesperson what your dress is made of and ask for specific cleaning hints. They may suggest dry cleaning only, but you can fix up most spots well enough to get through your ceremony and reception.

Act fast to keep a stain from setting. Don't rub the spill or expose it to extreme heat; instead, a few quick blots will take care of the worst of the problem. What to blot with? That depends on the stain.

Fight water soluble stains with water. Perspiration, champagne, wine and other beverages are common water soluble spills. Their cure: Put a towel under the fabric and blot top with a damp cloth, preferably wrung out in a light solution of white vinegar or detergent and water.

As soon as the stain is gone, blot dry to prevent a ring.

An extra hint for wine stains: Put damp salt on the spot. Let the salt dry, brush it away.

Use cleaning solvents on greasy stains. Lipstick and other cosmetics, perfume, salad dressing, chocolate, and various foods respond well to dry cleaning solvents or spray-on spot removers. Sprays or solvents can be found in purse size in any drugstore; it's a good idea to carry one.

In a fix, a bit of hairspray may work as well.

To get out a greasy stain, place it face down on paper towels and go over the back with solvent and a clean cloth, working quickly from center to edges. To complete the job, use some soap and water. Then blot dry.

Treat delicate fabrics extra carefully. Taffeta, for example, can wrinkle permanently or even split. Be sure to keep taffeta that's just smooth when removing stains, and tap or lightly brush it.

Silk can be cleaned easily with mild acids or alkalies; water with a few drops of ammonia or vinegar.

Smart brides-to-be use in-store bridal gift registry, a handy timesaver for all

One of the best tools available for the bride-to-be is the in-store bridal gift registry. A service available at most major department stores, the gift registry is a handy timesaver for the bride and her wedding guests.

The use of a gift registry allows engaged couples to choose specific items for their home before they are married.

Individual preferences count

Couples should consider their individual preferences for their new home then decide together on color combinations for each room, as well as china, silver and casual dinnerware patterns, items for entertaining, and the right small appliances for their cooking styles.

Most gift registries are computerized. Once a couple has made up their "wish list," the registry coordinator at the store inputs that information into the store's computer.

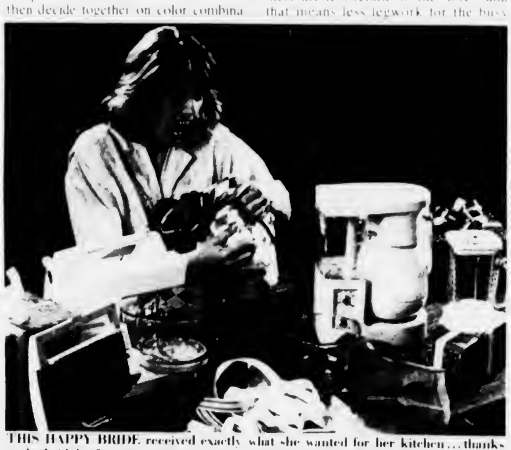
Anytime a family member or friend purchases one of the items listed for the couple, the list is updated accordingly. This eliminates duplication of gifts so there are less returns to the store, and that means less legwork for the busy couple.

It is important for registering couples to be as specific as possible when filling out their registration form.

Be specific

Couples should list exact colors, sizes and all other available information for the items on their list. For example, when choosing small appliances, be sure to specify the unit's model number as well as its brand name and color. It is important for guests to know that they are purchasing exactly what the bride and groom desire.

Choose dinnerware with the couple's lifestyle in mind. Keep linens and coordinates in the bedroom and bath.



Choose crystal, china and silver patterns at the same time so that they complement one another as well as the dining room style.

In the kitchen, make sure small and large appliances are in the same or complementary colors. For instance, Oster® Designer Line features many small appliances in crisp white with red and gray accents. There are several units available in complementary red to highlight the color scheme.

Spreading the word

Although wedding guests appreciate help in choosing the right gift for the happy couple, remember that it is not appropriate to include this information on the wedding invitation. It is up to the couple's family and close friends to spread the word about where they are registered.

Planning a wedding can be easy when the engaged couple takes advantage of all of the services available to help them out. The bridal gift registry is one service that no engaged couple should do without.

THIS HAPPY BRIDE received exactly what she wanted for her kitchen... thanks to the bridal gift registry at her favorite department store. She specified a combination of appliances from Oster®'s Designer Line so that her kitchen would be as color coordinated as the rest of her new home.

Today's groom takes an active role in all aspects of wedding planning

A decade ago, the biggest demand on the groom was that he be at the church on time. But grooms today are taking an active role in the wedding planning, and want to be involved in many of the aspects that were once strictly "bride's territory," according to a recent article in Bride's Magazine.

Rather than being a spectator, the groom is involved in selecting everything from the wedding site to china, crystal and housewares," says Editor-in-Chief Barbara Tober.

The names of his parents often appear on the wedding invitation, or he might be escorted to the altar by both parents. And he will probably wear a wedding ring — 84 percent do.

Most men now believe that if marriage is a 50-50 proposition, the wedding should be too. Here are some of the ways the customs surrounding the groom have changed, thanks to his input:

• Engagement photography. Today, most newspapers routinely feature the couple, rather than the bride alone. Some include the groom in wedding portraits as well.

• Wedding expenses. In the past, the bride's family paid for the entire wedding, except for a few items traditionally coveted by the groom or his family. But because brides and grooms are marrying older and earning their own money, they want to make financial contributions to their wedding, and often the groom's family offers to cover or split some expenses.

• The bridal shower. Two income couples share more than a 9 to 5 schedule, they must also share housekeeping duties. Setting up the home is of interest to both spouses, and this has popularized his/her showers. Theme showers feature gifts that the couple will share (entertainment items, honeymoon necessities, sporting equipment) and include his male friends and family members too.

• Groom's attendants. The traditional wedding party roles are changing. The groom may now choose a "best woman" — a sister or close friend — rather than a "best man."

The ushers — who can be male or female — help with wedding planning. They might undertake some of the traditional groom's duties (making hotel reservations for out-of-town guests, arranging transportation from the wedding to the reception, picking up and returning tuxedos), to give him more time with his bride.

• Thank you notes. Although etiquette specifies that thank you notes have only one signature, as any couples now split the thank-you note list — the groom handling his family and friends, the bride handling hers.

The groom or bride should mention his or her spouse in the body of the letter, however ("Karen and I will be toasting many happy occasions with the wine glasses you sent.").

• Married names. Today's groom has some decisions to make about his married name. With the bride no longer automatically taking her groom's name (changing a bride's name is tradition, not law), the groom may want to alter his name to celebrate the bond.

If his bride wants to keep her own name for professional purposes, the couple might choose to adopt a hyphenated last name. For example, Sally Jones and Mike Smith might become Sally and Mike Jones-Smith.

Pre-wedding stress relievers for your skin

When the bride wants her wedding barefoot in the park, when the groom wants to dance the first dance to Ozzy Osbourne, and when both sets of parents have had their umpteenth argument about the monogram on the matchbooks, pre-wedding jitters begin to take their toll.

On the day you want to be the most beautiful, the stress can often be overwhelming, as the telltale shows on your face.

Mary W. Lipnisch, director of marketing for the Olay Company, explains that Pre-wedding stress affects everyone when the time comes. With over 50 million women around the world using Olay products, research has shown that there are [illegible] signs that can be avoided.

You can certainly help perfect your complexion so that you will look as beautiful on the outside as you feel inside.

• I Can't Take It, It's Bridal Stress. Some women escape pre-wedding stress by eating everything in sight and then binge every time the bridesmaids dress-fitting. After the band cancels at the last minute.

For those who get tense, facial exercise can contract as the stress takes hold, and fine [illegible] around the eyes and mouth can become more noticeable.

This is not a time to decide you don't have time to moisturize morning, noon and night. A ceaseless moisturizer that penetrates quickly should be used more often than usual during the wedding planning months.

Moisturizers can temporarily diminish the appearance of fine wrinkle lines and make others invisible altogether.

Ros Blank, Olay's director of research, explains: "Moisture is needed under the skin as well as on the surface to plump and replenish, helping skin resist even the finest of tiny wrinkle lines."

• I Can't Eat A Thing, Stress. Loss of appetite is a common side effect of pre-nuptial stress, and since the skin reflects the state of your health, now's the time to make sure to eat well-balanced meals and start taking multi-vitamins.

Ros Blank of Olay explains that certain vitamins can be beneficial for the skin when taken internally.

Vitamin E works in the epidermis, the upper layer of the skin, protecting the cells from the oxidation process.

Vitamin C works in the dermis, the deepest layer, to strengthen elastin and collagen which keep skin smoother, more wrinkle free and resilient.

Believe it or not, over the long haul from proposal to wedding, proper nutrition can have positive effects on your skin.

• I Can't Sleep, I Think Stress. Few brides get proper sleep and, once again, the skin will bear the brunt of the cosmetic side effects. Baggy, puffy eyes and a pale complexion will soon take over.

Exercise is one of the best stress relievers that will help you sleep and put your cheeks in the pink.

A hot bath, some relaxing music or a glass of milk before bed will help you take your mind off the wedding plans and drift off for a full eight hours.

If proper sleep is impossible, try splashing your face with cold water to increase the circulation and put the color back in your face.

• 48 Hours To Go Stress. Trying to do too much, too quickly is never a good idea, and it's the worst idea right before the big day. If you have all those months to plan a wedding, make planning your beauty debut part of those plans.

Treat yourself to a facial two to four weeks before the wedding. It will help to relax you, as well as providing deep cleansing.

Moisturize every day without fail so your skin will be smooth, moist and glowing on your wedding day.

"Skin is a delicate organ and it can show the effects of being hurried into condition," Mr. Blank says. "Take it slow and you can see a real difference in your skin when the wedding day rolls around.

MARRYING THE NEW STEPFAMILY

Let children participate

They can be your attendants or altar boys, ring bearer or flower girls. Your vows to each other might be followed by a family vow or a prayer of family unity with each member adding a phrase.

Your child could take the place of a member of the ritual no longer alive. If the bride's father has passed away, her child might escort her to the altar. Or, as Bride's magazine's associate editor Millie Martini and her fiance decided, show the importance of the child by having him or her at your side at the altar.

"CoCo, John's daughter, served in the role of 'best man' at our wedding," Martini explained. "John felt that there was no one else he'd rather have beside him as he made this important commitment, and she was excited to be asked."

Even if your child seems to have adjusted to the idea of your marriage, the wedding day may surprise all of you by making him or her feel insecure. Assign a close relative to reassure and give hugs when needed throughout the day.

If your children feel uncomfortable with the idea of participating in the ceremony, include them in other ways. Assign them seats of honor, or mention their names in a special prayer.

Overview of bridal fashions for spring/summer '88

The landscape for spring/summer '88 bridal fashion is shaping up to be purely feminine and romantic with a "less is more" approach that will substitute the ornamentation of past seasons, according to Bride's magazine.

Softer colors

The pastel story that emerged last spring continues for brides and wedding attendants — only, this season, the garden palette is in full bloom. Look for whispery pales, along with classic whites.

• Pale Floral Pastels — Delicate, barely there pales such as Pink Carnation, Morning Glory Blue, Buttercup, Palest Peach and Silver Mint Green are cool-looking and soft.

• Budding Brights — Irresistibly delicious hues such as Yellow Freesia, Magnolia Peach, Seafoam Green, Peony Pink, Lilac, Cornflower Blue are vibrant, yet controlled.

• Sun Kissed Brights — High-intensity hues such as Daffodil, Marigold, Tiger Lily, Poppy, Pansy, Plum, Violet, Shamrock, Delphinium, Hydrangea make a very rich, strong statement.

• Striking Bi Colors — High contrast color combos such as navy paired with white or beige provide a fresh, clean look.

Emphasis on textural interest

Texture is key, this coming spring. It's so important that the fabric itself becomes the story, its look and hand clearly influencing the resulting design.

Watch for last spring's move in the textural direction to really blossom.

Among the standouts: Fabric with puckers or crinkles, flocked fabric, ottoman, damask, cloque, matelasse, brocade, jacquard, dupione, shantung, gazar, and crunchy paper silk.

Also watch for high-contrast fabrics played together — especially textures against sheers. The ultimate contrast is a textured sheer, employing texture to add newness to a traditional bridal fabric like organza.

Of sheer importance this season are organza, organdy, voile, georgette, chiffon, ribbon sheer, shadow-striped and coin-dotted sheer, placed sheer, point d'esprit, embroidered and flocked tulle, sheer with re-embroidered lace and textured cotton batiste.

Additional fabric trends to note:

• Laces with added texture — such as soutache or ribbon lace used as accents — on a bodice, a skirt panel, a train.

• Toned-down metallics — always with texture.

• Three-dimensional textures.

More refined silhouettes

Sprouting up this season are romantic, new soft silhouettes that go hand in hand with the new softened colors and lighter fabrics.

Among the key trends are:

• The Deb or Ingenue — Feminine, with a naive but naughty sexiness, this '50s-inspired style features a wasp waist, exposed shoulders and a full skirt, complete with flirty crinolines.

Key shapes and details include:

• An appealing new softness, characterized by the cinched waist, the trapeze back, the fit and flare of the princess silhouette, elongated peplums and body wrapping styles.

• A focus on decolletage, evidenced by off-the-shoulder looks, straplessness, sweetheart and face-framing portrait necklines, and flyaway collars.

• Gentle skirting, in the form of full skirts with sweep trains, swingy A-lines, tulips, uneven hemlines and updated sheaths with floaty, petal-shaped overskirts that reveal the body line underneath — perfect for the informal bride.

A sense of whimsy

Among the continuing tends are:

• Bows, still cropping up at the shoulder, on a bustle. They're even newer in profusion — almost woven into a neckline or hem.

Fresh approaches to watch for include:

• Fabric rosettes — saucy new touches for dresses, hair, shoes.

• Butterflies — especially for the truly adventurous — such as a sheer butterfly delicately poised upon a shoulderful of flowers.

Making the most of your time...

Efficiency and organization are the keys to planning a beautiful wedding on short notice

Don't organize a traditional wedding for this summer if you've just become engaged. Most bridal guides advise allowing six months to a year to attend to the many details.

But a new book from Bride's magazine entitled Secrets, Hints and Strategies for a Beautiful Wedding (Perigee Books), offers help to those who want or need to in a celebration in a hurry.

You can speed up your planning timetable without sacrificing your dream of a lovely wedding, say the authors. The key is efficiency and organization.

• Network to whittle down options. You won't be able to visit every wedding vendor in your area. Instead, ask friends and business associates for specific recommendations. Then, ask the florists or photographers they've put you in contact with for their referrals.

Attend a bridal show, if possible, to take advantage of the multiple ideas and services gathered in one place.

• Manage your time. Assign a priority to each wedding task, then make lists of things to do and update them each day. Take notes each step of the way, writing down estimates, impressions, names. If you rely on memory alone, you'll end up retracing your steps and forgetting important details.

• Postpone tasks when appropriate. Pen thank you notes now to your attendants, but shop for their gifts on your honeymoon.

• Delegate, delegate, delegate. Willing friends and family members can be lifesavers. Does your mother love to shop? She might scour stores for bridesmaid's gifts. Your father could arrange for the invitation printing and order the liquor. An usher could round up the legal forms for changing your name on bank accounts, driver's license, stock certificates.

• Set deadlines to get things done. Otherwise, Parkinson's Law applies: "Work expands to fill the time available for its completion."

The book also suggests these specific time saving ideas:

• Choose a wedding gown in a simple style, the ordering time may be shorter. Look at discontinued sample dresses on sale, or order a bridesmaid's dress — in white.

• Hire a wedding consultant to relieve you of time-consuming tasks.

• Use a wedding gift registry to organize your gift preferences.

• If feasible, pay for express service. Everything from printing to portrait finishing can be hurried — for a price.

• Shop by mail — possibilities include attendants' gifts, bridal shoes, toasting glasses, invitations, wedding accessories.

• Hire a single instrumentalist such as a harpist, to play at both the ceremony and reception.

• Plan a weekend away right after the wedding, take an all-out honeymoon later.

A MARRIAGE MADE IN HEAVEN... with the elegant combination of After Six Formals and the After Six Bridal Gowns Collection. Our groom is wearing the black single breasted notch laped tuxedo from the International Collection by After Six. His pure cotton shirt, satin bow tie and matching cummerbund complete the look. His radiant bride shines in her beavily hand beaded satin gown with Alencon lace, bateau neckline and full skirt with semi-cathedral train. From the After Six Bridal Gowns Collection.

Romance is here to stay, in bridal fashions and jewelry

With the [illegible] sized bow in her hair, the new [illegible] look of her wedding dress and the exquisite gold jewelry she chooses, every bride wants to look and feel her romantic best.

This season, there's a marked return to pretty looks that are traditionally feminine but possess dramatic flair.

What's hot are romantic ball gowns cinched at the waist and overflowing with tiers of ruffles. Storybook charm is also evident with girlish pouf sleeves and high necklines, all in lace.

Some bridalwear designers are showing the empire style nipped under the bustline as seen in the 1960s and in recent couture collections.

To measure up to the importance of her wedding day look, today's bride opts for the warm beauty of real gold jewelry in sumptuous all gold designs or accented with semi precious elements.

Both precious and sentimental, real jewelry is especially right for her once in a lifetime day. Popular choices include necklaces of 14k gold fleur de lis charms accented with seed pearls or a string of polished gold hearts.

Feminine earrings in swirl or floral patterns are the perfect accompaniment to the fully pouf gowns of the season. As an extra plus, many earrings follow the line of the ear to create a dramatic effect.

Just right for the season's short sleeved dresses, a gold cuff that appears to be draped like fabric is a classic any woman will cherish for years to come.

To top it all, for the bride who wants to sparkle from head to toe, the right headpiece is very important. Floral and jeweled wreath versions are the perfect accents for more elaborate dresses. Simpler headpieces with detachable veils work best with formal gowns.

For every bride, the way she expresses her own femininity is sure to turn heads as she walks down the aisle. This season, the choice of clothes, accessories and jewelry, spanning from girlishly innocent to glamorous, guarantees that the final result will fall nothing short of beautiful.

When choosing or registering for wedding gifts, who doesn't think of traditional stemware? Or, the practical salad bowl? What about the elegant pitcher? Or, the beautiful wine carafe?

Because crystal is married to the wedding tradition and its inherent characteristics make it a priceless treasure for future generations, it is only right for you to learn the crystal facts before making your final choice.

When selecting crystal, be careful . . . Don't be deceived. Not everything that looks translucent, brilliant, crystalline and elegant is fine crystal.

To help you in your selection, here's a list of questions many brides often think of when choosing their crystal, but never know whom to ask. At last, Princess House, a leading manufacturer of full-lead, handblown and handcut crystal, provides you with the answers.

Q. Are air bubbles imperfections or a sign of low-quality crystal?

A. Absolutely not. Tiny bubbles, marks and variations are unique traits of high-quality handblown crystal. They represent the "signature" of the glassblower's finished art.

Q. How can you tell if crystal is handblown or machine pressed?

A. Handblown crystal is mouth blown, one piece at a time, and is more graceful, delicate and finer in detail than machine pressed crystal. One piece of handblown stemware may require the work of up to 18 artisans.

On the other hand, pressed crystal is heavier than handblown and its density gives the items a rich tonal ring when delicately tapped.

Q. What's the difference between crystal and lead crystal?

A. Crystal is a glass that contains lead oxide, a substance which gives crystal its weight and luster. High-quality crystal should contain at least 24 percent lead oxide, and is commonly called full-lead crystal.

Lead is fundamental since it enables crystal to retain its attractive qualities during the shaping process. The more lead, the brighter, the clearer and the richer the tone is.

Q. What are the most popular crystal pieces for wedding gifts?

A. A stemware collection is a long awaited favorite among brides. There are three basic types: The water goblet, the wine glass and the closed "tulip" champagne. Eight of each is the magical number for a complete set.

Table accessories include the salad bowl, the romantic candlesticks, the hurricane lamps, the useful pitcher and the coffee carafe.

Also, crystal dinnerware is growing in popularity. More brides are choosing it because its versatility complements any color or table decor.

CRYSTAL, FLOWERS, CHAMPAGNE AND CANDLES: All details of an everlasting wedding legend, says Princess House, a leading manufacturer of full-lead, handblown and handcut crystal. Among the most popular bridal gifts are these versatile items: Traditional stemware, crystal bowl, candlesticks and dinnerware place settings.

Your crowning glory

Julius Caruso, New York's foremost hairdresser, who has been styling New York's society brides for more than 40 years, has the following tips for your big day.

• Consult your hairdresser at least one week before the event, and bring your veil.

• Keep your cut and style simple: an elaborate hairstyle detracts from the beauty of your dress and the day.

• Keep the style soft. All brides, no matter their age, should look "soft, shiny and sweet."

• Try and keep the length of your hair above shoulder length. It's simpler for both the wedding and the honeymoon.

• Avoid heavy hair sprays and mousses. This is a day you want your hair to be soft to the touch and to smell clean and fresh.

• Don't forget your bridesmaids. It's important for the whole bridal party to feel beautiful, and arranging appointments for everyone will make hairdressing easier and the whole party more attractive.

Try tossing birdseed at the bride

Birdseed is the ecologically safest stuff to toss at the bride and groom, says a Connecticut lawmaker who has introduced a bill banning instant rice at weddings, reports International Wildlife magazine.

Innocuous as it seems, instant rice kills birds that eat it by absorbing moisture, causing severe bloating, says Mae Schmidle, the legislator introducing the birdseed bill. She does not advocate pelting weddings, but simply wants well-wishers to convert to birdseed.

Fish Cakes
With Old Standby Tuna

With most fish cakes that are bought, even those purchased in specialty stores, the question one asks is usually "where's the fish?"

One of my friends used to ride for miles to get her favorite 'crab cakes' which I have to admit were a tasty morsel, but if you found any traces of real crabmeat in it you were lucky! Anyway, all this is leading up to today's recipe for fish cakes, or did you already guess!

I cooked these cakes with clams and crabmeat, but last week I tried them with that old standby tuna. It's something that is always on our shelves. When I fried them, it was with very little oil and they drained on a piece of paper towel.

TUNA CAKES

1 can of tuna (any kind)
1 egg
1 small minced onion
2 cups mashed potatoes
(you may use instant if no leftovers are hanging around)

In a bowl, shred the tuna, add the cooked potatoes, the onion and the egg. Mix well until well blended (it looks like the batter of a pancake mix, a little thicker perhaps).

In hot oil, measure about one to two tablespoons of the mixture depending on the size of the fish cake you desire to fry until golden brown on both sides. Drain on paper towel and keep in a warming oven or heat in the microwave. I have served them with either baked macaroni and cheese or baked beans. But, they go with anything you desire.

Squantum First Church Pastor Denounces Reagan Foreign Policy

The pastor of the First Church of Squantum left no doubt in the minds of his congregation Sunday as to where he stood with regard to certain aspects of President Reagan's foreign policy.

At the conclusion of his sermon Sunday, church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin said, "Now lest there be anyone here who has not understood what I have been saying, let me say it like this."

He turned sidewise in the pulpit and pretended to be marching. He said, "This is the way President Reagan and American military power are going right now."

Dr. Langevin then turned half-way around in the pulpit so that he was facing the other way and began marching again. He said, "But this is the way that I, as a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ, feel I have to go."

In the sermon, which was entitled "The Continuing Struggle," the Squantum pastor denounced several aspects of American foreign policy under the Reagan administration. Specifically, Dr. Langevin condemned the American government for its acquiescence in the South

REV. GENE LANGEVIN

African government's recent attempts to shore up its policy of apartheid, the American government's failure to put effective pressure on Israel to halt its brutal treatment of Palestinians on the West Bank and in the Gaza strip (where 101 Palestinians have been killed since December), and the American government's support for the contras in Nicaragua, including President Reagan's recent deployment of 3200 American troops in Honduras for that purpose.

Dr. Langevin was particularly hard on men such as those indicted in Washington this past week (North, Poindexter, Secord, and Hakim) and Elliot Abrams, Assistant Secretary of State, whom Dr. Langevin called "a hissing serpent."

Speaking of the American presence in the modern world, Dr. Langevin said, "We have become Pharaoh. We have become the Roman Empire... which, we must not forget, presided over the crucifixion of Christ. It may be that we, in our time, are involved in crucifying the poor and oppressed peoples of the world particularly in South Africa, and on the West Bank and in the Gaza strip, and in Nicaragua by means of the contras."

As examples of what he was talking about, Dr. Langevin cited the current face-off between the South African government and the South African churches led by Archbishop Desmond Tutu and Rev. Allan Boesak, particularly since the recent government banning and restriction of anti-apartheid organizations and leaders

QHS Seniors On 'Rap-Around' Saturday

Four Quincy High School seniors recently participated in a taping of the WBZ-TV program "Rap-Around," hosted by Tom Bergeron.

The four students, Robert Alvarez, Andy Souza, Hank Miller, and Kevin Marston, were involved in a discussion of sadness in teenagers.

Shirley Gurwit, the founder of a hospice specializing in teen grief, was the program's special guest. The Quincy High participants were chosen as volunteers from their psychology class, taught by Dr. Jack Merrill.

The program opened with film footage of an auto accident in which teenagers were killed. Subsequent discussion focused on conditions which cause sadness in teenagers including relationships, bereavement, divorce, and loneliness.

The program is scheduled for broadcast on Saturday, March 26, at noon.

Domestic Violence

What Is Emerge?

During the past two weeks, one telephone number that has been given to you is the number of Emerge. This week we will discuss Emerge.

Emerge is a private counseling service that councils men on domestic violence.

Why Do Men Come To Emerge?

Usually a man calls Emerge after his partner has left, threatened to leave or obtained a Restraining and Vacate order from the court, which bars him from entering the home. Many Emerge clients say that it was only after their partners left or got a court order that they realized the seriousness of their violence. Unfortunately some men come for counseling only because it looks good and convinces their partners to take them back.

Can He Really Change?

Yes, but only if he gets help and keeps working at it. Asking for help is the first and biggest step towards change. Change does not occur overnight - if it occurs at all - and many men drop out along the way. Total elimination of violence is most likely for those men who complete the 8 month counseling program. But even completion of the program is no guarantee that your partner will change.

Doesn't Drinking Cause Him To Be Violent?

No. While some men are abusive only after they have been drinking, this does not mean that the alcohol causes the violence, it just makes it easier for him to avoid taking the responsibility for the violence. When a man overdrinks and is violent he has two problems for which he must take responsibility.

What Happens In The Counseling Groups At Emerge?

Each group is made up of 5 to 8 men, who have been violent, and two male counselors. The group meets for two hours a week for six months. Usually a man has two months of individual counseling before he joins a group. Each man must list his goals, what he wants to change about himself, and the way that he might prevent himself from reaching these goals. Besides ending his violence, each man's goals vary but some typical goals are:

- Ending physical violence (hitting, grabbing, throwing things, threatening.)
- Becoming a better listener.
- Respecting others differences.
- Learning to express feelings other than anger.
- Stop making others responsible for his feelings and behavior.

The men work on these goals by talking with each other in the group and practicing new behaviors outside the group. Each session begins by having each man report on his past week. The men also talk about their feelings behind anger, attitudes toward women, friendships among men, work pressures and responsibilities, parenting, and common aspects of growing up as males.

How Do I Know If He's Changed?

There are some questions you can ask yourself that might help you decide whether he has changed enough for you to feel safe and secure with him.

- Has he stopped being violent or threatening towards me and others?
- Does he still make me afraid when I am with him?
- Am I able to express anger toward him without being attacked?
- Can he respect my right to say "no?"
- Is he able to express feelings other than anger?
- Does he make me feel responsible for his anger and frustrations?
- Can I go out, go to school, or get a job without his permission?

In their work with men who batter women, Emerge has come up with some suggestions about what you can do when you feel that you want to hurt your mate. You have a choice about what you do.

Leave the situation. Go for a walk, or even better a run. Sometimes the best thing is to be alone. The walking or running is a good way to use up energy.

Call a friend. For men it is very difficult to admit that we need to talk to someone, but many times that is exactly what we need. Calling a friend will give you time to think about what you are doing and a chance to get your head on straight.

Take the first step, call Emerge. Don't wait for the next crisis to occur. Call the Hot-Line at 547-9870.

"We've thoroughly enjoyed the five and half years we've been in Quincy Center. We never gave a thought to leaving the area. We believe that Quincy Center is on the way up and we want to be a part of it," Fitzgerald said.

Timberlake Sets Assist Record At B.U.

Boston University's ECAC North Atlantic Conference (NAC) championship basketball team lost, as expected, to Duke's Atlantic Coast Conference (ACC) champions, 85-69, in the first round of the NCAA championship tournament, but it wasn't the fault of Quincy's Jeff Timberlake, who finished a brilliant season for the Terriers.

Timberlake, junior co-captain, led BU in scoring for the third time in four games and has six assists to set the school's assist record for a season with 223. The previous record of 218 was set by Shawn Teague during the 1983-84 season.

The BC High graduate who holds that school's career assist record, has an excellent chance to break BU's career assist mark of 681, also set by Teague. Timberlake has 538 with a year to go.

"This kid is an outstanding player and is plenty tough," the Duke coach said. "He has a toughness you can't give a person."

Krzyzewski was impressed with the BU team and, following the game, said to the gathered media, "I don't know how many of you follow their team. But you should follow them more closely, because they're good."

BU coach Mike Jarvis was pleased with showing of his team against the ACC champions who this year defeated North Carolina three times. "You know the season's going to end somewhere and you just hope it ends on the most positive note it can and you've got something to build on for next year."

Duke qualified for the final 16 in the NCAA tourney by defeating SMU, 94-79, last Saturday and will play surprising Rhode Island tonight (Thursday) at the Meadowlands in New Jersey.

Marshall Named Boston College Hockey Tri-Captain

By JACK DUNN

Paul Marshall, son of Norfolk County Sheriff and Mrs. Clifford Marshall of Quincy, was recently named tri-captain of next year's Boston College hockey team.

Marshall, a 6-2, 190 pound defenseman was a two-year starter for the Eagles, and the second-leading scoring defenseman in Hockey East this season.

Marshall becomes the second consecutive player from Quincy and BC High to be named captain at Boston College. He succeeds former classmate Danny Shea, who was featured in a Quincy Sun story last week.

Boston College coach Len Ceglarski praised Marshall's selection saying that he expected "great things" from Paul in his senior season. Marshall said that he was "honored to have been chosen, and was already looking forward to the new season."

Marshall was drafted at age 17 in the fourth round of the NHL draft by the Philadelphia Flyers. He is hoping to play for the Flyers after graduating from Boston College in 1989.

His younger brother Chris is also a hockey player, currently playing as a freshman at Michigan State. Chris also graduated from BC High in 1987 and was drafted last year by the Buffalo Sabres.

Squantum Yacht Club Sponsoring Lipton Cup Regatta

The Squantum Yacht Club has again accepted the primary sponsorship for the Lipton Cup Regatta July 30-31.

The regatta will be raced over the waters of Quincy and Mass. Bay.

More than 250 sailboats are expected to compete for the prestigious trophy presented by the Lipton Tea Co. on four different race courses. The event, in its second year, is setting a high standard in quality racing. This is further evidenced by the high number of classes holding championships at the regatta this year.

Classes to compete are PHRF, Tornado, 110, 210, Laser, Sailboard, Hustler, Thunderbird, Mercury and N-10.

The trophy was originally given to the Mass. Bay Yacht Clubs Association in 1930 by tea magnate Thomas J. Lipton and was first awarded to Herbert Allbright in the Indian class. The trophy, standing nearly three feet tall in all its Victorian splendor, is now being competed for after more than 55 years of inactivity.

Further information can be obtained by contacting regatta chairman Don McGilvray, 3 Ashworth Rd., Squantum (328-5730), or Bill Grabowski, 164 Crabtree Lane, Squantum (770-4060).

Chemical Health Awareness Meetings At NQHS, QHS

Chemical Health awareness meetings for spring athletes and their parents or guardians will be held at the North Quincy High auditorium Monday night and at the Quincy High method center Tuesday night at 7:30.

"Among the most important issues facing families today are the misuse and abuse of alcohol and other drugs," said Quincy Coordinator of Athletics Marty Finnegan, who has conducted similar meetings at schools throughout New England and New York State. "The problems must be addressed by parents and their children together.

"Many parents are reluctant to talk with their sons and daughters about these disturbing concerns. Our goal is to share information with parents and students and stimulate communications with them and faculty. We urge at least one parent or guardian to attend with his or her son or daughter."

Principals Peter Chrisom of North and Lloyd Hill of Quincy will welcome the students and parents at 7:30, followed by greeters by School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, a discussion of marijuana and cocaine by John Mahoney, coordinator of social health; a discussion of steroids by Rick Hutchins, North Quincy faculty manager, and an overview of the entire discussion by Finnegan.

Patriots Here For Benefit Game

The Task Force for the Prevention of Substance Abuse in the Middle Schools of Quincy will sponsor a basketball game between students and teachers in the Middle Schools and the New England Patriots April 28 at the Vo-Tech gym.

The game, which will start at 7 p.m., is being played to increase awareness of substance-free middle schools in Quincy.

Tickets will be on sale at all Middle School offices beginning April 1 for $3. Tickets will be sold at the door for $5.

A Coach's Dream

Flukes Ends Fantastic Career At North Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

When the North Quincy girls' basketball team lost to Durfee in the first round of the Eastern Mass. Tournament, it marked the end of a fantastic four-year career for the Raiderettes' Nancy Flukes.

Nancy became the most prolific scorer in the school's history and set 15 individual records.

"Nancy was a coach's dream," said coach Paul Bregoli. "She was a clutch player, a team player and could do everything. I first met her as a young player at the Montclair School where she had already begun showing signs of being a special athlete. She could do so many things as a young player and showed great basketball instincts. At that time I was just anxious to have Nancy come up to North Quincy because I knew she would be a great one.

"The only girl ever to be a four-year starter at North, she showed she could play at the varsity level as a freshman. She was cool under pressure, shot well and handled the ball well. Even then, Nancy could be depended upon to make the right decision on the court. She set the school record for free throw percentage that year.

"Her sophomore year we had a very good team and she was a key to it. She took more of a back seat role, content to make good passes and improve her defense, although she did score quite a bit for us.

"Last year she grew even more, once again being a major contributor to the success of the team.

"This year I felt she had to really assert herself in all phases of the game for us to be successful. And she did everything I expected and more. I thought she had a remote shot at becoming a 1000-point scorer. She had some high scoring games for us, including a school record 32-point game, and she reached the 1000-point career mark in the next to last game of the season. Her game reached another level this year.

"Next year she won't be around (she will be playing at Stonehill College, from which she received a full four-year scholarship) and that will be a difficult adjustment for the team. However, she leaves behind a remarkable record and has shown the younger players what it takes to achieve greatness.

NANCY FLUKES

"I'm going to miss her dearly. kids like Nancy only come along once in a great while. And she has more basketball ahead of her. But, most importantly, I'll miss her class act both on and off the court. She will undoubtedly be a tremendous success in life. She has been a special person to all the people at North Quincy, especially me."

North qualified for the Eastern Mass Tourney three times in Nancy's four years and the 5-8 versatile star, who played either off-guard or small forward, had a lot to do with this.

She led the Raiderettes in scoring, hitting double figures in all 21 games, was the first player in school history to hit 1000 points, finishing with 1029, broke the single game record with 32 against Cambridge Rindge and Latin and broke the school single season scoring mark with 403.

She led the team in assists (264 for her career and 90 in a season last year), in most field goals (343 for her career and 12 in one game against Cambridge), in free throws (307 for her career, 127 for a season and 14 in a game against Arlington), in free throw percentage (.695 for her career and .735 for a season), and three-point baskets (12).

She was the first North girl to be named the Suburban League's MVP this year, was a league all-star for three years in a row, a Patriot Ledger all-scholastic for three straight years, played on the AAU 15 and under team and the AAU 16 and under team, played in the Bay State Games three years in a row and was captain last year of the Metro team.

She also was named one of the 10 outstanding female players in Eastern Mass. this year by Channel 56 and McDonald's Corp. and was the MVP in both the Weymouth-Quincy Christmas Tournament and the North Quincy Invitational Tournament.

Nancy also is one of North's top softball players, leading the team to a 17-3 record and second place in the Suburban League and a berth in the Eastern Mass. Tournament last spring, and is a fine soccer player. In addition, she is one of the leading junior tennis players in the area.

Besides being an outstanding athlete, she has distinguished herself in the classroom. She is ranked 31 of 340 in the senior class, is a member of the Foreign Language Honor Society, has been class treasurer all four years, is a member of the Student Council, a member of SADD and a member of the Pride Committee.

She was selected to Who's Who Among High School Students and last fall was selected Football Queen.

North Quincy's loss is certainly Stonehill College's gain and Nancy should add to her basketball achievements under Stonehill coach Paula Sullivan, who this year was selected by the Women's Basketball Coaches Association as the New England District Coach of the Year for the third time.

Pee Wee B's 3rd In Tourney

Quincy's Pee Wee B hockey team, sponsored by A&T Movers, took third place in the recent Wattupa Invitational Tournament with a 3-2 record.

Quincy won its first game over Northern Rhode Island by forfeit.

It lost its second game to Billerica, 4-2, with Jimmy Smith and Lou Bertucci scoring the goals and Kevin Mantville, Danny Morrell and Chris Connor having assists.

Quincy defeated Southern Connecticut, 6-1, as Brian Fitzgerald scored two goals and Jamie Schatzl, Joe Carinci, Jeff Craig and Brian Sullivan one each. Fitzgerald had two asists and Mantville, Sullivan, Craig, Schatzl and Carinci one apiece.

Next came a 4-2 loss to Weymouth with Mantville and Mike DesRoche scoring the goals and Bertucci assisting on both.

In the third-place game Quincy edged Billerica, 3-2, in triple overtime.

Dave Edwards and Connor had the goals in regulation and Mantville, DesRoche and Bertucci had assists. After three overtimes the score was still tied, but Quincy won the shootout on goals by Smith and Fitzgerald and some great saves by goalie Steve DesRoche.

Mantville was named to the all-tournament team for his outstanding play throughout the tournament.

Penalties Plague Mite A's

Quincy's Mite A hockey team, sponsored by the Quincy chapter of the DAV, was plagued by 13 minutes in penalties as it was edged by Dorchester, 3-2, in a Greater Boston League game.

Dorchester scored first, but minutes later Robbie Pirelli scored on a nice play from behind the net as he stuffed the puck under the pads of the Dorchester goalie.

Mike Ryan, David Rowell and Mike O'Brien played well with good speed, setting the pace throughout the game.

In the second period Quincy took a 2-1 lead as Scot Cooper passed to Paul Princiotto, who had little trouble scoring as Dorchester was caught on a line change.

A minute later Dorchester evened the score with a goal that was deflected into the net.

Eric Joyce and Tom Sullivan, up from the B team, played well as they forced the play deep and set up many chances in front of the Dorchester net.

John Ryan, Danny Stone, Eric Joyce and Danny Hughes had fine games on defense. The player of the game, goalie Brian Beaton, who had 10 difficult saves, was awarded the game puck by coach John Ryan.

Squantum First Church Pastor Denounces Reagan Foreign Policy

there. He said in Israel this past week, Israeli troops in the West Bank and the Gaza strip were given new fiberglass batons to replace their wooden ones because too many Israeli soldiers had hurt their hands beating Palestinians, including women and children, with the old ones.

In Nicaragua, incidents occur like the one in 1985 in which a squad of contras raped a teen-age bride repeatedly over several hours and forced her husband to watch, Dr. Langevin said.

After being told of the rape, an official of the American State Department said that the contras had "a thing" with young girls.

Dr. Langevin, who claimed that many of the American people do not know of the outrages being committed by the contras, said, "This is a time for prayer. And by that, I do not mean just adding our good will and support to the efforts of one side or the other, but rather reading and learning about what is going on and weighing those claims before God in prayer, to find out exactly what He would have us do now."

He warned that "if the Reagan administration continues in these policies, there is a danger that the country will be split right down the middle, that we will see the protests of the 1960's all over again, and that the dissension will shake this country to the ground."

Before the service began, each worshipper was given a black and white etching of Christ's crucifixion, a copy of a recent article in the Boston Globe about the South African government's crackdown on the churches there, and a copy of a contemporary Christian poem by Steve Turner. Dr. Langevin read both the poem and the newspaper article to the congregation during the service.

Barbara Walter and May Lewis were the greeters; Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott, the ushers; Helen Miller and Dru Warnes hosted the Fellowship Hour.

Sunday afternoon, the pastor met with young people in the Covenant of Discipleship as a regular part of their preparation for membership in the church.

The church offered two different Lenten programs this year. The first group, which studied "Contemporary Films and the Christian Faith," met for the final time Tuesday night to discuss "Places in the Heart" starring Sally Field.

The other group, which was held Wednesday nights, learned about the "Big Stories in the Old Testament." This week the group concluded its study with the life of Moses.

The group met March 23 for a chicken supper followed by discussion.

The Chancel Choir meets for rehearsal Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday mornings at 9:30 a.m. The Youth Choir meets to rehearse Sundays at 11:45 a.m. Mary Ruth Scott is director of both choirs.

During Holy Week, the Lord's Supper will be observed Maundy Thursday, March 31, at 7:30 p.m. On Easter, April 3, members will gather at Moswetuset Hummock at 7:30 a.m. for an Easter Sunrise service to be followed by an Easter morning breakfast at the church, and the traditional Easter service at the church at 10:30 a.m.

This Sunday, March 27, is Palm Sunday. It will begin with an all-member breakfast at 9:15 a.m. and continue with the traditional Palm Sunday service at 10:30 a.m. Three choirs will sing and palms will be distributed.

ENC Hosting Youth Sports, Talent Competition

Over 1,100 teenagers and 300 adults from throughout the northeastern United States are coming to Quincy this week to participate at Eastern Nazarene College's annual "Festival of Life" sports and talent competition for youth sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene.

This is the 10th year that Eastern Nazarene College has hosted the Festival of Life. The event drew about 500 persons in its first year and has grown each year since up to its present level.

Participants and spectators will be from 13 different states and from as far away as Roanoke, Va. and Pittsburgh, Pa. A large number of local young people from South Shore Nazarene churches will also be participating in the event which will conclude Friday.

The areas of competition include men's and women's basketball, women's volleyball, indoor soccer, Bible quizzing, Math/Science quizzing, chess, tennis, bowling, table tennis, drama, media presentation, sign language, vocal and instrumental music, Bible memorization and exposition, and puppetry.

The event will begin Wednesday evening with a giant opening rally and conclude Friday evening with an awards ceremony.

The competition is held primarily on E.N.C.'s campus in Wollaston, but other facilities used include North Quincy High School, the South Shore Sports Center in Hingham, Blue Hill Tennis Club in Braintree, and Boston Bowl in Dorchester. The participants are housed in seven area motels. The event generates over $50,000 in revenues for area businesses.

Eastern Nazarene College is a small Christian liberal arts college with an enrollment of 900 students in both graduate and undergraduate programs. Although affiliated with the Church of the Nazarene, the college welcomes students from all religious backgrounds.

Eastern Nazarene College has been located in Quincy since 1918.

DeCristofaro, Sheets Opposed

Mixed Reaction To Mayoral, Council Raises

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

There appears to be no clear consensus of opinion among city councillors as to Mayor Francis McCauley's proposal for pay increases for the mayor and City Council.

A School Committee raise from $2,400 to $5,000 a year has also been proposed by that body.

McCauley's proposals are to raise, in two steps, the salaries of the mayor from $50,000 to $55,000 a year, and City Councillors from $9,000 to $10,000 a year.

The raises will be included in the municipal budget which the mayor is scheduled to submit to the council Monday night, April 4.

"Absolutely no," said Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro, one of those opposed to the proposed raises.

"This year we are raising taxes and possibly adding a sewer and water fee.

"I think the taxpayer is being burdened enough at this time."

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets also said he was opposed.

"In general, the salaries are higher today than they have ever been," said Sheets.

"While the City Council, mayor and School Committee deserve a decent salary, we are giving public service. With the exception of the mayor, it's not like we were in these positions as our normal profession.

"I feel that given the fact that we are looking at tightening up the budget, it's not the time to be voting for raises for ourselves.

"If any raise was justified, it would be the mayor's office since he is full time and does have an enormous amount of responsibility."

Councillor at large Timothy Cahill said he supported the School Committee raise in theory, though maybe not the amount proposed, but probably wouldn't support a raise for the City Council or mayor.

"I don't think this is a good time to be talking about pay raises when we are talking about taxes," said Cahill.

"The School Committee deserves more. We need to pay more to attract candidates in the future.

"But I want to see what happens with the budget. A lot depends on what happens with the proposed sewer and water fee.

"If it is not passed, it's not a good time to be talking about political raises. It's even tougher if we do pass it."

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley said, "I really don't object to the mayor's raise. He will still be making less than the fire and police chiefs.

"It's a minimal amount, $1,000, for the City Council. That's not excessive.

"But doubling the School Committee salary is excessive. It should be phased down, maybe to $3,000 or $3,600."

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien said he was learning towards favoring the School Committee raise, was against the council raise and undecided on the mayor's salary increase.

"The School Committee puts in a lot of time. I don't think they are overpaid. The proposal is just bringing them up to what is reasonable.

"I'll probably vote against the City Council raise. I don't think an additional $1,000 is needed at this point. I'm satisfied with the salary I get."

As for the mayor's proposed raise, Chretien said he would like documentation on what chief executives of comparable cities are getting paid.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said he was leaning towards voting in favor of the

Cahill Seeks Downtown Zone Revitalization Plan

The chairman of the City Council's Downtown and Economic Development Committee said Monday night he intends to schedule a one-day seminar in April on revitalization of Quincy Sq.

"We can get all the best brains together to come up with a plan which we can present to the City Council and then to the people," said Committee Chairman Timothy Cahill.

"...We want to be proud of downtown Quincy," he said.

During the committee's first meeting, which lasted over an hour and a half, Cahill outlined the part of Quincy Sq. which he thinks needs attention.

That area starts at South Shore Bank, extends down Granite St. to the train tracks, south to the Quincy Cablesystems building at School St. and Parkingway, back down School St., over Hancock St., behind Quincy Sq. to include the Hancock parking lot on Mechanic St., to the International House of Pancakes, north up Washington St. on the Post Office side and down Maple St. back to South Shore Bank, Cahill said.

"The reason I'm proposing this zone as the zone we should be concerned about," said Cahill, "is that it contains parcels that are barren and areas people have talked about developing."

Cahill talked about the possibility of allowing buildings taller than the current limit of six stories.

"I'm not trying to circumvent what took place last year (with the Zoning Task Force's height limitations)," said Cahill.

"That needed to be done.

"But Quincy Sq. is a unique part of Quincy, it has unique circumstances and unique opportunities.

Cahill noted that the square already has two 10-story buildings, South Shore Bank and Quincy Center Plaza.

"Those buildings have already set the tone," he said.

"I'm not proposing that we go over 10 stories, or even that high.

"I'm not suggesting that we go carte blanche. I'm open to any suggestions. I'd like us to come up with a plan," said Cahill, who noted that action would not be taken until a public hearing was held.

He said committee members should decide if it wants to be the city's redevelopment authority, set up another board to work on the issue, or work with the Planning Board.

He also asked whether councillors wanted to rezone the area, which is currently, Business C, to Planned Unit Development so that the council will have control over what goes in there.

Quincy Couple 'Very Excited' Over $7.3M Megabucks Win

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The $7.3 million Megabucks jackpot won by a Quincy couple Saturday night is the biggest single winning by a Quincy resident and the ninth biggest in the state since the game began in late 1982, said Dave Ellis, lottery spokesman.

Mario DelVecchio, 56, and his wife, Eleanor, of Phipps St., Quincy Center, won $275,190 annually for the next 20 years by selecting all six winning numbers in Saturday's drawing. The winning numbers were 8, 16, 19, 28, 29 and 35.

They were the only Megabucks winners Saturday.

DelVecchio, a plumber for a Weymouth company, and his wife Eleanor, picked up their first check Monday morning, Ellis said. "They were pleased and very excited about winning. Everyone who wins is excited," he said.

There have been at least 14 Megabucks winners from Quincy since the game started in December, 1982, Ellis said.

The DelVecchios are the biggest Megabucks winner in Quincy and the ninth biggest winner in the state. Ellis said a Methuen woman won the state's biggest single jackpot of $17 million earlier this month.

The DelVecchios purchased their winning ticket at Stop and Save, 20 Independence Ave., Quincy. Ellis could not recall if the store had sold another winning Megabucks ticket.

Besides taking Saturday's Megabucks top prize, the DelVecchios won $10,000 in a lottery instant game in 1975.

Ellis said there have been at least 14 winning tickets sold in Quincy stores since 1982. Three of those stores have sold two winning Megabucks tickets. They are: Dot's Smoke Shop in Wollaston, the Fruit Basket in Quincy Center and P.J.'s Mini Market in North Quincy.

A store receives one percent of the jackpot up to $15,000 for selling a winning ticket, the spokesman said.

Ellis said Quincy has had its share of lucky Megabucks winners. "Some of the bigger cities like Quincy have had a few winners.

"Quincy is lucky as any other area," he said.

No Liquor Sales Friday Noon To 3

The city's License Board Tuesday voted to prohibit all liquor establishments in the City of Quincy from selling or serving liquor between the hours of noon and 3 p.m. on Good Friday, April 1.

Quincy Point Restaurant Seeks Beer, Wine License

The Fifty-Fifty Restaurant on Washington St., Quincy Point, will be applying for a beer and wine license Tuesday, April 5, at 10 a.m. before the City of Quincy Licensing Board.

"Anyone who has a concern about the granting of this license is asked to be present at this hearing which will take place in the City Council Chambers," said Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro.

Written testimony may also be forwarded to Board of Licensing Commissioners or to DeCristofaro at City Hall, he said.

Board Briefs

The City's License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall.

- Renewed Robert McManus's lodging house license at 25 Shaw St., Quincy. A team inspection was done by the Fire, Health and Building Departments which showed McManus completed all safety regulations.
- Granted a request from Aquarius Lounge, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy for a permit for public dancing on Sundays.
- Granted a request from Quincy High School Wrestling Team for canning dates April 8 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. and April 19 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

$40,000 Grant To City For Library Preservation

Neal F. Sullivan, director of the Public Affairs division in the Office of the Secretary of State, recently presented a $40,000 check to Mayor Francis X. McCauley for the preservation of Quincy's Thomas Crane Library.

Also participating in the ceremony, was State Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy).

The Crane Memorial Library is one of 33 projects across the Commonwealth to receive state funding this year for the repair and restoration of deteriorating historic structures.

The grants are awarded by the Massachusetts Historical Commission, a division of the Office of Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly.

An overview of MHC's role in the grant process was explained at the presentation ceremony.

Connolly, commission chairman, said that, for the fourth consecutive year, monies from the Massachusetts Preservation Projects Fund will be used for the preservation and maintenance of historic properties in public and non-profit use. It is anticipated that these grants will generate an increase in private donations.

The grant allocation will be used for conservation of exterior window and door frames, sills and trim, as well as repainting of exterior doors and windows. The Crane Memorial Library was built in 1882 in memory of Thomas Crane, who made his fortune in operating granite quarries in Quincy. The building is an example of Henry Hobson Richardson's library design.

"Not only does this grant provide immediate assistance for an endangered structure, but it also encourages long-range preservation maintenance planning as well," Connolly said. "A state investment of $1 million will serve to spearhead many revitalization efforts throughout the Commonwealth. It will create jobs and stimulate the economy in Massachusetts communities this year alone. The cities and towns receiving monies will benefit greatly from these grants."

The Massachusetts Preservation Projects Fund was designed to benefit State Register properties in public and non-profit use. It is a matching grant program for up to 50 percent of the total project cost.

A feature of the program allows applicants to request up to 75 percent of total construction costs provided they establish an endowment fund for the long-term maintenance of the grant-assisted property.

City Hopes To Reopen Landfill By Mid-Summer

The city hopes to be able to reopen Phase III of the sanitary landfill in West Quincy by mid-summer, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

"We're in the process of doing some work in line with the court order now that the winter is over," said McCauley.

The landfill was ordered closed last spring by the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

The City Council recently appropriated money to bring the landfill into compliance with the DEQE regulations.

McCauley noted that Phase III only has enough space for nine months to a year of the city's residential rubbish.

It is currently being trucked out of the city at $83 a ton, he noted.

By using Phase III for even a limited amount of time, the city can save a substantial amount of money, according to McCauley.

The city will also decide later this year whether or not to apply to the DEQE to reopen Phases I and II of the landfill, he said.

"We need to know the regulations and what it will cost (to be in compliance)," said McCauley.

8 MIA-POW Flags At Fire Stations

The Quincy Fire Department marked Vietnam Veterans' Memorial Day Tuesday by raising eight Missing in Action-Prisoner of War flags simultaneously at fire stations throughout the city.

The three foot by five foot black with white lettering MIA-POW flags, purchased by Local 792 of the International Association of Firefighters, were raised during ceremonies at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at the city's eight fire stations.

The flags, to fly along with the American flag, will be flown every day, said George Parker, president of Local 792.

The MIA-POW flags were raised at Quincy Ave., fire headquarters, Hancock St. station in North Quincy, Washington St., Quincy Point, Beale St., Wollaston, Copeland St., West Quincy, Sea St., Houghs Neck, Huckins Ave., Squantum, and Doane St., Germantown.

Members of the Quincy Fire Department Color Guard, the Boston Gaelic Fire Brigade as well as various veterans' groups participated in the ceremony.

Members of the firefighter's union also participated in a Prayer Service Tuesday afternoon honoring all Vietnam veterans from Quincy at the Marina Bay Memorial Clock Tower in North Quincy.

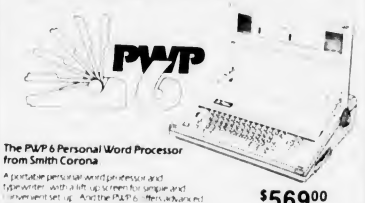
Mayor Francis McCauley as well as other local and state dignitaries attended the service. The service was hosted by developers and friends of Marina Bay in association with the Quincy Vietnam Veterans Combined Armed Forces.

In addition to Parker, other Local 792 officers include: Joseph Ceurvels, vice president; William LaRaia, secretary; James McCarthy, treasurer and Lt. John Barber, chairman of the flag committee.

McCauley To Submit Increased Budget

Mayor Francis McCauley will present the Fiscal Year 1989 city budget to the City Council at the Monday, April 4, council meeting.

The budget requests total $109,772,573, an increase of $10,157,195 or 10.2 percent over total FY 1988 expenditures to date, according to McCauley.



The school budget, including school debt and employee insurance totals $40,570,899 or 37 percent of the total budget, he said. The Police and Fire Departments budgets total $2,028,434 or 19 percent, while Public Works Department spending requests total $11,056,006, or 10.1 percent, McCauley said.

McCauley noted that anticipated revenues for FY 1989 fall short of the FY 1989 budget requests and non-appropriation charges by over $3 million.

McCauley said that passage of a sewer user fee is critical to the effort to bring city revenues into balance with expenditures for the coming year.

A vote on the sewer user fee is expected at the April 4th City Council meeting, according to the mayor.

McCauley Fires Police Officer

Mayor Francis McCauley has discharged Quincy Police Officer Lionel Jones, 40, for "reasonable cause."

In a March 22, letter to Jones, McCauley stated, "In making this decision, I have considered all mitigating factors presented, including but not limited to, alleged racial discrimination, alleged stress and your alleged alcohol problem."

McCauley said he acted after he received a report on Jones from hearing officer, Atty. Paul Barbadoro.

"I don't want to say too much until the case is completely closed," said McCauley. "He has the right of appeal."

Barbadoro presided at hearings that began in January concerning Jones, a Quincy patrolman for 15 years and the only black man on the force.

In his report, Barbadoro stated, "It is in my opinion not an issue of race, but an issue of a police officer who has continually failed to live up to his agreements with the Police Department in the past.

"Officer Jones is an admitted alcoholic, her has on three occasions in the past been given the opportunity to enter into programs designed by the Chief of Police, and with his approval, to deal with his problems.

"On all three occasions, he has failed to attend the Stress Program meetings and has thereby incurred penalties.

"Officer Jones, according to the testimony, has twice as many suspensions as any active police officer on the force.

"There has never been a police officer with as many violations as Officer Jones who has not been discharged at the recommendation of the Chief of Police."

During the hearings, witnesses testified about incidents during which Jones allegedly barricaded himself in his home in Weymouth, and allegedly used cocaine in a Quincy apartment.

Jones denied the allegations.

City Hot Line

Quincy now has a 24-hour heat hot line at 770-4048.

Jane Reikard, Executive Secretary of the Rent Grievance Board, said the hot line was developed through the cooperation of City Councillors at a meeting spearheaded by Councillor Thomas Nutley.

The mayor quickly approved the hot line, according to Mrs. Reikard.

She noted that the mayor has always responded to calls from her office for help with emergency housing and heat for tenants.

The lines and equipment for the hotline system were ordered by DPW Deputy Commr. David Colton; Steve Aluisi, Colton's assistant; and Milder Kusser, chief telephone operator for the city of Quincy, according to Mrs. Reikard.

The phone is located in the Rent Grievance Office at 1120 Hancock St. during the day. At night, the calls will be forwarded to Mrs. Reikard's home or to another interested citizen's home for 24-hour service, she said.

Mrs. Reikard said the hot line can be used for calls of any emergency nature.

"This is the only city in Massachusetts, other than Boston, that has a heat hot line," said Mrs. Reikard.

Tobin Off And Running

Steve Tobin hasn't officially announced his candidacy for the open state representative seat in the Second Norfolk District but he has been long on the campaign trail.

TOBIN

He has already knocked on more than 1600 doors in the district and is encouraged by the reception he is getting.

Tobin, who is making his first political run, knocked on his first door Feb. 2 and he was even out there on that late Friday afternoon sudden freezing rain storm.

Tobin, who is 32 and a Democrat, and lives on Virginia Rd., Merrymount, has a good name recognition factor.

His father Arthur, of course, is a former Quincy mayor and state representative and presently clerk magistrate at Quincy District Court.

Young Tobin is personnel director at the Quincy Mental Health Center.

KELLY

The fact that he and former Councillor Leo Kelly, who will also be running out of Ward 1 for the same seat will split some votes there, doesn't seem to bother him.

"I'm doing my own thing," he says. "I will run the best campaign I can regardless of who is in the race."

Tobin is expected to make his official announcement April 6.

Tobin will be the third announced candidate. Already officially in the race are City Council President Patricia Toland and School Committee member Steve Durkin, all Democrats.

Meanwhile, Kelly who is also a Democrat, is waiting in the wings and has yet to move toward center stage.

ON THE REPUBLICAN side, Denis Tardo, hasn't made his official announcement yet either, but he's out and running.

Tardo, who is president of the Quincy Tenants Organization, has campaign buttons in circulation.

And he apparently has no worry of running short in that department.

He bought a machine that produces them.

CITY COUNCILLORS have often bestowed praise during meetings, but it was seldom more deserved than last week when the subject was Planning Director Richard Meade.

MEADE

City Councillor James Sheets noted a recent newspaper article on Meade in which he said he hoped the neighborhoods would survive the building boom.

"Planning directors usually talk about large projects, bigger and better than before," said Sheets. "I'm very proud that this city planner is concerned about the neighborhoods. I appreciate his feelings for the people of the city." Other councillors echoed his sentiments.

But Meade, a low-key, knowledgeable official, didn't make it out of the meeting without a good-natured jab about his tan which was likened to that of his flashier predecessor, James Tydon.

Mixed Reaction To Raises

proposed raises.

"The mayor is running the city," said Phelan. "He deserves a little consideration."

"Other city officials make a lot more than him.

"The School Committee puts in a lot of time, they deserve a raise.

"I don't think for the amount of dollars, it is an unreasonable raise at all."

City Council president Patricia Toland and Councillor at large Stephen McGrath said they were both undecided.

"I have mixed feelings," said Councillor Toland. "We are facing a year in which we have to make tough budget decisions.

"We should decide what to do with the sewer user fee before we think about raises."

McGrath said, "Initially, the School Committee raise strikes me as high. It's more than double.

"I don't have qualms about raising it somewhat.

"I don't know if I support the other two proposed raises.

"I'm undecided," said McGrath.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney was not available for comment.

Ward 3 Democratic Committee To Elect April 7

The Ward 3 Democratic Committee will elect its officers Thursday, April 7, at 6:30 p.m. at Granite Place, 125 Granite St., Quincy, according to chairperson John J. Tydon, Jr.

The committee will elect a chair, vice chair, secretary and treasurer.

Those elected on a signed ballot will serve a two-year term.

Across Massachusetts, a total of 689 local town and ward committees will meet between April 7 and 17 to hold the elections.

Over 17,000 Democrats serve as members of the local organizations.

Quincy Schools Observing Women's History Month

Central Middle School students will send off balloons imprinted with the slogan, "Write Women Back Into History," today (Thursday).

The activity is part of the Quincy schools' celebration of Women's History Month.

The play, "Heather's Attic," an original exercise written and acted by Central students focusing on contemporary women, was presented to all the students.

At Squantum School, students read stories about famous women from Amelia Earhart to Sally Ride and interviewed their parents for information about changes in women's lives in the last 50 years.

In addition to researching reports on women for the school bulletin board, Parker School students in a play for parents, dressed as famous women characters who told stories of their triumphs and tragedies.

At Snug Harbor School, the fourth grade put together a bulletin board focusing on People in Non-traditional Careers and then toured Quincy Vocational Technical School to observe what technical courses are available to all students.

The Mystery Woman bulletin board at Atherton Hough School gave students and teachers new clues each week about a famous woman. Other classes played a game called 40 Famous Women using cards with pictures of Elizabeth Dole, Corazon Aquino and others.

At Atlantic Middle School, the media center displayed biographies of famous women and seventh grade social studies teachers spotlighted Harriet Tubman, Harriet Beecher Stowe and the Grimke sisters in their study of the Civil War period.

Seventh-grade students at Quincy Point Middle School are investigating the impact of industrialization on farm families, especially as farm daughters left home to become "mill girls." A program called "From Farm to Factory," a collaborative effort of Sturbridge Village and Lowell National Historical Park will show students the story of that change. Students will visit Sturbridge and Lowell in April and May.

A BULLETIN BOARD at Snug Harbor School proclaims Women Building America as part of Women's History Month.

High seas, raised by gale force winds, isolated large areas of homes in Houghs Neck and Squantum and caused an estimated $500,000 damage on the South Shore, largely in Quincy and Hull.

Tides three feet above normal put the Squantum Causeway under one foot of water and homes in the Rhoda and Rockland Sts. section of Houghs Neck were flooded. Winds were clocked at 53 mph at the Blue Hill Observatory.

Fire Chief Thomas F. Gorman ordered a ladder truck from the Atlantic station to standby duty in Squantum and assigned extra men to the Houghs Neck station which was all but inaccessible from the outside.

'ILLEGAL' SIGNS HELP

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa reported the new "walk" and "don't walk" signs put up in Quincy Square have been very effective in reducing automobile-pedestrian accidents. Unfortunately, he said, the signs are illegal.

Della Chiesa, who is also a state representative from Quincy, spoke in support of a bill that would legalize the signs before the Legislative Committee on Highways and Motor Vehicles.

Wined Chicken

Great And Low Calorie

I know that many of you out there share the same thoughts as the not so silent majority -- simply running out of ideas on what to cook for dinner

Lately, with summer along the way (honest), it's time to start thinking about the body and getting in shape (sort of). Here is a great low calorie but gourmetish way to start. This recipe for chicken is cooked in white wine and lemon and is about the most favorite around our place. Sometimes I use boneless breast of chicken cut in steak like sizes or thighs (skinned of course). It takes a mere 15-20 minutes to cook depending on the size of your slices. The difference between this type of chicken and some of the others is that you don't dredge the chicken with flour first.

WINED CHICKEN
1 l.b of chicken breast or
6 or 7 chicken thighs (skinned)
The juice of one lemon
¼ cup white wine garlic powder
salt and pepper to taste

In the smallest amount of oil possible, saute the chicken slices adding the garlic powder and the salt and pepper. After you have turned the chicken once, add the wine, saute again and after a few turns, add the lemon juice. Saute until all the slices are slightly browned and the juice almost gone. I served it with boiled rice and butternut squash, but it goes well with anything.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at That's Italian, Franklin St., South Quincy; Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point , Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The early morning service will last about 45 minutes; everyone in the communioty everyone in the community is invited.

Clergy participants will be: The Revs. Fred and Carol Atwood-Lyon from Quincy Pont Congregational; The Revs. J. William Arnold and Joel Huntington from Bethany Congregational; the Rev. Holy Week And Easter Services At Bethany Church

Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Easter Sunday services will be held at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

A special Maundy Thursday service will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in Bethany's sanctuary.

The first portion of the worship will be the observance of Holy Communion, since Maundy Thursday commemorates Christ's institution of the Last Supper in the Upper Room.

Associate minister, the Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will give the meditation on "An Open Window."

The senior minister, the Rev. J. William Arnold, will conduct the liturgy and members of the Diaconate will serve the communion.

Peter E. Krasinski, at the organ console, will direct the chancel choir in two anthems, "A Legend" by Tschaikovsky, and "Agnus Dei" from the "Requiem" by Faure.

The second portion of the service will be the fourth century office of Tenebrae, which portrays the events leading to Christ's arrest, trial and crucifixion, as recounted in selected scripture passages. The readers represent the disciples. Tenebrae readers will be Irene Belcher, Bruce Byorkman, Lisa Coolidge, Louise Forsyth, Lena Foster, Harry Masey Jr., Darryl Mikami, and James Ross.

As each reading is completed, a candle is extinguished until everything is in complete darkness, symbolizing the flight of all Christ's followers who deserted and left him alone in his hour of trial. The service closes in silence.

On Good Friday, there will be two identical 45-minute devotional services in remembrance of the death and burial of Jesus. The services, in Bethany's chapel, will be held at 12:15 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The services will include portions of "The Order for the Burial of the Dead" and a litany, "Confessions at the Tomb." The cross will be draped in black and a crown of thorns plant will be on the altar.

Organist Peter Krasinski will offer improvisations for the prelude, "Meditations on the Cross" and for the postlude "Meditations on the Tomb." Soloist at the 12:15 service will be H. Winslow Bettinson who will sing "The Hand that Was Wounded for Me" by Towner. At 7:30 the soloist will be Jan Almeida who will sing "Pie Jesu" by Faure.

The Rev. J. William Arnold will preach at both hours on the topic "World Without Christ." The Rev. Joel Huntington will serve as liturgist at the evening service, but at noon he will travel with other Bethany members to the Peace Vigil held annually on Boston Common in remembrance of the violence done on Good Friday.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ will be celebrated Easter Sunday at 10 a.m. in Bethany's sanctuary.

There will be a brass ensemble, timpani, fanfare, stirring hymns, and organ music all under the direction of Peter Krasinski. The Chancel Choir will sing, "The Legend of the Garden" by Lang and "Gloria" from the 12th Mass by Mozart.

"The Growing Edge" will be the sermon topic of Rev. Arnold. A responsive "Act of Joyful Adoration" will be led by Rev. Huntington.

Some 140 Easter lilies will fill the chancel as symbols of Christ's resurrection and as memorials. The lilies will be given to persons confined at home, in hospitals, or in nursing homes.

Easter morning will begin at 6:30 a.m. at Wollaston Beach with the Early Morning Beach Service. Then at 8:30 a.m. an Easter breakfast will be served in Bethany's Social Hall for church members, friends, and guests.

This breakfast is sponsored by the Christian Education Committee, under the leadership of Heather McLain and Harry Massey. Men of the church will cook the meal and the youth fellowship will be the servers. Last year, over 200 persons came to the breakfast all sitting down to eat at the same time as a church 'family.' Church school classes will not be held on Easter so that children can attend the breakfast and the worship service at 10 a.m.

At 11:15 to conclude the morning's events, there will be an Easter egg hunt on the church lawn for all children 3rd grade or younger.

This is sponsored by the Mothers' Club.

For more information on these and other Bethany programs and events contact the church office at 479-7300.

'We Are The Raised!' Sermon At Quincy Point Congregational

When church members and friends gather to celebrate Easter at the Quincy Point Congregational Church, they will find the chancel decorated with Easter lilies.

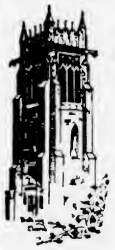
Following the service, members of the Diaconate will distribute the lilies to parishioners who are confirmed to their homes, nursing homes and hospitals and bring to them the best wishes of the church.

The 10 a.m. service will be conducted by the Reverends Frederick and Carol Atwood-Lyon, pastors of the church which is located at Southern Artery and Washington St.

Infant care will be provided in the Crib Room for very young children under experienced adult supervision in the newly furnished room for that purpose. All other children and young people are encouraged to worship with their families.

Residents of the South Shore are invited to attend and to enjoy the music of this Easter season. Organist-choir director, Herman Weiss, will play Fisher's "Christ Is Arisen!" The Church School Singers will sing "Lord of the Dance" by Carter which will be danced by Seminarian Laura Stein and Miss Denise Van Schagen, daughter of David and Deanna Van Schagen of Braintree.

The Chancel Choir will sing Pote's "Easter Song" and the ever-popular "Hallelujah Chorus" by Beethoven. Soprano soloist, Kimberley Blaney, wil sing "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" by Handel.



Trumpeters Bryan Tavares and Matthew Lambiase will take part in tradiditonal hymns.

Easter Sunday will conclude the Lenten Series of sermons on the theme "Who Are We?" with the Easter reply. "We Are the Raised!"

You are welcome

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK
Each spring we see many signs of the eternal victory over death. By miracles which we only dimly understand, God renews the earth. We are emerging from the dark days of winter into the wonderful light of spring. It is an exciting and happy time when life bursts anew around us.
Sometimes one is tempted to observe the Resurrection of our Lord on Easter in much the same mood one might view Niagara Falls at night. With all the beauty of the lights turning the mist into colors of the rainbow and with the majestic roar of the water, it is a stirring sight. Yet one may not be aware of the tremendous power in the tons of water crashing onto the rocks below to form the lovely mist and only a fraction of it harnessed to produce electric power.
So it is with the Easter celebration. There is the loveliness and fragrance of the flowers, the majestic beauty of the Easter hymns and anthems, and yet, perhaps only a fraction of the latent power is actually harnessed to life.
Easter reminds us that this is still God's world and that we face the future with certainty.

Versatile and attractive cedar chest adds storage space to your first home

Many young couples are discovering that their first homes just don't have enough storage space. Small closets can be big problems, especially when you are combining your belongings.

But living in smaller spaces is a fact of modern life. Those rambling ranch style homes and big old Victorian houses were built in the days when space was not yet a hard commodity to come by. It's no wonder you envy your relatives in the country who take their spacious attics and walk in closets for granted.

"Comfortable living as newlyweds takes planning," says Linda Dalton, consumer specialist for the Lane Furniture Company. "Your initial purchases should serve multiple functions. The dining room table can double as a desk, saving space and money. A convertible sofa or loveseat turns your living room into a guest bedroom in minutes."

TWICE AS NICE — The "campaign trunk" was an essential item in the European military. Packed in these specially designed chests, the officers' personal belongings were toted along on military campaigns. Modern cedar chests in this design style are nicely appointed with brass-finished reinforcements, and serve double duty: As cocktail tables and moth-proof storage space.

Double-duty furniture

Today's cedar chests are designed for double duty, providing valuable storage space while serving as distinctive pieces of furniture. "There are over 100 versatile styles available," says Ms. Dalton. "Some are ideal as extra seating, with elegant and colorful upholstery on top. Finishes range from sleek black lacquer to rich cherry or waxed oak, with a choice of Oriental, traditional or contemporary styling."

Her personal favorite is a "campaign trunk" style chest, crafted in mahogany cabinet wood veneers and fortified with brass finished corners. "Attractive from any angle, this cedar chest makes a stunning cocktail table. Yet because it is lined with fragrant cedar wood, the finest woolens and heirloom needlework can be stored away inside, safe from moths."

The versatility of your home furnishings will be equally important in years to come. Because people tend to collect things, and storage space will always be an issue. I've always said that furnishing your first home is fun, solving a jigsaw puzzle of coming from two different directions with only so much available space. A focal point cocktail table that also provides cedar storage is an excellent way to start out."

Including the older member of the wedding

When an older, single woman is asked to be a bridesmaid for a younger relative or friend, her reaction is often mixed. She's pleased at the honor, but apprehensive, too. Will being part of all the wedding plans and traditions make her look and feel like an "old maid"?

A recent issue of Bride's magazine has a few tips for the bride on how to make an older attendant most comfortable.

Understand her feelings. Realize that it's possible for your friend to be delighted for you — but still feel somewhat wistful. If she would like to be married herself, but "Mr. Right" has yet to show up, a woman might wonder what's keeping him. This can make close involvement with a wedding difficult for her.

Head off comments by others. Well-meaning wedding guests can make matters worse by asking your friend "And when are you getting married?" or announcing, "It's your turn next!" Your friend can most likely deal with these tactless comments herself, but you might help.

The best response is usually a lighthearted one that immediately changes the subject. If you notice your aunt interrogating your single maid, don't hesitate to interrupt by suggesting that your maid join you to greet your college roommate at the other end of the room.

Plan with sensitivity. There are some practical considerations you might make for an older attendant. For instance, the dresses you've chosen for your youngest maids may look too "girlish" on an older woman. Perhaps she would wear a more sophisticated version of the style.

Another consideration is the bouquet tossing. If your older attendant is sensitive about being single, throwing the bouquet very deliberately in her direction is like hiring a skywriter to announce her eligibility.

Finally, while many of your friends may offer to host wedding showers for you, you might want to give priority to a shower given by your older attendant — to help her feel more a part of the celebration.

Getting a head start on honeymoon hair care

Looking for versatile honeymoon hairstyles that are appropriate for longer hair? You'll want to look your best with the least possible fuss during this happy but busy time. Why not experiment with all the alternatives, from piling it all on top of your head to drying curly hair straighter?

To create looser curls, towel dry first, then blow dry sections of hair from the roots to the ends while pulling hair straight with your hand or a styling brush.

By pulling more firmly you'll stretch the curl for a straighter, longer look. You can put some curl back where you want it with a curling iron or brush. Be sure to wrap the ends of your hair snugly around the barrel for an even curl.

If your hair is straight or limp, put in some body and curl while blow drying. Wrap a damp section of hair around a styling brush, while directing the airflow of your dryer on the brush.

Do this once or twice on each section until you've achieved the wave effect you like. To make it even curlier, use a curling iron. With straight hair you'll probably have to hold each curl for a longer time, and be even more careful about getting the very ends onto the barrel.

Since for longer hair you need styling as well as drying appliances, it's good news that now for the first time you can get them all in one unit. The unique new Norelco Satin convertible has a single power handle that operates a 1200-watt turbo hair dryer and also heats up separate chrome barrel curling iron and curling brush attachments. Just switch attachments as needed to get the finished look you want.

If it's volume you're looking for, try bending over, letting hair fall freely towards the floor while blow drying. Brush through once and flip head back to upright position. Notice the soft but full effect this creates.

By following these simple tips your hair can be as beautiful and manageable as your honeymoon will be memorable.

How to select the wine for your reception

Like the wedding of individuals, the marriage of food with wine unites separate entities to create a stronger whole.

And like the selection of a mate, the selection of the wine to match your wedding reception meal takes time and thoughtfulness. The goal, of course, is to offer your guests the most satisfying, enjoyable meal possible.

How is that done? A good caterer can be enormously helpful in this area. In addition, it's wise to keep in mind a few basic guidelines.

The most important is: Don't be intimidated by a barrage of tongue-twisting foreign wine names or elitist debates about vintages. Consider what tastes good to you, not the so-called experts.

Experiment a little with your caterer, or in your own kitchen. Pair wines with foods, and see how you like the combinations.

Generally, if serving hearty and robust red meat, such as steak or roast beef, the accompanying wine should probably also be robust.

Red wines such as French red Burgundies or California Cabernet Sauvignon are full-flavored and full-bodied wines, and go well with heavier dishes.

With chicken, fish or shellfish, it is better to serve lighter, chilled wines like the Chardonnays, Johannisberg Rieslings or dry Sauvignon Blancs.

Consistent rose wines, such as Lancers from Portugal, can be an all-purpose compromise between red and white, suitable for almost all dishes from cold cuts to red meats.

But keep in mind that some flavors fight with wine. Very sour, bitter or salty foods do not fit at all with wine or white dinner wine. Again, choose what makes you most comfortable.

Glassware is another consideration, one you won't have to spend much time on. Although traditional wine glass shapes evolved for different wines, the best is really an all-purpose, simple, clear, six- to eight-ounce, tulip-shaped, stemmed goblet. It will satisfy all wines.

As far as cost is concerned, there's no need to invest your dowry in the reception wine. Many fine domestic and imported products are reasonably priced.

A good-tasting wine can only enhance your wedding reception. By following these basic guidelines, and using your own preferences, you're certain to add a personal and delicious touch to this special occasion.

Newlyweds will appreciate a gift of a microwave oven

The busy lifestyle of today's two career couples means they often have limited time together. A practical solution is to give the wedding gift of extra time - a microwave oven.

The Tappan Appliance Company suggests the following features to look for when microwave oven gift shopping:

• Under cabinet mounting — A newlywed couple's first home often has a small kitchen. The under cabinet installation feature conserves valuable countertop space.

• Temperature probe — This lets food cook until done without programming cooking times. The probe measures the internal temperature of food, then turns the oven off when it's done to perfection.

• Turntable — Rotates food inside the oven for even cooking. An on/off button operates the turntable without opening the oven door.

• Built in browner — Adds a fresh baked touch to microwaved foods. Some ovens, such as Tappan's new Micro bake, achieve browning by alternately baking and microwaving foods.

• Programmable control center — Lets cooks program the oven for type and quantity of food, and then does the cooking automatically. A big help when preparing freezer to table convenience foods.

• Cookbook — Step by step instructions on food preparation and serving, illustrated with photos and drawings, will be appreciated by novice cooks. Many microwave oven manufacturers provide these with their products.

The first microwave oven was introduced by Tappan in 1955. Today, more than 60 percent of American homes are equipped with this time saving appliance that offers cooking convenience.

With a wedding gift of a microwave oven, the newlywed couple will enjoy fast and easy meals for years to come.

GIVE THE WEDDING GIFT OF EXTRA TIME: A microwave oven. Its fast cooking convenience will be appreciated by a newlywed couple. This Tappan model automatically programs cooking times for selected types of foods.

A LOOK OF RADIANT BEAUTY on your wedding day is easily achieved when you plan ahead and follow advice from the experts, says Glenn Roberts, creative beauty director for Elizabeth Arden.

Expert suggests 10 steps to perfect makeup for brides

Glenn Roberts, creative beauty director for Elizabeth Arden has traveled to all parts of the world giving makeup advice to thousands of women — including many brides to be.

He's learned firsthand what the problems are and has become something of an expert on bridal makeup. Here are some tips from Glenn on planning the perfect wedding makeup.

1. Don't wait until just before the wedding to experiment with makeup and hairstyles. Start far enough ahead so that you will be comfortable with both the look and the way to achieve it on the day of the wedding.

2. Try out hair and makeup with all the pieces of your wedding ensemble — veil or hat, dress, jewelry — and if possible do it in the actual light of the church or synagogue.

3. Since both dim church lighting and wearing all white tend to "wash out" the features, don't be afraid to wear plenty of color (lively pastels in light to medium shades) and apply it on all parts of the face equally, with no one feature dominating.

4. Have a professional facial a week before the wedding to deep clean skin and pores and give any possible eruptions a chance to heal.

5. If you wear glasses, be sure to choose eyeshadows bright enough to show through the lenses and maintain the balance of color on the rest of the face.

Also, softly line the eyes on both upper and lower lids with a pencil one shade deeper than the eyeshadow.

6. Treat yourself to a manicure and pedicure a day or two before the wedding so that hands that cut the cake look lovely and feet that stand throughout the reception feel smooth and comfortable.

7. To make lipstick last through the ceremony and beyond, apply Visible Difference Lip Liv before applying lipstick. It will also prevent lipstick from "feathering" — bleeding out beyond the mouth.

Then line the lips neatly with a pencil and fill in with lip color using a brush.

8. On the day of the wedding allow two hours of quiet preparation before leaving for the ceremony. Sit, don't stand, relaxed in front of a good mirror with plenty of light to do your hair and makeup.

9. Keep a compact, lipstick and tissues at hand with a bridesmaid or mother for quick touch ups between ceremony and receiving line and after the reception wears on.

10. Relax — if you've followed directions this far, you should be refreshed and ready to enjoy the day looking your radiant best.

WITH BOTH HUSBAND AND WIFE working today in as many as three-fourths of marriages, the average combined income of newlyweds is about $40,000 a year. Having more money to spend has greatly influenced the bride's choice of accessories to complement her wedding dress. For she knows that wearing the right jewelry can make the difference between looking good and looking great! The romance of gold filigree is everlasting. Leon Israel of Tel-Aviv has created an ensemble that features a sapphire-studded necklace for that "something blue." And a trio of delicately webbed bangles by Avdor of Israel will add a subtle touch of glitter to milady's hand-in-marriage. Quality and style are part and parcel of this enchanting jewelry.

Bridesmaid looks: New air of refinement

- Subtle garden colors like pale pastels, that keep their cool, unwilted appearance.
- Tonal florals with an impressionistic feel, reminiscent of Monet's gardens.
- Lovely printed laces.
- Fresh looking jacquards, with high textural interest.
- Delicate sheers.
- Alternative hemlines like the new tulip skirt.

In the midst of wedding planning, don't forget to shop for a bed that you'll both find comfortable

With all the [illegible] shopping involved that needs to be done when getting ready for a wedding, many couples neglect to think about the item that will be [illegible] after the wedding day — bed. Shopping for a comfortable bed.

Because sleep is so [illegible] health, time and energy, and because [illegible] spending quality time with newlyweds [illegible] couples should shop carefully for a bed. Keeping in mind these essential elements when making their selection. Comfort, support, durability, available space and the sleeping surface of the bed.

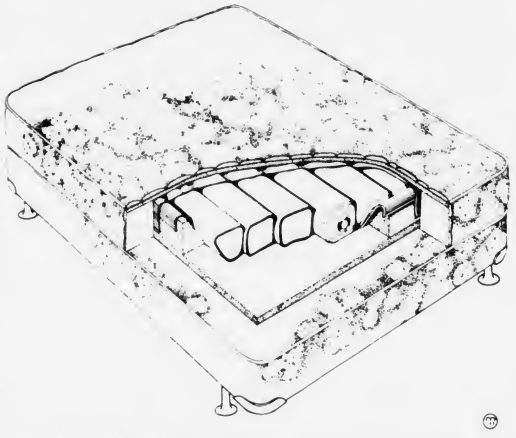
Combination of features

[illegible] durability, price and [illegible] Somma Mattress [illegible] mattress that [illegible] features of both [illegible]

[illegible] Somma mattresses [illegible] be adjusted [illegible] individual comfort by varying the amount of water in the cylinders, meaning that one mattress can provide two different levels of firmness.

This is the perfect solution for couples whose sleeping habits and requirements differ. One sleeper will not even be disturbed by the movement of the other when altering or leaving the bed.

Easy to care for and maintain, the wave free flotation mattress's vinyl cylinders can be filled at the bathtub or sink, and never have to be emptied in order to move the bed. Instead, these vinyl cylinders can be carried individually to the relocated mattress by the simple process of lifting the lightweight mattress foam shell.



Lighter than waterbeds

These super mattresses weigh approximately one third as much as a typical flotation mattress, making them perfect for apartment dwellers who previously were restricted by lease agreements which prohibited ponderous traditional waterbeds.

Standard sizes fit

In addition, budget-conscious newlyweds will also appreciate the fact that Somma flotation mattresses can be fitted with standard sheets.

Comfort, versatility, convenience and easy maintenance are what make the Somma flotation mattress the perfect bedding for newlyweds starting their life together. A good bed will last for years, so it makes sense to start with the best.

MINIMIZING PRESSURE POINTS: Body pressure points that can cause a person to toss and turn as much as 80 times a night are minimized as a result of the Somma mattress patented design of individually filled vinyl cylinders, that are aligned side by side under a two-inch plush quilted top. By varying the amount of water in the individual cylinders, one side of the bed can be made firmer than the other for custom comfort.

New looks in bridesmaid dressing

Bridesmaids' dresses are taking on a newness in styling this season. Gone are the romantic and traditional looks that have been so popular the last couple of years. Today's silhouettes are more sophisticated and elegant.

An "older" look is coming onto the scene with the straight skirt making an impact.

Merchandise manager Janice Gibney of the Susie's chain of stores, which specialize in bridesmaids' dresses, attributes the change in style to a more mature customer. "Women are waiting longer to get married which means that bridesmaids are a little older and want a more sophisticated look," she says.

To the floor and "tea" lengths are very popular and there's a great deal of interest in satin, either in solid or muted prints. Soft, as in pretty pastels, is the word in color.

Feminine accessories, such as gloves, hats and jewelry add lovely accents. Says Ms. Gibney, "Gloves are extremely important, whether wrist length or to the elbow, with fingers or without."

Gibney also advises shoppers to inquire about catalogues. "In our stores, we have a Gunne Sax booklet which customers can order from. This way, they have choices other than what's on the sales floor."

Sensational shower menu salutes the engaged couple with a tantalizing taste of the tropics

With traditional weddings back in style, the bridal shower is once again an important event to celebrate the couple's engagement.

Today's showers aren't limited to female only attendance. More parties include both the bride and groom and their friends and family members.

Foods served at modern showers also reflect the current eating styles. With the Caribbean islands as one of the most popular honeymoon destinations, a shower menu with a taste of the tropics is the perfect choice.

Coconut is a staple ingredient in Caribbean style cooking, and cream of coconut, a blend of tree ripened coconuts and sugar processed into a creamy syrup, easily brings the sweet flavor of this tropical fruit to American cooking.

No bridal shower is complete without a beautiful cake. Easy Ambrosia Cake is a moist, rich cake that combines the classic ambrosia ingredients - coconut and orange.

The dramatic, mouth-watering appearance is a direct contrast to the cake's simple one two three preparation, based on the use of a yellow cake mix.

Cream of coconut is best known as an ingredient in the popular pina colada drink, and a punch version of this tropical refreshment is just right for a bridal shower crowd.

Pineapple juice, crushed pineapple, club soda and cream of coconut are blended for a non-alcoholic beverage with pizzazz. Add light rum for the original pina colada combination.

With its smooth consistency and sweet flavor, cream of coconut can substitute for similar ingredients such as honey, maple syrup and sugar (plus liquid) in many recipes.

EASY AMBROSIA CAKE

(Makes one 10-inch cake)

1 (18¼-ounce) package yellow cake mix with "pudding in"
1 cup Coco Lopez® Cream of Coconut
½ cup frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed
¼ cup vegetable oil
4 eggs
¼ cup water
Whipped cream, orange slices and toasted coconut for garnish

Preheat oven to 350°F. In large mixer bowl, combine cake mix, ½ cup cream of coconut, ¼ cup juice concentrate, oil, eggs and water. Beat on medium speed 2 minutes.

Pour into well greased and floured 10 inch tube pan. Bake 50 to 55 minutes. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pan.

With a table knife or skewer, poke holes about one inch apart in cake almost to bottom. Combine remaining cream of coconut and juice concentrate, slowly spoon over cake.

Chill thoroughly. Garnish. Store in refrigerator.

PIÑA COLADA PUNCH

(Makes about 4 quarts)

Ice Ring*, optional
1 (20-ounce) can crushed pineapple, undrained
2 (15-ounce) cans Coco Lopez® Cream of Coconut
1 (46-ounce) can pineapple juice, chilled
2 cups light rum, optional
1 (32-ounce) bottle club soda, chilled

Prepare ice ring in advance.

In blender container, combine crushed pineapple and cream of coconut. Blend until smooth.

In large punch bowl, combine pineapple mixture, pineapple juice and rum, if desired.

Just before serving, add club soda and ice ring or block of ice.

Ice Ring:* Fill ring mold with water to within one inch of top rim. Freeze. Arrange pineapple chunks and maraschino cherries on top of ice. Carefully pour small amount of cold water over fruits. Freeze.

TROPICAL SAUSAGE BITES

(Makes about 40 appetizer servings)

1½ pounds smoked sausage, cut into ½-inch pieces
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 (20-ounce) can juice-packed pineapple chunks, drained, reserving juice
½ cup Coco Lopez® Cream of Coconut
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1 large green or red pepper, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 (8-ounce) can water chestnuts, drained and halved

In small bowl, stir together cornstarch, reserved pineapple juice, cream of coconut, mustard and garlic powder; add to sausage in skillet.

Refrigerate leftovers.

In 1-quart casserole, combine cornstarch, reserved pineapple juice, cream of coconut, mustard and garlic powder; mix well.

Cook on HIGH power (100%) for 3 minutes or until thick, stirring after 2 minutes.

Cook on HIGH power (100%) for 3 to 4 minutes or until heated through.

Note: Microwave ovens vary in wattage and power output; cooking times may need to be adjusted.

CREAM OF COCONUT AND ORANGE JUICE combine with a yellow cake mix for a quick and delicious bridal shower dessert.

Role of the professional bridal consultant

Most brides, sooner or later, realize the massive scope of the special day they are planning.

A return to the formal, elegant wedding, coupled with a lack of time for the working bride, makes the use of a wedding consultant or planner more a necessity than a luxury.

A professional bridal consultant can help the bride organize, plan and direct all or part of her wedding, and keep it within the budget.

The bride plans only one wedding while the consultant can call on experience and a wide range of suppliers to help make the wedding just what the bride dreams about, without the nightmares that come with planning it by herself.

Once only in the realm of the rich and famous, consultants now work with all sizes of weddings, but always with the same goal. It is the consultant's job to organize, recommend and suggest to the bride the most economical way to prepare for her biggest day.

For a free brochure on the role of the wedding consultant and the names of professionals near you, send a self-addressed, stamped legal size envelope to the Association of Bridal Consultants, Dept. M, 200 Chestnutland Road, New Milford, CT 06776-2521.

The romantic executive bride

Today's working woman is definitely the marrying kind. Whether the decision is made at the first blush of adulthood or later in life, the U.S. Census Bureau and Department of Health and Human Services calculates that 95 percent of the population will eventually marry.

This means that a total of some 2,500,000 weddings will take place annually in the foreseeable future, and the bride planning the majority of these weddings will be working.

According to Bride's magazine:

- Eighty-five percent of brides and 76 percent of grooms are employed.
- Of these working nearly-weds, 23 percent of both brides and grooms are in professional or managerial positions.
- Ninety seven percent of new wives will postpone children and continue working for up to five years after marriage.

The working bride, who checks her briefcase at the door of a bridal salon, is a far cry from the coed who received her marriage certificate with her diploma.

The new executive bride is an adult. The median age for first-time brides climbed from 19.8 in 1961 to nearly 24 years of age in 1986. And, for all brides marrying the first, second or more times this median slides up to 27 years.

Today's bride is a winner, who is marrying a "partner," not just a husband, and plans for a life of friendship, sharing everything from childrearing to household management.

Knowing all this, the executive bride may truly expect that "having it all" is possible. Not all at once, perhaps, but cumulatively — through a longer, healthier, more productive lifetime.

A PERENNIAL FAVORITE for wedding flowers, American grown roses symbolize the loving sentiments of the wedding day.

A universal language of love

[illegible] an anniversary or [illegible] your sweetheart [illegible] their love with a bouquet of roses. [illegible] Why [illegible] a gesture of a passing [illegible] appropriate, the [illegible] white long [illegible] a bouquet [illegible]

A [illegible] the perfect [illegible] wedding flowers. They [illegible] can add the [illegible] splash of [illegible] beautiful [illegible]

[illegible] tradition in [illegible] back to Victorian [illegible] Many [illegible] began with the [illegible] rose which led to the [illegible] giving [illegible] to [illegible] wedding plans.

Today, [illegible] personalize your wedding [illegible] roses that communicate [illegible] feelings for your groom, family members, attendants and close friends.

Matching hues, a rainbow of rose colors and "definitions" that will express your thoughts is one of the most delightful aspects of wedding planning. To get your thoughts on the right track, the growers of roses in the United States and Canada provide these suggestions:

- For your groom — Everyone knows a single rose means "I love you," nothing could say a more perfect statement.

The roses you carry in your bouquet can also send a private message to your groom. Red hybrid tea roses (the long stemmed variety) signify "I'll love you always." coral or some roses denote "enthusiasm and desire." You may want to give him a boutonniere with one red and one white rose bud, to symbolize your unity.

- For your parents — At the end of the ceremony, prior to walking down the aisle with your new partner, present your parents with a bouquet of roses in full bloom.

This colorful and sweet smelling gift says to your parents, and says, "Thanks for everything. We won't forget what you have done for us."

For newlyweds, their parents are a tremendous source of comfort during the hectic times before the wedding. When you feel especially grateful for their love and support, let them know.

After you arrive at the honeymoon destination, send a "thank you" arrangement to each set of your parents. This unique arrangement should be all pink roses which convey "perfect happiness."

- For your attendants — Nothing is as important on your wedding day as being surrounded by the people who mean the most to you.

Let them know you are honored by their presence by selecting the following blooms for their bouquets. Red and yellow roses together stand for "jovial happy feelings." sweetheart roses stand for just what their name means, "you're a sweetheart."

Have your flower girl carry a basket of rose petals. This precious little "gem" walking down the aisle scattering the petals to and fro is spreading the news of life aplenty."

- For wedding guests — Attending a wedding is a chance for guests to celebrate their own relationships, and the enduring sacredness of a marriage commitment.

Season Openers April 4

North Has Good Potential

By TOM SULLIVAN

When the North Quincy baseball team opens its season next Tuesday at Weymouth South at 4 p.m., third-year coach Leo Donovan will be hoping to improve upon last year's 5-14 record with a young team that includes only four seniors.

Donovan took over the Raiders' reins two years ago after a 3-17 season. North had the same record that season but was far more competitive than the previous year.

Last season's 5-14 record is deceiving, as the Raiders were more competitive and lost several close games. North upset Waltham, one of the Suburban League's top teams which qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament, and in the final game of the year dropped a 6-5 squeaker to Waltham on a throwing error.

"We are young but have good potential," said Donovan. "We have a sprinkling of veterans and some very promising newcomers up from the junior varsity." North had a fine turnout of 65 candidates.

North's pitchers include veterans Mark DiMattio and Billy MacDougall, Eric DeBoer and Steve Kohler.

All of these pitchers will play at other positions when not pitching.

DiMattio and DeBoer will share the first base duties when not on the mound. Kohler will be a jack-of-all trades and will also play at third base and first base, and MacDougall will be in the outfield.

Sophomore Jeff Calvert, who was the regular catcher last spring as a freshman, is back and behind him is Jim Bryan.

Veteran Chris Baker is back at second base and is being pushed by Bob Hubbard.

Veteran Billy Wysocki and Tony Anderlionis are fighting it out for shortstop and Mike Ainsley, out for the team for the first time, will be the third baseman.

Outfielders include Billy MacDougall, his brother, Kevin, Steve Rabs, Jimmy Glenn and Mike Walsh.

"Billy MacDougall, DiMattio, Calvert and Anderlionis look like our top hitters," said Donovan. "All hit well last year and Anderlionis hit well for the junior varsity.

"We will again be competitive, but we are in an awfully strong league and also play some outstanding Greater Boston League teams. I think we will hit well and if our pitching comes through, we should hold our own."

Following Tuesday's game at Weymouth South, the Raiders will be home to Weymouth North next Thursday and will play at Everett Monday, April 11. All games start at 4 p.m.

Donovan has Dave Perdios back as junior varsity coach and Jack Outerbridge is back as freshman coach.

BOB CONNOLLY of Quincy was a member of the Suffolk University basketball team this season. A sophomore and a 1985 graduate of Quincy High, he is the son of Arthur and Roberta Connolly.

Quincy Has Veterans Nucleus

Quincy baseball coach Bob Sylvia saw his team miss qualifying for the Eastern Mass. Tournament by one win each of the last two years, as the Presidents finished at 11-9 both seasons.

This year Sylvia has several veterans to build around as Quincy gets ready for its season's opener next Tuesday against Weymouth North at 4 p.m. at Adams Field.

"We are going to have to battle all the way again this year as we are in an awfully strong (Suburban)," Sylvia said. "Also, we are playing some very strong Greater Boston League teams. We have some fine veterans but we are young. We could do something, but I have to wonder how strong is Brockton again this year? And how strong are teams like Waltham and Newton? Brookline and North Quincy should be stronger."

Sylvia has three veteran pitchers, southpaws Wayne Chambers and Jim Dennis and Joe Taylor. Other pitching hopefuls are Steve McInnis, Rich Kissell, Bob Austin and Rich Burns.

Brian Taylor is back catching and the infield has three veterans, second baseman Nick Dragone, league all-star shortstop Dan Biagini and third baseman Sean Thompson.

The big hole in the infield is at first base where Tommy Logan, one of the league's top hitters last year, graduated. Logan's brother Scott, looks like the starter. Greg Chambers will back up Dragone at second base and John Balzano will back up Thompson at third base.

Veteran Ed Flavin will lead the outfielders and he will be joined by Dennis, Chris Beatrice, Joe Taylor and Billy Campbell.

"Biagini and Tommy Logan were among the top five hitters in the league last season and it looks like Biagini, Dragone, Flavin and Thompson will be our leading hitters this season," said Sylvia.

"I can promise you we will be competitive again this season. We have the talent but we play as tough a schedule as any team around. In addition to our league opponents and the strong Greater Boston League teams we play both Weymouth schools and they are always tough."

Following their opener against Weymouth North, the Presidents will play at Weymouth South next Thursday and will host Arlington on Monday, April 11, at Adams Field. All games are at 4 p.m.

Sylvia has Bob Troup back as his junior varsity coach and George Peachey is back as freshman coach.

"George, old dependable, is my right arm, both in baseball and hockey," said Sylvia. "And Bob does a fine job as jayvee coach in both sports."

Mite A's Win, 5-1

With a minute and a half left Needham pulled its goalie and attacked the Quincy end, but goalie Brian Walsh, who played an excellent game, stopped four shots that looked like certain goals.

"It was a great game by both teams, but it was a team effort that gave Quincy the win," said assistant coach Bill O'Brien.

The team's youngest player, Mike Ryan, was named the MVP for Coach John Ryan's team. He worked hard all season, set up plays, back checked well and never gave up in a game regardless of the score.

Morrell Twins Double Standouts For Quincy Girls

The Quincy High girls' basketball team had only a 5-13 record this season, but coach Doug MacFarlane had one of the outstanding sister combinations in the state in senior twin tri-captains Patti and Gayle Morrell.

The twins, who led the First Ladies in scoring a year ago, had brilliant seasons for the Quincy girls.

Patti, a first-team Suburban League all-star, led the team in scoring with a 14.8 game average.

She scored a school record 41 points against Brockton and MacFarlane said, "It was one of the most fantastic displays of shooting I have ever seen."

She also led the First Ladies in rebounding with 193, an 11.4 average, and was second in steals with two a game.

Gayle, who was a second-team league all-star selection last year and a Patriot Ledger all-scholastic, was second in scoring with a 14.6 game average, second in rebounding with 190, a 10.5 average, and fourth in steals with 1.7 a game.

"These girls were just outstanding all season long," said MacFarlane. "They are very unselfish and, despite their scoring records, they are team players."

Mite B's Upset S. Boston

Quincy's Mite B hockey team, sponsored by the Quincy Firefighters' Association, wound up the regular Greater Boston League season by upsetting previously unbeaten South Boston, 5-1.

Quincy finished in second place in the Mite Open Division of the GBL with a 9-4-1 record and finished second place in the K of C Tournament and the Coca-Cola Tournament. The team looks forward to the Presidential Tournament in April at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Tom Sullivan had two goals for Quincy and Billy Barron, Joe Bracken and Robbie Winter one each. John Manning, Betsy Stone and Winter had two assists each and John Manning one.

Goalie Timmy Sheenan played his best game of the season, stopping wave after wave of Southie rushes. His quick glove robbed the South Boston wings of sure goals with his cover-ups.

The Quincy-South Boston matchups are always physical and Quincy drew nine penalty minutes. Chris DiMattia turned in the defensive performance of the game, keeping the Southie offense frustrated.

Defensemen Eric Joyce and Matt Langille played outstanding games and Jimmy Casinelli also played excellent hockey, keeping the puck in the zone.

"This victory was a real team effort," said a jubilant coach Kevin Mock. "It was a great way to end our season."

Grande's Team Leads St. John's League

John Grande's team leads St. John's Holy Name Bowling League with a 31-17 record, followed by Tom Feltrup's team at 27-21.

The rest of the standings: Ben Williams, 26-22; Joe Matarazzo, 24-24; Don Gilliland, 22-26, and Bob Saluti, 14-34.

Grande rolled the weekly high single of 119 and Saluti had the high three of 344.

Grande's team had the high team single of 383 and Feltrup's team had the high three of 1072.

The Top Ten: Grande, 102.3; Saluti, 101.2; Matarazzo, 93.6; Feltrup, 92.1; Art DiTullio, 91.9; Duey DiCesare, 91.7; Lew MacLennon, 91.6; Williams, 90.0; Gilliland, 90.0; Ernie DiTullio, 89.9.

Woodward Edged Out Of Tourney Title

The Woodward School for Girls' basketball team just missed winning its second straight Eastern League Division II championship, losing to the Montrose School of Westwood, 44-33, in the championship game.

This was only the second year in the league for Woodward and coach David Denneno said, "Not bad for a newly-formed team."

Both years the team has been dominated by National Honor Society scholars. According to headmaster Robert Johnston, last year's students were "analytical, highly motivated. They decided that if they were going to form a basketball team they were going to do it right--and they were going to win.

"They sat down with their coaches (Denneno and Pam Praetsch) and decided what needed to be done. And then they did it."

"We are very proud of their accomplishments," said Denneno. "Pam and I weren't at all sure what shape the team would be in this year. Last year graduation claimed all but one of the starting players. But this year's group pulled together right from the start."

Senior Cathy Deery was a league all-star and she and freshman Carrie Hughes were selected tournament all-stars.

Denneno is looking forward to next season. "How can we lose with only one player graduating?" he said. With the championship trophy last year and second place plaque this year, the Woodward girls are aiming to bring the title back home in Quincy.

WEEK OF: March 31

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You're naturally optimistic and usually impatient. You're a born leader and possess a good sense of humor. Fresh ideas come readily to you. Over the next months the key is to present these ideas at the most opportune times. Travel and renewed friendships are the twin themes of the late spring and summer months.

AQUARIUS – January 21 - February 19
New light is shed on a nagging question, and a logical solution may be closer than you realize. Finance and career may prove more rewarding. Friendship situation improves.

PISCES – February 20 - March 20
A dreamy mood can find you penning love notes or writing poetry. Disputes are favorably resolved thanks to partner's willingness to compromise. Mysterious acquaintance becomes more down to earth.

ARIES – March 21 - April 20
More sharing is the key this week. Your willingness to take a temporary supporting role can lead to advancement on the career front. Warm and natural tones suit your current romantic mood.

TAURUS – April 21 - May 22
Current trend sees you involved in financial matters. Creativity is also spotlighted. You find yourself offering comfort and cheer to friends, relatives, and nearly everyone else.

GEMINI – May 23 - June 21
Stability returns to a shaky relationship. New project gets under way, and your quick wit and willingness to work hard get it off to a strong start.

CANCER – June 22 - July 22
Satisfying challenges make this a rewarding but somewhat emotional week. You might be involved in an interesting survey or lively debate. Romance is emphasized as the new month begins.

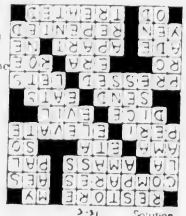
LEO – July 23 - August 22
Friendship is emphasized over the coming week. Sharing – and a willingness to take a supporting role – can lead to a prestigious community assignment. You help restore a relative's sagging self-confidence.

VIRGO – August 23 - September 22
It's important to consider various career options before making a decision. Some communications delays may keep your message from being heard. The week may prove surprisingly sociable.

LIBRA – September 23 - October 22
Staying alert to community events can land you in the right place at the right time. You may be surprisingly gullible, so beware of slick salespeople. Romance emphasizes sentimentality.

SCORPIO – October 23 - November 21
Secrets and mysteries are the themes of the week. You assume the twin roles of detective and confidant. You find yourself dealing with people who have very high standards.

SAGITTARIUS – November 22 - December 22
Suspicions are put to rest. A happy career surprise may be on tap for this period. Health and activity are highlighted, but be careful not to overexert yourself.



CAPRICORN – December 23 - January 20
Expressing yourself in a creative way can prove surprisingly satisfying. Career delays should end after the weekend. Romancewise, the new month starts on an upbeat note.

Easter Services, Breakfast At Squantum First Church

The Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir of the First Church of Squantum combined to sing a dramatic offertory anthem Sunday during the Palm Sunday service.

John Carter was the composer of the piece which was entitled "Hosanna, Loud Hosanna."

It was sung in a variety of musical modes including being sung antiphonally by choir members at opposite ends of the sanctuary, in parts, in unison, accompanied at some times and, at others, a capella. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

Earlier in the service, the Junior Choir and congregation sang hymns. Kristen Fluhr played the glockenspiel.

The service also included a dramatization of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem on the first Palm Sunday.

The morning began with a Palm Sunday breakfast for church members and friends in Fellowship Hall. Following the breakfast, at which the attendance was double its usual number, worshippers made their way upstairs to the sanctuary for the morning service.

Palm branches were distributed by Amy Harper, Kate Johnson, Ian MacRitchie, James and Mark Potter, Gwen Williamson, and Emily Zachring.

Young people from The Way Up and their leaders filled four of the pews in the church. The Way Up is a special ministry with young people outside the church sponsored by the First Church of Squantum and other South Shore churches.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, preached on the topic, "But, Lord, We Want It Now!"

Drucilla Warnes and Sue Adams were the greeters. Lore Wallin and Harry Holmes were the ushers, and Barbara Anderson and Shirley Mason hosted the Fellowship Hour after the service.

On Maundy Thursday (tonight), the Lord's Supper will be observed at 7:30 p.m. On Good Friday, members of the church are encouraged to attend all or part of the service at the Quincy United Methodist Church in Wollaston from noon to 3 p.m. The service is sponsored by the member congregations of the North Quincy Inter-Church Council.

On Easter, members will gather at Moswetuset Hummock at 7:30 a.m. for an Easter sunrise service to be followed by an Easter morning breakfast at the church, and the traditional Easter service at the church at 10:30 a.m.

Easter Service At Covenant Congregational

The morning worship service on Easter will begin at 10 a.m. instead of the usual time of 10:45 at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

The sanctuary will be decorated with Easter lilies and red tulips.

Rev. Fred Lawson will preach on the topic "Good News From the Tomb."

The ushering team for the month of April is Etta Erickson, Ruth Johnson, Virginia Sylvester, and Ida Taylor. A nursery for all children age five and under is available and will be attended by Alba LaCoste.

The choir, directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, minister of music, will sing "Fanfare" by Gillis as introit, "Alleluia" by Mozart and "Christians to the Paschal Victim" by Williams. Mr. Smith will play "The Joy of Resurrection" by Kuhnau and the "Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel.

On Maundy Thursday there will be a communion service at 7:30 p.m. Rev. Lawson's sermon will be "When God was Executed." The choir will sing the cantata, "The Seven Last Words," by Schuetz. Soloists will include Rev. Lawson, Robert Dano, Luisa Dano, Kenneth Nelson, and Stanley Nelson.

The First District Covenant Women's meeting will be held at the Community Covenant Church in East Bridgewater Saturday, April 9. The Woman's Seaman's Friend Society will meet at the Community Covenant Church, West Peabody Monday, April 11.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

Good Friday Services At United Methodist

Good Friday services will be held at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, from noon until 3 p.m.

Pastors of the Inter-Church Council will speak 20 minutes each on the Seven Last Words.

The public is invited to attend for three hours or leave at anytime.

Rev. Bruce Noyes, Father Fagan, Rev. Elden Zuern, Rev. Eugene Langevin, Rev. Richard Malmquist, Carolyn Seifent and Rev. A.H. Wismar will attend.

Easter Sunday Breakfast, April 3, will be served from 8 to 9:15 a.m. Reservations can be made by contacting the church office.

St. Chrysostom's Spring Fair April 14

A spring fair will be held Thursday, April 14 at St. Chrysostom's Church Hall, 1 Linden St., from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The fair will feature jewelry, a handcraft table and white elephant table.

Lunch will be served from 11:30 to 1 p.m.

Cahill Seeks Downtown Revitalization Plan

(Cont'd from Page 1)

"My personal feeling is that I'd like to have a board separate from the council report to the council," said Cahill.

"Quincy Sq. is a small section of Quincy even though it has a large impact.

"We want to encourage some building downtown."

Cahill also said he thought the need for affordable housing could be addressed in Quincy Sq.

"Ten-story buildings down there are not improper," said Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro.

"I think we should go in that direction."

DeCristofaro added that he would be concerned that the neighborhoods not be adversely affected.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley said he was surprised at the small crowd of five people in the audience for the meeting.

"I expected to see 40 or 50 people," said Nutley.

He said during a recent trip to Washington, D.C. for the National League of Cities Conference he was "tremendously impressed" with the buildings in that city, their facades and variety of style.

Many offered some green space, he said.

"This is a glorious, golden opportunity to do something with downtown Quincy," said Nutley. "Our legacy to the city.

"I think to just go in there with cookie cutter buildings is making a big mistake."

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said, "I don't think the council should give up its role in the final say.

"We should have an advisory committee to lend expertise."

Phelan suggested that a member of the council sit on such an advisory committee.

"There was unrestricted development until the zoning Task Force," said Councillor at large Stephen McGrath, who as council president, had formed the task force.

"I don't want the message to be that we were the ones who stopped development.

"The City Council essentially is the redevelopment authority, and it should continue in that role.

"I would be very, very cautious removing the six story height limitation in the absence of any plan.

"It sends the wrong type of signal," said McGrath, who added that the operation of the city's parking facility in downtown Quincy by Kinney Systems continues to be deficient.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien suggested that the traffic engineer be consulted on what impact additional cars would have in Quincy Sq.

Chretien also said he would like the council to consider the concept of linkage, or inclusionary zoning, with downtown development.

"We have to begin somewhere talking about revitalizing downtown Quincy," said City Council president Patricia Toland.

"It's time we sat down and really thought a lot about what we want in the center of our city."

She talked of a seminar, possibly on a Saturday, where "downtown business people, the Planning Department and taxpayers can come together, talk and look ahead."

Cahill noted that there are four or five parcels in downtown Quincy which are underutilized, such as the site of the old Kincade's Building on Hancock St. and the South Shore Bank parking lot on Chestnut St.

"My purpose is not to change the character of downtown Quincy and make it a mini Boston," said Cahill.

"I'd like to see us fit in the pieces with the rest of the puzzle."

"Hopefully, the process has just begun."

Robert Colman, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and owner of Colman's Sporting Goods, said that if the vacancies in downtown Quincy are allowed to stand they might grow.

"Quincy Sq. has been on a roller coaster over the years," he said. "It was THE shopping center on the South Shore, then it dipped. But we're still here.

"We have to make use of the land we've got.

"The city will prosper if the downtown prospers."

McCauley To Campaign For 4-Year Terms

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Now that the City Council has voted to put it on the November ballot, Mayor Francis McCauley said he will campaign for his proposal to increase the terms of office for mayor and city councillors from two to four years.

"I'll make myself available to speak to groups," said McCauley.

"I think this will become an issue in the election, and you'll see some healthy debate.

"Some groups will be for it, and others will be against it.

"I don't know how it will go."

McCauley noted that if the proposal is accepted by the voters, it will not go into effect until 1992.

Related Story On Back Page

"This is not something to perpetuate me in office," said McCauley, "even if I run in 1989, I have said I will not run after that."

McCauley, a student of history, said that Quincy has seen a number of changes since it became a city in 1888.

"At that time, officials served for one year terms, and there were 23 City Councillors and nine School Committee members.

"City Council meetings sometimes lasted until 4 a.m.," he said.

Four year terms are much better than two, according to McCauley, who said they have been accepted in Brockton and Waltham.

"It takes a couple of years to get your feet wet in government," he said.

"Under the present charter, you're no sooner in, than you're running again.

"It's also harder to get good people to work with you from the private sector for two years. Four years would be a greater inducement.

"It also gives people time to grow in a job.

"It's a tough job, and you should be able to make decisions without political ramifications."

McCauley said the city's system of checks and balances would protect it against an individual who turned out to be a bad mayor.

"The City Council can put a hammer on requests and refuse to go along," he said.

"Our system of checks and balances is strong enough to minimize damage by a bad individual in the mayor's office.

McCauley estimated that voter turnout for the November election could be as high as 85 percent.

"Win or lose, the voters will have their way," he said.

Council Rejects Sewer Fee

Quincy residents will be spared, at least for now, a separate sewer user fee which could have cost a typical family of four $95 this year.

After much discussion Monday night, the City Council voted 5 to 4 against the fee proposed by Mayor Francis McCauley to offset a 48 percent increase in charges by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

The increase is to pay for the cleanup of Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay.

Small residential commercial owners currently pay sewer fees as part of the property tax.

Those voting against the fee were City Councillors Theodore DeCristofaro, James Sheets, Thomas Nutley, Patricia Toland and Stephen McGrath.

Councillors voting in favor of it were Timothy Cahill, Lawrence Chretien, Charles Phelan and Michael Cheney.

McGrath said he would not vote for the fee because of the city's financial situation which he said includes some $5.1 million in free cash and $3.3 million from sources such as UDAG grant repayments.

"In light of that amount available, I don't believe this is the year to institute a sewer user fee," he said.

"...It could be a devastating burden on the homeowner."

Sheets, as well as other councillors, praised McCauley's handling of the city's finances.

"It's because of him that we are in as good a financial position as we are," said Sheets.

Meeting Called For City Cleanliness

Mayor Francis McCauley was scheduled to hold a meeting of city officials and business community leaders to discuss a program to improve cleanliness in the City of Quincy in the Mayor's Office.

Items for discussion were to include business community involvement, cooperative clean-up efforts between city departments, businesses and neighborhood groups, as well as the establishment of an educational program on city cleanliness in the school system.

A proposed city ordinance updating property owners' responsibility in keeping their properties clean and free of debris was also to be discussed.

The ordinance, proposed by Mayor McCauley, is being reviewed by the City Council.

Point Beer, Wine License Denied

By KRISTINE STRENGE

Fifty-Fifty Diner, 618-622 Washington St., Quincy Point will not be able to serve alcohol due to Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro and residents of Quincy Point who are opposed to any new alcoholic licenses granted in their neighborhood.

David E. Tetzel, president, manager and clerk of the Fifty-Fifty Diner appeared before the License Board Tuesday to request a wine and malt license.

The board denied his request due to the objections of DeCristofaro and residents of Quincy Point.

Tetzel has 10 days to appeal to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission in Boston.

Currently the diner is operating with a common victualer license which was granted May 1987.

Tetzel, who had applied for the same license in February, but was forced to withdraw without prejudice because of opposition, told board members his restaurant was the only one in the area without an alcohol license.

He said serving alcohol 7 days a week from 7 a.m. to midnight would help business.

"I'm only trying to compete with area restaurants," said Tetzel.

When Tetzel received his common victualer license DeCristofaro said he welcomed the diner into the city of Quincy but stressed that he would oppose any

Tobin Enters Race For State Representative

Arthur Stephen Tobin is candidate for the vacant state representative seat in the Second Norfolk District.

Tobin was scheduled to officially enter the race with two announcements Wednesday.

The first--an informal announcement--was scheduled for the morning at Tobin Towers in Clay Sq., Wollaston.

The second--and formal announcement--was set for a 6:30 p.m. reception and campaign kickoff at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Tobin, who is 32, a Democrat, and a resident of Virginia Rd., Merrymount, seeks the seat vacated by Thomas Brownell to become associate justice of Plymouth District Court.

Tobin is stressing the importance of electing a candidate with vision toward the future.

He says he will sponsor legislation in the areas of education, stronger penalties for drug pushers, and affordable housing.

He says he will also "fight for fairness on behalf of the city's struggle with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority."

At Tobin Towers, he said he wanted to make his announcement there "because it is very meaningful because the building was named after my father, Arthur Tobin, former mayor of Quincy for his dedicated service to the needs of senior citizens."

He added:

"I intend to continue [illegible] dedicated service."

The Second Norfolk District is comprised of Ward 1, Precincts 1 through 5; Ward 3, Precinct 2; Ward 4, Precincts 1, 2, 4 and 5; as well as Ward 5, Precincts 1 and 2.

Educated in Quincy public schools, Tobin is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame where he majored in government.

A lifelong Quincy resident, he is the oldest of Arthur and Shirley Tobin's children.

He is married to the former Francine Comeau. They are parents of a son, Kevin Francis.

Symphony Orchestra Week

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed the week of April 4 [illegible] as Quincy Symphony Orchestra Week in Quincy.

In the proclamation, McCauley noted that the QSO, now in its 34th year, presents three regular concerts each season, in addition to a pops concert in May.

"Many of the musicians of the area have been presented at [illegible] concerts and have continued on with notable degrees of success as concert artists, symphonic musicians and teachers," he said.

Vietnam Veterans Remembered At Marina Bay Prayer Service

Developers and friends of Marina Bay, in association with the Quincy Vietnam Veterans Combined Armed Forces hosted a Prayer Service on the occasion of Vietnam Veterans Day, March 29.

The Prayer Service, that honored all Vietnam Veterans of Quincy who served in the Vietnam War, took place in front of the Marina Bay memorial Clock Tower, which was dedicated last fall.

Mayor Francis McCauley, several city councillors and various other local and state-wide dignitaries, joined over 150 people, who attended despite the chilly temperatures, to mark the special occasion.

Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Parish in Quincy, delivered the invocation and prayer to commemorate Quincy veterans who served in the Vietnam War. Several color guards representing various veterans organizations also participated in the solemn tribute.

The Marina Bay Memorial Clock Tower was dedicated last fall to the men and women of Quincy who are still missing in action or who died while serving in the Vietnam War. These Vietnam veterans' names are engraved on one side of the four-sided clock tower. The 132-foot, gold-lead domed memorial, one of the first privately funded memorials of its kind, is also inscribed with the history of Marina Bay and a quote from the late President John F. Kennedy:

"A nation reveals itself not only by the men it produces, but also by the men it honors, the men it remembers."

DeCristofaro To Meet With Area Parents On Kidnapping

Ward 2 Councillor, Theodore DeCristofaro, has scheduled a meeting with Quincy Point parents Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse to discuss the kidnapping of a young girl in their neighborhood Sunday.

A [illegible]-year old girl was kidnapped by a young man Sunday about 3:30 p.m. while she walked on Mound St. in Quincy Point with her brother and a friend.

The man was described as white, in his 20s, about 5 feet, 7 inches tall with black hair and stubbly beard.

Robert Hanna, Crime Prevention Officer of the Quincy Police Department, will be in attendance to discuss the concerns of the parents.

Councillor DeCristofaro urges all parents to attend.

Opposes 4-Year Terms, Proposed Pay Raises

(The following letter was written after the 5-2 Ordinance Committee vote against the proposed four-year terms for mayor and city councillors but before this week's 5-4 council vote putting the proposal on the ballot as a referendum question.)

Editor, The Quincy Sun

I would like to express some thoughts on a few Quincy issues.

One, I would like to congratulate the city councillors who voted down extending the city's terms of elected officials to 4 years. We as voters may have lost the accountability of our elected officials if you had passed this measure. If someone presently in office is fairly representing his or her voters they will get re-elected. If they don't do this then they should worry and don't belong in an elected position.

Last year we had a surplus of over $10 million yet the finance department, fire department, city's nurses, school teachers, principals, nurses' aides and the list goes on, were striking or threatening to strike. Why not both for being under paid. Why we are constantly told Prop. 2½. The school department has taken the brunt of the Prop 2½ cuts.

Staffing, programs, materials, supplies, salaries and maintenance all have suffered. The end result is the children of Quincy are not getting as good an education as many of us got, plus the schools are understaffed, under supplied, buildings are not maintained, this list also goes on. Some things have been getting a little better but we have a long way to go. Not only in school issues but also city issues.

We now have a school department that needs $14 million of repairs to properly fix all school buildings. This figure is much higher than it was because it has been growing unrepaired for 7 years, and we have a lack of supplies in all school buildings, violations in the state law in physical education in many schools and more. Yet we have sold 10 schools. But most of that money, the schools never saw. Some of it went to other vital services such as police and fire which is important too. But not all of it did.

Mayor McCauley took office at a salary of $25,000 which I admit is underpaid for all he is responsible for. Since that time he has doubled his salary to $50,000 and now wants another $5,000 increase. School Committee was also under paid, a few years ago salary was zero, it went to $1,200 and now it is $2,400. I also agree they should get paid for their service but $5,000 each is a bit steep when the school department is lacking so many other things due to lack of money.

The city councillors just got a big raise along with the above mentioned groups. Enough is Enough. A Water and Sewer Bill is being raised by Mayor McCauley to be paid by the taxpayers of Quincy above our already increased property tax bill because the city can't afford it.

Our dump has been closed and we are about to be asked to divide and recycle our trash because the costs are too high. Please tell me with all these money issues facing us, how can the city have enough money to afford paying elected city officials more of a raise when they just got a big one. If you are going to pay more in taxes, shouldn't you expect to receive more city services. Are we?

The city and school departments need more money to implement the needed services for our city not the elected officials!

Support For Pay Raises

Should the mayor, City Council and School Committee get pay raises?

There is mixed reaction to that question in the present City Council but a former city councillor thinks they deserve them.

In fact, former Councillor Carl W. Anderson thinks the mayor and council should get even more than the hikes proposed by Mayor Francis McCauley.

ANDERSON

McCauley would raise the annual mayor's salary from the present $50,000 to $55,000 and the city councillors from $9,000 to $10,000. It would be done in two steps.

Anderson who served 20 years in the City Council (four as Ward 2 councillor and 16 as councillor at-large) from 1943 to 1963 says:

"The mayor and city council are worth every dime they get.

"Frank McCauley is our best mayor since Jim McIntyre. He's worth $60,000.

"And, the councillors should get $15,000."

The School Committee has proposed a pay raise for itself -- from the present $2,400 to $5,000.

What does Anderson think about that?

"The School Committee should get $5,000 a year. They put in a lot of time."

And Anderson who served on the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers after he left the City Council, thinks that board should also be paid.

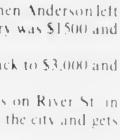
"You get what you pay for," he says.

Anderson and his council colleagues worked for virtual peanuts in their day compared to today's salaries.

When Anderson first entered the council a councillor's pay was $500 and the mayor's $4,800. The council's salary got to $3,000 when Plan E came in in the early 1950's but was then cut back. When Anderson left the council in 1963, the council's salary was $1,500 and the mayor's $5,000.

In 1964 the council's salary went back to $3,000 and the mayor's salary up to $10,000.

Anderson who is now 94, still lives on River St. in Quincy Point, keeps a close watch on the city and gets around as much as he can.



"I'm looking forward to 100," he says.

FORMER Dist. Atty.-City Councillor George Burke is now the proud owner of Kevin McHale's Celtics' jersey.

BURKE

Burke bid and won it for $3500.

Along with it went a McHale Celtics jacket and a future dinner with McHale and his wife. Burke gets to invite five guests.

The reason Burke wanted the jersey was that he wore No. 32 when he was a Celtics rookie in 1957.

Burke explained his interest in the jersey to McHale, telling him he had worn that number before McHale was even born.

Someday the Celtics will probably retire No. 32 for McHale.

"They'll be retiring my number, too," Burke told McHale.

McHale autographed the jersey. "Dear George. Thanks for No. 32."

It would be the second retirement of No. 32 for Burke.

A few months ago, the University of Mass.-Amherst retired No. 32 in honor of Julius Erving who wore that number after Burke did.

"So, now when Kevin's No. 32 is retired, I'll have two No. 32's retired," Burke muses.

Save $1 Million A Year

Now Is The Time For Recycling, Says Chretien

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

"There has never been a better time for recycling in Quincy," says City Councillor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the recently established City Recycling Committee.

"The landfill is closed," said Chretien in a recent interview with The Quincy Sun.

"It's costing the city $40 a ton to collect its residential rubbish, and $85 a ton to truck it out of Quincy.

"Recycling can keep city spending down. Our goal is to save over $1 million a year with recycling," he said.

His committee is scheduled to submit its proposals in a report to the mayor and City Council around June 1.

"We're catching up with other sections of the country," said Michael Wheelwright, a principal planner with Quincy's Department of Public Works.

He is also Department of Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson's representative on the recycling committee.

Wheelwright was a city planner for 30 years in California where recycling programs have been in place for some time.

"In California, the Bank of America sponsors boxes with its name on it for tin cans and bottles to be picked up," Wheelwright said.

"Recycling will become part of every city's life," said Wheelwright, who noted that it is now commonplace in Europe and Japan.

"Once it is a matter of routine, it's incredibly easy," he said.

Chretien said the committee is working on a composting program for biodegradable items such as leaves, and yard clippings which he hopes to have in place by fall.

The material would be separated by residents, picked up at curbside on rubbish collection days and brought to the city's landfill in West Quincy.

The landfill was ordered closed last year by the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, but the city hopes to reopen it at least for a limited time.

"It looks like the DEQE is eager to assist us with composting," he said.

The committee is discussing having the composting material picked up by DPW vehicles, according to Chretien.

Paper for recycling could also be picked up by another such vehicle on collection days, he said.

"We think we'll be able to find a dealer to accept the paper," Chretien said.

The next step would be to try a pilot program for such things as bottles, glass and cans in just a section of the city at first, with a goal of involving all of Quincy.

A drop-off center might also be a possibility, according to Chretien.

"We want to try to give individuals different ways to participate," he said.

Chretien noted that a recycling program couldn't have been done economically five years ago when all the city's rubbish was trucked to the local landfill at a much lower cost.

"Then the economic crisis hit," he said.

Recycling or composting part of the city's residential rubbish will save in pickup and trucking costs, he explained.

There will be some start-up costs for the recycling program, noted Chretien, and the city will try to get as much state help as possible.

The city could make some money from the sale of recycled goods, Chretien said.

"But that's not the part of the equation that we're excited about."

Chretien stressed that trash disposal is not just a local problem, but a national problem as well.

"The federal government walked away from its responsibility," Chretien said. "It keeps reducing revenue sharing, Community Development Block Grant funds.

"It should have been doing research on incineration and recycling.

"The Carter administration started to do some things.

"The Reagan administration could have prevented this (solid waste problem), but it didn't."

Noted Wheelwright, "The problem has been swept under the carpet, and now we can't walk on the carpet."

Chretien said the city needs participation of 75 percent or more of Quincy's residents in the program.

"We need to initiate public education," said Chretien, "and emphasize the benefits. Then participation could hit 95 percent.

"School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci is enthusiastic about getting students involved.

"Then they can show their parents," he said.

Chretien said the committee is trying to get case studies of recycling programs that have worked in other cities.

"We're not reinventing the wheel," he said.

"We are trying to build upon what other people have done.

Wheelwright said, "We'll know what roads not to go down.

"Newton is the best local model," said Chretien. "They have had a voluntary program for a few years."

Philadelphia has a mandatory program and so does the state of Rhode Island, according to Chretien.

But the committee has not decided whether or not to recommend that Quincy's proposed recycling program be mandatory. "We want to emphasize the benefits," he said.

"We're not looking to put unnecessary burdens on people," said Chretien.

"But if they are taxpayers, or concerned about the environment, they should be concerned.

"There are so many things that the city can't control.

"This is something Quincy can control, and it will make the city more self-reliant."

So far, response to word of the recycling program has been positive, according to Chretien.

"I'm sure not everyone is going to participate," he said.

"No community has 100 percent participation.

"Education is the biggest key.

"Recycling and composting can work if people want to try."

Calls City Employees 'Forgotten Men'

April 7-14 1944 — 44 Years Ago

John H. Runnalls, president of the Permanent Firemen's Association and chairman of the Salary Adjustment Committee, called city employees "forgotten men, the last to get financial encouragement in boom years but the first to get the axe in lean times."

Runnalls and John J. McDermott, vice chairman, issued a statement in support of their committee's "attempt to seek an adjustment that will enable us to keep our heads above water as the flood of living costs rises."

They cited the case of a woman employee of City Hospital who, until recently, had worked for six years at 30 cents an hour or $12 a week, adding "if she had relinquished her job to go into a defense plant she would have made three times $12 a week."

William M. Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association retorted that the city is not in competition with private industry for workers since the city guarantees its employees lifetime jobs.

Doesn't Want Quincy A Mini-Boston

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A song from the 1960's came to mind recently when I saw the City Council once again toying with the idea of 10 story buildings in the Quincy Sq. area.

I suddenly found myself singing the line "When will they ever learn?" Only a year ago the council was presented with petitions bearing over 5000 signatures against such development, and the zoning restrictions passed at that time seemed to indicate they had gotten the message.

Now, it appears that our assumption was incorrect. Is it going to be necessary for citizens to take to the streets and neighborhoods of Quincy once again to gather signatures? Is it going to be necessary to put this question on the ballot to finally have it resolved? Must we etch the words in good old Quincy granite to have it understood? We do not want our city--any part of it-- to be turned into a mini-Boston.

We do not want Quincy Sq. to become a concrete canyon. If the developers who have bought up all this property in Quincy in the hope of making a killing can't abide by our rules and still make a profit keeping their construction to a six story limit, let them sell the property, go back to their corporate offices and leave us in peace.

The people of this city have watched the rape of their neighborhoods going on for too long to satisfy the greed of corporate developers. We have had it with this issue. If they get their way with the Square, let's not kid ourselves. It will only be a matter of time before they start encroaching on other areas, despite assurances to the contrary. I suggest we really fix them this time by cutting the height to four stories. How will that suit them?

Lung Association Praises Northwest Airlines On Smoke Free Policy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association applauds Northwest Airlines decision to implement a Smoke Free policy on all flights throughout its North American system, effective April 23.

This policy will apply to passengers and crew members on all flights within the contiguous 48 states and to and from Alaska, as well as on Northwest flights serving Mexico, Canada, Jamaica and the Cayman Islands.

Reports from the Surgeon General and National Academy of Sciences show that involuntary smoking causes disease--including lung cancer--in otherwise healthy nonsmokers. These reports also conclude that mere separation of smokers and nonsmokers in designated sections aboard aircraft does not eliminate exposure to the harmful effects of breathing other people's tobacco smoke. In addition, involuntary smoking is a serious occupational lung hazard for flight attendants and crew who work repeated flights in smoke-filled cabins.

We thank Northwest for going above and beyond the requirements of the upcoming federal regulations banning smoking on flights of under two hours. We hope other airlines will map out the same flight pattern in the near future.

Pea Soup
With Easter Ham Bone

If you had a ham for your Easter Dinner, as did so many, I sure hope you saved the ham bone and it has some ham left on it. Did you? There aren't many people who do not enjoy a good hot bowl of pea soup. Here is a recipe that I always use with leftover ham.

PEA SOUP

A bag of split peas (at least 2 cups)
Bone from the ham
with some meat left on it?
1 small onion, chopped
A couple of stalks of celery, cut up
2 carrots, sliced.

In a large pan, filled with water, put the ham bone and any extra ham and cook until water boils. Reduce heat and add celery, onions, carrots and simmer for about an hour. After the vegetables are cooked and the peas have all cooked until liquidy, remove the ham bone and cut the meat from it. Put back in the soup and serve hot. This recipe serves six. It is great heated over and will keep for days in the refrigerator. I usually do not add salt but do use pepper when serving. The ham seems to make it salty enough, but you may like it spicier.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at That's Italian, Franklin St., South Quincy; Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point , Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

CITATIONS were presented during the annual meeting of the Council on Aging to three individuals who have assisted the organization. From left, are Ken Kiley, who has been appointed to the Council on Aging Board after volunteering for more than 20 years; Theresa Whitaker, past chairman of the Council on Aging; Brian Buckley, former aging council coordinator; and Mary MacLean, past chairman. Both women received citations from the state senate as well as the Council on Aging.

Meet Arthur Stephen Tobin

You pay the salary of your State Representative. He should work for you!

As a taxpayer you know all too well when you elect a State Representative, you pay his salary and deserve good value for your money.

Sometimes, it's difficult to judge what you are getting. Elect Arthur Stephen Tobin as your State Representative and you, the taxpayer, will know that you are getting your money's worth because Steve Tobin will speak out on legislation that saves you, the taxpayer, money.

Arthur Stephen Tobin will fight for fairness on behalf of all tenants and homeowners in their fight with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority. He intends to vigorously support and file legislation to have the Commonwealth of Massachusetts pay for the greater burden of cleaning up our harbor.

Arthur Stephen Tobin believes in better education for both teachers and students. Steve will propose legislation which will link Quincy's teachers with the state college system. Under Steve's plan, teachers will be able to attend any state college for advance degree studies on a tuition-free basis. This way, the state will pick up the cost of the tuition of our teachers. Our teachers will receive a bonus in the form of the money saved on tuition, and our students will receive the benefit of better-trained teachers.

Arthur Stephen Tobin will advocate legislation to change the formula for state aid to cities and towns. Part of these state aid monies would be designated to the School Department to restore programs which have been eliminated by Proposition 2½. Since Proposition 2½, athletics in the Junior High Schools and other educational programs have ceased. Steve Tobin feels that the citizens would benefit by these changes.

Arthur Stephen Tobin will file legislation modeled after the Bartley-Fox legislation which states "anyone with a gun on his possession without a permit would receive a one year jail sentence." Tobin's bill would require that anyone who is in possession of drugs with the intent to distribute would receive an automatic jail sentence.

Arthur Stephen Tobin will file legislation to help ease the burden of the home-buyer. He will work with the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency to come up with a formula to benefit the first-time buyer.

Arthur Stephen Tobin knows that giving people what they pay for is a matter of good economics and a matter of justice for you, the taxpayer.

This year, get your money's worth. Elect Arthur Stephen Tobin, Democrat, State Representative.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Did you know your hands can and do betray your thoughts? For example, clapping hands express agreement. Fists express rage. Fidgeting hands express discontent, inhibitions. Doctors watch the hands of patients for tell-tale signs. Well-trained detectives watch the hands of a suspect during questioning.

One of the nation's top salesmanagers told how he schools his salesmen to interpret hand actions of customers. His men stop making statements when hands are pocketed, clasped or hidden. They start asking questions to re-open and enliven the mind. He cited the picturesque pose of old Chinese philosophers. Their characteristic pose shows arms folded across the chest, hands hidden in flowing sleeves. The philosophers knew centureies ago, the hand could indicate the thinking of the mind.

A tiny baby can certainly tell you whether he wants something offered to him. Open, outstretched hands indicate acceptance. Clenched hands close to the body indicate rejection. Even a baby, without realizing it, relays inner mind thinking with the hands. We thought the idea was worth passing along to both salesmen and buyers.

Central Artery, Third Tunnel Projects Vo-Tech Topics

Jessica Rom, senior Labor Relations Specialist with Bechtel Parsons and Brinkerhoff, consultants for the construction of the Central Artery and the third harbor tunnel, will be the featured speaker at Quincy Vocational Technical School today, Thursday, at 9:45 a.m.

Rom, who will outline the multi-billion dollar public works projects which will span a decade and involve 10,000 jobs, will be part of a Support Group Leadership Program led by the school's assistant director, Marie Hurley.

"This is an important meeting which is attracting educators from across Massachusetts," Hurley said.

JESSICA ROM

"This project, representing one of the largest urban projects in the entire country, will involved massive recruitment activities. Educators and others need to discuss methods of support for non-traditional jobs for men and women. We need to share information, and we need to be prepared."

Hurley said this was particularly important for those educators who are involved with students in a technical vocational environment.

"Schools like Quincy Voc-Tech are the facilities that are producing the workers of tomorrow, and we are determined to produce them, and train them without obstacles to gender," she said.

Domestic Violence

DOVE

DOVE, the traditional symbol of peace and the acronym for Domestic Violence Ended, Inc. has helped battered women since 1978. The name indeed is appropriate for the organization because it deals with the grim realities of battered families while trying to break the cycle so there will be peace.

The idea of DOVE came from the subcommittee, entitled Violence Against Women, of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women. For a year, 1976-1977, the Task Force studied violence. They discovered that although many agencies served this clientele, there wasn't a central agency or program for them. In the spring of 1977 the committee conducted a workshop on battered women at the annual Woman to Woman Day; this was the first public education on the issue on the South Shore. At the same time, Quincy Police Detective Barbara DiNatale submitted a proposal to both the District Attorney's office and Chief Francis X. Finn. Upon their approval, a special assistant district attorney was assigned to prosecute battered women's cases. As an offshoot of the proposal, a Domestic Violence Unit was established in both departments. In August of 1978 a shelter had been found and for the remainder of the month volunteers were busy manning the hotline and getting ready for its opening. Finally, on Labor Day Weekend, 1978, a woman and her three daughters became the first residents of the DOVE home. Quincy had become one of the first communities who answered the women's call for help with action.

According to Rose Mary Kirwin, DOVE Community Programs Director, the DOVE program provides temporary shelter for about 500 people each year and handles some 4500 crises Hot-Line phone calls per year. All of this is done with a dedicated staff of nine people.

According to Rose Mary, domestic violence reports are on the increase, primarily because the public is being educated on what to do about this aproblem. If you are experiencing domestic abuse, either physical or verbal, call DOVE at 471-1234 even if it's just to get advice. You will not be required to identify yourself.

DOVE offers immediate and long range solutions to problems of domestic violence.

DOVE is someone who listens. 471-1234 is the Crisis Hotline. Victims may call anytime for comfort, support and advice.

DOVE is a child's friend. Domestic violence does not exclude the child. DOVE's special program helps the silent victim to love and trust again.

DOVE is warm and understanding. DOVE offers comfortable temporary shelter for abused women and children with individual counseling and support groups. A woman is never alone.

DOVE is a fresh start. DOVE advocates guide victims through the court and welfare systems and help find housing for a fresh start and a new life.

If your group would like Rose Mary Kirwin to speak before them, call her at 471-5087.

High School Baseball Opens Despite Umpires Strike

By TOM SULLIVAN

Despite a strike by the high school umpires, the season was scheduled to open Tuesday with most leagues using non-union umpires or using coaches as umpires.

Quincy was scheduled to open at Weymouth South Tuesday and North Quincy at home against Weymouth North.

According to athletic coordinator Marty Finnegan those games were going to be played and he said he thought all games would be played.

"I am firmly against cancelling any games because the umpires, who I feel are paid well, refuse to work," Finnegan said. "I think I had some influence on the Suburban League athletic directors at a recent meeting when I told them my views and they agreed to go along with me.

"I feel the main concern for any athletic director is for the boys and girls and I think it would be a shame if any games had to be canceled. Not only do I look toward all regular season games being played, but I am looking forward to the tournament. I will do all I can to assure that the tournaments are played as scheduled."

The Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA) refused to give the umpires a raise this year but offered to give them raises next season. The umpires union refused the offer.

The umpires for varsity games receive $42 for nine innings and $38 for seven innings. Junior varsity umpires receive $27.

"What upsets me is the fact these same umpires will work for about $20 during the summer for Legion games," said Bridgewater-Raynham athletic director Paul Urban.

MATT McNAMARA, 275-pound two-way lineman for the North Quincy football team, signs letter of intent after accepting a full four-year scholarship to Central Connecticut State University. Coach Ken McPhee looks on. McNamara was named North's Most Valuable Player and was a Suburban League first team all-star selection.

Halliday Has High Hopes At ENC

Coach Clay Halliday of the Eastern Nazarene College baseball team has high hopes of improving last year's 5-9 record and thinks this season's team may have the best talent in the school's history.

Halliday, however, feels the team pitching may be the team's weakness. The staff is led by senior Scott Cook, who had a 2.90 ERA last season in 31 innings of work with 31 strikeouts.

However, past Cook, Halliday will have to rely on the hitting to get the Crusaders through. Freshman Roger Thomas may add some stability to the staff.

The offensive attack is led by sophomore third baseman Jon Rice, who batted .384 last spring. The Crusaders are also looking for some punch from junior Doug Pillsbury, a .380 hitter last season.

Two freshmen who may make an impact are outfielder Jeff Cook and second baseman Jon Roe.

ENC is in District 5 of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) together with Western New England, St. Joseph's, Husson, Lyndon State, Franklin Pierce, Johnson State, Castleton State, Presque Isle, Farmington, Gordon and Southern Vermont.

Montclair, Atlantic, Beechwood Win School Tourney Openers

After six weeks of league play, the Quincy Recreation Department Middle School Basketball Tournament opened with three games last weekend.

Mike McManus topped his Montclair teammates with 16 points to lead them to a 45-22 win over Snug Harbor. Tim Rossi had 10 while Liam Higgins had seven to aid the Montclair cause.

Snug Harbor had four each from Joe Kelly, Ed Kenny, and Sean Herron. Coach Mark Righini had words of praise for Snug's Scott Labrador, who played solid defense and Brian Clifford for his offensive rebounding.

Jerry Pratt, the Montclair coach, pointed to the defense of Sean Donovan, and the play making of Vin Anderlionis as the key to the team's victory. Rounding out the scoring for Snug Harbor were, Clifford, Labrador, and Mike Bartlett, all with two. Mike McDougal also had two for Montclair.

Atlantic had eight players score as it defeated a young Wollaston team, 61-13. This is Wollaston's first appearance in the annual tournament after the program reopened this fall. Chris Murray led all players with 26 points. He was followed by Atlantic teammates, Bo Smith eight, Mike Linane and Matt Collins with six, Martin Shields and Jeff Jones with four, and Sean Warren with two. Jerry Pratt is the Montclair coach. Wollaston coach Paul Gill got 11 points from Chris Campbell and two from Willie O'Donnell. He was also pleased with the all around play of Dan Reilly and John Dudley rebounding.

Jack Kelly the long time recreation leader at Beechwood Knoll has Beechwood on its traditional winning ways as they defeated the Jack Kilrain -coached team Point, 45-22. Chris Chivano 12 and Lee Giordano 11, led Beechwood while Mark Kelliher had six, Paul Kearns five, Mike McDonald and Tony Liccardi four each. Mike Dupill was cited for his outstanding defense. Jeff Russell had six, Johnathan Gangi four, and Keith Matinon two for Point.

The Middle School Tournament is a single elimination format, that features participants from the various recreation centers supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department. The teams have been seeded based on standings from the six weeks league conducted Saturday mornings at the Central Middle School.

The league was supervised by Brian Buckley and Dan Coughlin of the Recreation Department staff. Buckley is the head coach of basketball at Curry College. The tournament continues next week when the number one seed Sterling will join the three other teams in the semi-finals.

Squirt A's Win 3 At Lake Placid

Quincy's Squirt A hockey team won three games in the International Tournament at Lake Placid to improve its record to 32-12-2. It was the ninth year in a row the team, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, had played in the tournament.

Quincy opened with an easy 7-0 victory over Cambridge. David Cooper had a hat trick, Doug Nolan two goals and Lee Hughes and Paul King one each. Danny Donahue and Eric Zimmerman had two assists apiece and Hughes, Nolan, Cooper and Billy Coughlin one each.

In a well-played defensive game Quincy squeezed by Osgoode, Ontario, 1-0, with Coughlin scoring the goal on excellent passes from Cooper and Nolan.

Quincy also defeated Montclair, N.J., 5-1, with Nolan scoring twice and Steve Provost, Zimmerman and Pat Connolly once each. Cooper had two assists and Connolly, Coughlin, Provost and Brendan O'Brien one apiece.

The defense played its best all season with David Pacino, Andrew Vermette, Brian Bartkus, Danny Donahue, Danny Beaton and Jay Evans outstanding. Goalies Brad Watkins and Mark Smith had 13 shutouts this season.

The Notre Dame Academy junior varsity basketball team, led by Carol Levins of Quincy, finished the season with a 12-1 record.

McCauley Submits $109,772,573 Budget

Mayor Francis McCauley presented the City Council Monday night with a $109,772,573 municipal budget for fiscal 1989.

"The cover of the book is appropriate - it's deficit red," said McCauley, who is anticipating a shortfall of $3 million to $3.8 million.

The budget reflects an increase of $10,157,195, or 10.2 percent, over fiscal 1988 expenditures of $99,615,378 to date, according to McCauley.

"I believe the amount funded for the various city departments will allow our city government to continue to provide an acceptable level of city services in fiscal year 1989," said McCauley in his budget message.

"I must remind the members of the City Council of a "Revenue Shortfall" of between $3 million and $3.8 million.

"If new sources of revenue are not found, this shortfall will have to be made up by appropriations from the city's reserve funds," he said.

According to the 169-page budget book, there was a 25 percent increase over last year in health insurance costs to the city, and 115 percent increase in refuse disposal.

Temporary loan interest went down 25 percent from last year, and capital outlay was reduced 76.3 percent.

The budget was sent to the Finance Committee. No meeting date has yet been set.

The City Council will have 45 days to act on the budget.

It may reduce appropriations, but not add to them.

11 New Police Officers To Be Sworn In

Mayor Francis McCauley announces that 11 new Quincy Police officers will be sworn in today (Thursday), at 10 a.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers.

The 11 new officers consist of 10 men and one woman.

Richard Gibbons, 158 Darrow St., Quincy.

Mary Main, 54A Bay State Rd., Quincy.

Richard McCusker, 11 Jewett St., Quincy.

Kevin Mormino, 60 Kimball St., Quincy.

William O'Neill, 276 Sea St., Quincy.

Gerard O'Rourke, 46 Middle St., 1 South Boston.

Scott Smith, 24 Belmont St., Quincy.

Richard Tapper, 18 Albany St., Quincy.

Brian Tobin, 110 Dixwell St., Quincy.

The officers were choosen from an initial group of 67 applicants, of which 22 showed a willingness to accept the position. After the filing of required documentation, extensive background checks, physical and psychological exams, the group was narrowed down to the final 11.

Four candidates from the group are currently police officers in other communities and schools. Four candidates possess degrees from four year colleges, three have Associate Degrees, and two are currently attending college.

The Police Academy will begin April 25 in Needham for four of the officers. The remaining officers will begin training May 2, at the Foxboro Academy.

'Pub-Theater' Proposed For Wollaston Theater

A Quincy businessman told the License Board at an informal hearing that he would like to convert the Wollaston Theatre into a "Pub-Theatre."

Robert McPherson said rows of seats would be removed, tables would be put in, and movie goers would be able to buy wine, beer, hot dogs, and pizza.

Arthur Chandler, owner of the Wollaston Theatre was not available for comment Tuesday afternoon.

The theater which calls itself "the family neighborhood theater," is currently the only movie theater in Quincy.

McPherson who owns similar theaters in Millbury and Stowe said, "It's the only way a smaller theater which isn't first run can compete."

Because of the lower prices in ticket sales profits can be made with alcohol and food, he said.

Police Chief Francis Finn told McPherson that he should discuss his idea with Ward Councillor Charles Phelan and the City Council.

liquor license they may seek.

DeCristofaro said, that it is nothing personal, but Ward 2 Civil Association and area residents have worked hard to clean up the area.

A letter was sent to the board from the President of the Ward 2 Civil Association, Robert Mood, which said the association members and the Board of Directors were in opposition of the license being granted.

"It has been policy of the association to vote against the granting of any liquor license applications in Ward 2," said Mood.

DeCristofaro also said, that granting this license would open up a situation which would cause several other area restaurants to ask for liquor licenses.

"A situation which we don't want," he said.

City Council Rejects Sewer User Fee

(Cont'd from Page 1)

"So it's not necessary to pass on a sewer fee that is going to be like an octopus whose tentacles reach deeper and deeper into the taxpayer's pockets.

"The responsibility for the cleanup of Boston Harbor should be borne by the state," added Sheets.

Councillor DeCristofaro agreed that now was not the proper time to pass on a sewer user fee.

"I don't want to send an additional bill to the taxpayers," said Nutley, who estimated that in 10 years the bill could be $6,713.

Nutley also noted that the fee is not tax deductible when it is removed from the property tax.

"It's unbelievable that such a cost should be levied on the communities (served by the MWRA)," said Councillor Toland.

"If we can hold off for a year, we should. We may be forced to vote for it next year," she said.

Councillor Chretien made a motion to reduce the proposed fee by one half, but it did not receive enough support.

"It's a little too early to commit ourselves to a full blown sewer user fee," he said.

"The time has come to pay for the cleanup of Quincy Bay," said Cheney, Ordinance Committee chairman.

"It's a necessary evil. We have to have some free cash set aside."

Councillor Phelan said, "If we don't pass this now, we are setting up an even larger increase to taxpayers (in the future)."

Mayor McCauley said after the meeting that he was disappointed the council didn't approve the fee.

"I felt that based on budget projections, the sewer user fee was necessary to provide revenue to close the gap," McCauley said.

"Costs are escalating so rapidly it's hard to keep up with them," said the mayor who is anticipating a $3 million to $3.8 million shortfall.

McCauley said he did not plan to resubmit his proposal this year, and wouldn't comment on what he might do next year.

He noted that lack of a sewer user fee, which the financial ratings services favor, will not be a plus to the city and its credit rating.

"It's hard to know if it will be a negative," he said.

McGrath Urges MDC Acquire Expanded Greenbelt In Quincy Area

City Councillor Stephen McGrath has called upon M.D.C. Commr. William J. Geary to use part of the $48 million of the Governor's Open Space Bill to acquire the expanded greenbelt in the Berry's Quarry area, West Quincy.

In a letter to Geary, McGrath noted that the area is of historic significance as the site of the Granite Railway, the first railroad in America and the Tyons Turning Mill.

"The acquisition by the M.D.C. of this area would be of great benefit not only to the West Quincy community but to the entire city of Quincy," said McGrath.

The greenbelt area would serve as direct access to the Blue Hills area from Quincy enabling residents to enjoy this recreation spot, according to McGrath.

"I strongly urge the M.D.C. to acquire this property to prevent overdevelopment at this site," said McGrath.

McCauley In Tribute To O'Brien, Blake

"He was a tireless worker," said Mayor Francis McCauley of Clement A. O'Brien, retired director of the Quincy Housing Authority who died last Thursday after a long illness.

"I had the privilege of serving with him on the housing authority board from 1969-1974," said McCauley.

"During his administration, housing for the elderly really got off the ground," he said.

According to McCauley, Sawyer, Pagnano and Tobin Towers as well as Oceanside, now called Clement O'Brien Towers, were built during his administration.

"He also served on many unpaid boards," said McCauley. "He was a hard worker."

McCauley also said he was sorry to hear of the recent passing of William H. ("Herb") Blake, Quincy's superintendent of buildings.

"Herb was a long time employee," said McCauley. "He was also City Council messenger during meetings."

During Monday night's City Council meeting, Councillor at large Stephen McGrath remembered Mr. Blake.

"I knew him on the City Council and as a neighbor," said McGrath.

"His service to the city went back 35 years.

"I will miss Herb and his sense of humor."

Regina Maris Raised, Cause Of Sinking To Be Determined

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

There is still no indication of what caused the Regina Maris, a Danish clipper ship owned by the O'Connell Management Co. of Quincy, to sink mysteriously in January after it was raised from Boston Marine Works, East Boston, last Friday, according to a spokesperson for the management company.

"The ship is still being examined in dry dock," said Mary Larkin, a spokesperson for the company. Once the cause of the sinking is determined, the necessary repairs will be done and then the ship will be brought to Marina Bay in North Quincy," she said.

"We'd like to have it back for the summer season, hopefully by Memorial Day," Larkin said.

The ship, one of the oldest square rigger clipper ships in existence, was lifted into dry dock by two cranes using extensive cables, Larkin said. The ship sank in 30 feet of water the early morning of Jan. 15 at the Boston marine Works, East Boston.

After it was raised, the ship was led by tugboat into drydock and the drydock area slowly dispersed its water, Larkin said. From here, a close examination of the damage and necessary repairs will be surveyed and undertaken, she said.

According to Larkin, the 144-foot, three-masted clipper ship had been at the Boston Marine Works undergoing routine refitting and hull inspection in anticipation of being drydocked for the remainder of the winter when it sank. Two of the three masts were broken and there was no visible sight of either the hull or stern of the boat from above the water when the raising began Friday morning, Larkin said.

Built in Denmark in 1908, the clipper Barquentine was bought by O'Connell Management in 1986 from the Ocean Research and Education Society.

To date, the company has invested over $250,000 in the restoration of the Regina Maris.

Open Space, Recreational Facilities Public Hearing

A public hearing will be held by the Quincy Open Space and Recreational Planning Committee Tuesday, April 12 at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room, City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy.

Heather Sargent, conservation enforcement officer for the committee, said oral and written testimony will be accepted at the hearing concerning the community open space and recreational needs for Quincy.

Written testimony will also be accepted until April 30.

"We need input from all parts of Quincy regarding the city's open space and recreational facilities," Sargent said. "It is important for the city's residents to give us opinions."

The public [illegible] the first steps that must be taken before an open space and recreational needs plan is accepted by the state, Sargent said. "The ultimate goal is to acquire funds from the state for the plan," she said.

After the hearing, the committee will compile the opinions and testimony from those who attended the hearing into a draft proposal. Sargent said another public hearing will then be held in June for anyone to review the draft plan of the proposal before it is submitted to the state Department of Conservation Services and chairman Joel Lerner.

The final proposal will include pages of written material, diagrams of six or eight maps as well as population density figures and historical features, Sargent said.

Anyone who has anything to say in terms of open space and recreational facilities in Quincy should attend the hearing, she said.

According to Sargent, a random sample survey administered throughout Quincy recently shows that most people are "generally pleased with the recreational facilities in Quincy."

"They are not overly concerned but do feel there needs to be more cleaning up and better security," Sargent said.

The survey, administered to more than 100 residents, also shows there is an "overwhelming" support for more open space.

The last acceptable plan was in 1979, Sargent said.

ADAMS PLACE Office Park model.

Adams Place Office Park Nearing Completion

Phase two of the Adams Place Office Park is nearing completion.

Located on the Braintree-Quincy line at the intersection of Routes 3 and 128, the four-story building is sheathed in polished Swedish granite and gray reflective glass. The interior features a full height skylighted atrium with intricate granite paving and lush planting. Surrounding balconies support additional plantings and glass-enclosed elevators provide exciting views of this tropical garden environment.

Above the building's colonnaded entrance, office areas are enclosed by full height glass on both the exterior and atrium perimeters with sloped, greenhouse-type glazing on the top floor. The 100,000 square foot building is sophisticated and unique visually, but its beauty is much more than skin deep.

The latest "smart building" technology is employed for energy management and electrical distribution.

Adams Place is the first complex in suburban Boston to utilize a total cellular floor system with communication, power and data transmission lines carried in separate raceways. All lines are easily accessible for additions, modification or relocation.

Adams Place is owned by Adams Realty Trust and developed by Charles River Development Group, Inc. Charles River Development is also the general contractor for phase two. Keyes Associates of Waltham provided complete architectural, engineering and site design services.

Conway Opens New Condo Division In Quincy

The Jack Conway Company has opened a new division specializing in condominium sales at Mechanic and Elm Sts., Quincy Center.

Peter Bravo heads the division.

"This is your second office here. I thank you for the confidence you have placed in the City of Quincy," McCauley said.

Conway's first Quincy office is located on Beale St. in the Wollaston area.

Also participating in the ceremonies were Dr. O. Clayton Johnson, president of Quincy Junior College; Mary Collins, vice-chairman of the Quincy School Committee and an associate of Conway's Wollaston office; Rep. Mike Morrissey; John Day, president of the Mount Washington Cooperative Bank; Richard Walwood, the architect who designed the building; and Quincy native Dick Cahill, president of the Jack Conway Company.

The division is developing a condominium library with statistics and copies of legal documents governing condominiums in Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth. The office is linked by computer to the other 37 Conway offices providing condo listings from Boston to Cape Cod. Information on recent sales from the Conway Appraisal Division are available to help determine the value of a condo.

As we strive to increase the company's profitability, we expect to continue to share earnings with our stockholders."

Sheets Switches Vote

4-Year Terms For Mayor, City Council To Go On Ballot

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Quincy voters will be the ones to decide whether the terms for mayor and city councillors should be increased from two to four years.

The legislature must now approve putting the question on the ballot.

The City Council voted 5 to 4 Monday night to put the proposal by Mayor Francis McCauley on the ballot for the November election.

The action was a reversal of a preliminary 5 to 2 vote against the proposal by the City Council's Ordinance Committee recently.

At Monday night's meeting, two councillors at large, Patricia Toland and Stephen McGrath, who had not attended the committee meeting, said they were in favor of the proposal.

Then Councillor James Sheets switched his vote from against to for the proposal to make it 5-4 to put the issue on the ballot.

"Since the vote was so close," said Sheets, "I decided I would vote to let the people make the decision.

"We've been going back and forth on the issue, and it should be placed on the ballot."

Sheets said he was not lobbied by the other councillors or the mayor to change his vote.

Those in favor of the proposal said that such a change in the way the city operates should be put to the voters.

"We were elected to make a lot of decisions," said McGrath, "but a basic question such as whether the mayor and city council should serve four year terms is a charter question.

"Let's put it on the ballot and see if the voters vote it up or down."

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro agreed.

"We can make decisions, and we do," said DeCristofaro.

"But with a charter change, we should put it on the ballot and let the people speak."

Council president Patricia Toland noted that this was the third time the proposal had been discussed by the council.

"Several people have said to me, 'What's the matter with putting it on the ballot?'"

"The idea of us knowing better than the people out there is unacceptable to me," she said.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien also voted to put the question on the ballot.

Those who were opposed included Ordinance Committee chairman Michael Cheney, who seemed surprised at the turn around of votes.

"There isn't any interest in the proposal," said Cheney.

"I don't think the people will vote for it. It was killed once by the council.

"To take one part of the charter and put it on the ballot is not in the best interest of the people," added Cheney.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley agreed that there was no groundswell of feeling about the proposal.

"No one has spoken to me about it," Nutley said.

"We'll be abdicating responsibility if we don't vote.

"The people elected us to make decisions, not copout."

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan also said there was "no great push to put the question on the ballot."

Also voting in opposition was Councillor at Large Timothy Cahill.

McCauley had originally submitted the proposal two years ago, but it was voted down by the council.

He said that four year terms were in effect in most parts of the country.

What The Former Mayors Think Of Four-Year Terms

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Three former Quincy mayors have different reactions to Mayor Francis McCauley's proposal to increase the terms of office for mayor and city councillors from two to four years.

Former Mayors Arthur Tobin, Joseph LaRaia and Walter Hannon were polled by The Quincy Sun on the proposal which the City Council recently voted to put on the November ballot. The legislature must also give its approval.

McCauley said increased terms of office is becoming more prevalent in Massachusetts, and allows mayors in particular time to get more done without worrying about reelection every two years.

Tobin, who served as mayor from 1978 to 1982, said he would be opposed to extending the terms if there were no mechanism in the city charter for a recall.

If there were such a mechanism, depending on how it was written and if the voters wanted the change, he wouldn't have strong objection, said Tobin, now Clerk-Magistrate of Quincy District Court.

Downtown Zone Plan Gets Warm Reception

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

City Councillor Timothy Cahill's plans for revitalizing downtown Quincy were enthusiastically received Tuesday morning by members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"By the end of the 1990s, we want Quincy Sq. to be a place people can be proud of," said Cahill, chairman of the council's Downtown and Economic Development Committee, and a QCBPA member.

His presentation included plans for a designated revitalization zone in Quincy Sq. which would allow up to 10-story buildings in selected areas, as well as a one-day seminar tentatively scheduled for May 12, at City Hall, to brainstorm ideas for the revitalization.

Cahill noted a Quincy Tourism Association study scheduled to be completed by the end of the month.

"They can tell us what it would take to double or triple tourism," said Cahill.

"They're talking about big money.

"It's one of the ways to bring people here.

"We're not going to be able to bring people to shop from the South Shore Plaza, Braintree.

"But some will come because of the historical nature of the city. It's a viable alternative to get people downtown, and then to shop.

"At present, 120,000 people related to tourism come to the city every year. They spend about $8 million in the city.

"The study being done says that could easily go to 350,000 people who could generate $25 to $30 million. And that's a conservative estimate."

Cahill repeated to the QCBPA membership the area in Quincy Sq. which he thinks needs revitalization.

That area starts at South Shore Bank, extends down Granite St. to the train tracks, south to the Quincy Cablesystems building at School St. and Parkingway, back down School St., over Hancock St., behind Quincy Sq. to include the Hancock parking lot on Mechanic St., to the International House of Pancakes, north up Washington St., on the Post Office side, and down Maple St. back to South Shore Bank, Cahill said.

He talked about parts of the zone which are barren and should be developed.

"We may have to go to 10 stories, or 8 stories or maybe even 6 stories if we can.

"We have to fill up some of the holes in downtown Quincy.

$10 Million For Furnace Brook Flood Control

The governor has signed into law a statewide transportation bond which includes $10 million for flood control the length of Furnace Brook, according to State Sen. Paul Harold.

"It was originally an Army Corps of Engineers project," said Harold.

"But it became a second priority with them.

"The state is now taking it over," he said.

According to Harold, the project will alleviate flooding from the East Milton line to Black's Creek.

A deep rock tunnel will be built to the existing Town Brook, he said.

Then during periods of storms, the overflow will go into the tunnel, Harold explained.

"It won't disrupt the pattern of the existing rock," said Harold of the project which will take a number of years to be completed.

"The most important thing is that the money is now in place.

"This was a long awaited and much needed flood control project," said Harold. "I'm pleased that I was able to play a role to resolve this problem to residents."

City's Snow Fighting Costs Reach $553,863

Last winter's storms cost the city almost double what it had budgeted for snow removal, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

The city had put aside $300,000 in its snow removal budget, but bills so far have totaled $593,863, said McCauley.

"There's not much you can do about," said McCauley. "You have to pay the bills."

The mayor said that the additional $293,863 will likely come from any surplus at the end of the fiscal year.

This year's amount tops the snow removal costs from the past three fiscal years.

A total of $536,172.17 was spent in fiscal 1987; $197,456.74 in 1986; and $337,819.95 in 1985.

Because of the city's tight financial situation this year, McCauley said he has not increased the snow removal budget for fiscal 1989.

"We'll just pray for rain next year," he said.

PAPAL AUDIENCE was enjoyed by Sen. Paul Harold during a recent visit to Rome. Harold had the opportunity to talk with Pope John Paul who asked him about Boston's Bernard Cardinal Law.

City Seeks Court Permission To Swear In 11 Police Officers

The city will go to court Friday to seek permission to swear in and send to the police academy 11 new police officers, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

The officers were to be sworn in last week, but that action was blocked by a Quincy Police candidate, Charles F. Kane, 21, of Cohasset, who initiated legal action challenging his rejection.

Kane was rejected for high blood pressure. A new blood pressure test is to be administered at Quincy City Hospital.

"We want the 11 officers to go to the police academy in May," said McCauley.

"That way, we can have them on the street this summer.

"Those are busy months and other police officers are on vacation," he said.

Bank Of New England Donates $2500 To Sheltering Coalition

A check for $2,500 was recently presented by the Bank of New England to the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition for its building fund.

A shelter for the homeless is scheduled to open at the site.

The Bank of New England Corp. has been involved in many community affairs in the past, according to Cappuccino, and has made a commitment to continue involvement in the City of Quincy through its retail network on the South Shore.

Lighting, Speeding Still Unsolved In Area Montclair Men's Club Says

The Montclair Men's Club has written to the mayor and other city officials "pointing out the inability of the City of Quincy to effect reasonable public safety issues which our organization has been advocating over the past four to six years."

One of the issues involves high pressure sodium vapor lighting on Holbrook Rd., from Newport Ave. to Belmont.

According to Joseph N. Gildea, Sr., Civic Committee chairman for the club, Mass. Electric Co. installed such lamps on 49 poles on West Squantum St. and recommended the same type for 15 poles along Holbrook Rd.

"Only one sodium vapor light was erected and after many letters and telephone calls, two more were put up," Gildea stated. "One of the latter has been vandalized.

"We do not agree with the electric company's suggestion that the present lighting on Holbrook Rd. is sufficient," he said.

Gildea included newspaper clippings from 1984 about two Quincy youths who were slashed during a weekend melee in darkened Bishop Field and playground, opposite the Montclair Men's Club and Montclair School on Holbrook Road.

The second issue regards speeding cars and trucks on West Squantum St. which the club says is "non existent from your office and our chief of police."

"Ward 3 City Councillor (Lawrence) Chretien recently held two meetings on traffic, one at the Wollaston School with 140 attending and another at the standing room only Montclair Men's Club," Gildea said.

"Speeding and illegal parking were main topics," he said.

"The Men's Club wishes to be recorded in favor of increasing officers in the Traffic Division of the Quincy Police Department, similar to that of the City of Cambridge."

City To Advertise For Building Superintendent

The city expects to advertise in the very near future for the $33,079 superintendent of buildings position to replace the late William "Herb" Blake who died April 2, at age 71.

"People within the department as well as those outside will be eligible," said McCauley, who hopes to fill the position by summer.

"Right now, we're waiting for the job description and we'll review the data.

"Herb was in the department for 20 years and this is the first vacancy in a while," he said.

The building superintendent is in charge of city buildings such as the fire stations, police station, health center, public works department and city hall, according to McCauley.

The person selected for the job will receive a provisional appointment by the mayor, subject to a civil service test, he explained.

The department is currently under the direction of Michael Priscella, the second person in charge, McCauley said.

McCauley Seeks $14,900 For Recycling Consultant

Mayor Francis McCauley will submit to the City Council for its consideration Tuesday night a $14,900 appropriation order for a consultant for the City Recycling Committee.

McCauley noted that the city budget this year is tight.

"But this is important," he said.

Council Vote Waited On Mayor's Proposed $100 Litter Fine

Mayor Francis McCauley said he is hopeful the City Council Tuesday night will pass his proposed ordinance requiring property owners to keep their property and adjacent areas clean.

McCauley said he has asked City Council president Patricia Toland to help secure passage of the ordinance which carries with it a fine of up to $100.

"I think the City Council is concerned that this is going to be a witch hunt," said McCauley. "But that's not the case.

"The fine will not be used to harass people. A warning system will be in effect first.

"The fine is for chronic offenders."

Regulations would be enforced by the Health Department, he said.

The proposed ordinance is part of an effort to clean up the city, McCauley said.

"We are working harder this year, trying to spotlight this," he said.

McCauley noted that in his travels outside Quincy and Massachusetts, litter is not the problem it is here.

"I haven't seen problems in other parts of the country as I have in the Northeast," he said.

At a meeting last week in his office, McCauley enlisted the aid of business and community leaders in improving cleanliness in the city.

"It was a good group and an excellent meeting," said McCauley.

"We talked to the business groups requesting that they contact their members and ask them to keep their own business area clean."

McCauley is also encouraging neighborhood cleanups, such as the one planned for May 21 in Quincy Point. It will be followed by the annual bean supper.

He noted that during the next six to eight weeks, Quincy's Department of Public Works will be available to assist organizations with neighborhood and beach clean ups.

"Public Works will provide trucks, loaders and trash bags," McCauley said.

Arrangements can be made by calling Robert Federico or James Gaudiano of the Highway Division at 773-1380, ext. 460 or 231, according to McCauley.

The city has been using people from the Earn It alternate service program at Quincy District Court for projects such as cleaning the city cemeteries, noted McCauley.

"The cemeteries will be in top-top condition as we move toward Memorial Day," he said.

In addition, McCauley said he plans to talk with the Norfolk County Sheriff's office to arrange for county inmates to work on clean-up projects.

"We're making a concerted effort," said McCauley. "Litter is a continuing problem in the city."

McCauley said he has talked with School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci regarding an educational program against littering, particularly in elementary and middle schools.

"It probably won't be until the fall," he said. "But I feel strongly about an educational program and increasing the awareness of young people before habits are formed."

ROBERT HANNA, Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer, was among the speakers at a meeting held at the Fore River Clubhouse, Quincy Point, to discuss the kidnapping of a young girl in that neighborhood recently.

Get On With Cafeteria Board Tells Milton Man

By KRISTINE STRENGE

License Board members Tuesday told David Chin, of Milton, he must begin his plans to open a cafeteria in an office building at 100 Hancock St., North Quincy, by July 1 or his license will be revoked.

Chin was called before the board when Lilia Filler of Wilmington requested a common victualer license to open a snack bar in the same building.

Chin who has held a common victualer license for the operation since October 1985 told the board he has not begun renovating because there has not been enough potential customers in the building.

"When I signed the lease I was told there would be 1,000 people in the building, but there were only 200," said Chin.

But now, according to Chin, there are over 500 employees working for different companies in the building.

He told board members that his plan for the cafeteria will be underway shortly.

Residential Property Listing Starts In West Quincy

The city's inspection, listing and measuring of residential property by the Assessing Department has begun in West Quincy.

In those cases where entry cannot be made to make the inspection necessary to verify the correctness of a parcel description, owners will be notified by mail that such inspection was attempted. They will be urgently requested to call or write the assessors to arrange a convenient time to make the inspection.

Failure to have this interior inspection made could result in an incorrect estimate of existing conditions which could be costly to a taxpayer, the Assessor's department said.

The cooperation of homeowners in the city is imperative so that the work may be satisfactorily completed by the end of 1988, according to the assessors.

No Norfolk Senatorial Caucus

Senator Paul Harold announces there will be no Norfolk Senatorial caucus to elect a Democratic State Committee man and woman since there is only one candidate filed for each position.

Under the state party rules, no caucus is necessary if positions are uncontested.

Those who filed and who automatically will serve for another term from the Norfolk district (Quincy, Braintree, Avon and Holbrook) are District Atty. William Delahunt and Rosemary Coffey of Braintree.

Durkin Seeks Open Space Funds For Greenbelt

Stephen J. Durkin, candidate for state representative for the Second Norfolk District asked the Metropolitan District Commission to use a portion of its Open Space Bill funding for the West Quincy greenbelt.

In a letter, Durkin told Commissioner William Geary the money would be used to acquire the expanded greenbelt land in the area of West Quincy Quarries.

"The M.D.C.'s acquisition of this land would ensure that the recreational, aesthetic and historical qualities of this area would be preserved to the benefit of the West Quincy community and the citizens of Massachusetts," said Durkin.

Holocaust Remembrance Proclaimed

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed the week of April 10 to 17, as "Days of Remembrance of the Victims of the Holocaust" in Quincy.

"From 1933 to 1945, six million Jews were murdered in the Nazi Holocaust as part of a systematic program of genocide, and millions of other people perished as victims of Nazism," stated McCauley.

"The people of the city of Quincy should always remember the atrocities committed by the Nazis so that such horros are never repeated," he said.

McCauley noted that April 14, has been designated pursuant to an Act of Congress as a Day of Remembrance of Victims of the Nazi Holocaust, known internationally as Yom Hashoah.

Hmmm! And 4-Year Terms

Mayor Francis McCauley has a dinner reception coming up Thursday, April 21.

At $100 per head.

At the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Hmmmm!

That should start the speculation wheels spinning.

McCAULEY

McCauley, who is pretty tight fisted when it comes to spending money, (his and the city's) still has a pretty good chunk left over from last year's mayoral campaign.

So why the $100 per head fundraiser?

Is he getting ready for another mayoral run?

He's now in his fourth term and most City Hall observers figure it will be his last one. They don't think he'll go again.

The way they see it, his squeaker win over former Mayor Joseph LaRaia last year, was the handwriting on the wall: a lot of people think it's time for a change. But McCauley isn't the toss-in-the-towel type. He says he's not going to make up his mind about a fifth term run until next year.

And, if he thinks he can win, he probably will go for it.

A history buff, McCauley by running for and winning a fifth term, would be writing a chapter himself.

He would be the all-time Plan A mayoral longevity champ.

When he completes his fourth term he will have served eight years. Late Mayor Charles Ross served the longest--nine years--under Plan A.

The late Amelio Della Chiesa is the all time champ with 12 years--eight under Plan A and four under Plan E.

But in the days of Plan E, the city manager was the chief executive and the mayor was elected by the City Council. He presided over the council like a Council president and did the ribbon cutting honors throughout the city.

The Neighborhood Club, where this reception will be held, is considered a lucky charm by McCauley. He has made all his mayoral candidate announcements there.

And usually those affairs are $100 per. So maybe he is getting ready for another run.

But, maybe this particular fundraiser is to help finance another campaign: four year terms for mayor and the city council.

McCauley has said he is going to hit the campaign trail to push for the four year terms which will be a referendum question on this year's November ballot.

He is determined to bring the four year terms home a winner, despite the fact there has been no grass-roots support for them from the people.

McCauley first proposed the four year terms two years ago but they got shot down 8-1 in the City Council.

He can be stubborn, though.

He came back again this year with the same proposal and squeaked it through the council 5-to-4.

He was able to convince five of the councillors that "the people should decide" by putting it on the ballot.

The fact that it was McCauley and not the people who wanted the question on the ballot somehow didn't seem to matter to the five who voted for it.

"Let the people decide" has a nice democratic ring to it. Not only that but by tossing the political potato to the people doesn't put anyone on the spot.

But four councillors stood up, willing to be counted on whether they favored or opposed the four year terms.

The four--Ordinance Committee Chairman Michael Cheney, Jim Cahill, Charles Phelan and Thomas Nutley--said it, loud and clear, they oppose four year terms because they think it's a bad idea.

They thought the City Council should vote for or against it and not toss it to the people who didn't ask for it to be tossed to them.

There was no petition from the people asking that the question go on the ballot. The question was initiated in the mayor's office.

In fairness to him, however, he isn't "feathering his own nest" on this proposal as some think.

If approved, the four year terms would not go into effect until 1992. By that time, McCauley expects to be gone from City Hall.

The four councillors who voted against the proposal said they believe the mayor and councillors should be accountable and willing to be accountable to the people every two years as they are now.

We agree.

Four year terms, we feel, are too convenient for incumbents. It means they can relax twice as long before answering to their constituents. It makes them too comfortable, too long.

The worst thing that can happen is the wrong mayor or city councillor being elected. Four years is a long time before the people can do anything about it.

The wrong person being elected is more than a possibility.

There is no recall provision in the proposed four-year terms to let people correct a political mistake before the four years is up. There is no safeguard for the people.

If the four-year terms do win in November, there should be a recall amendment tacked on.

And, maybe there should be a restriction limiting a mayor or councillor to two terms so incumbents can't make a career out of the office.

Think for a moment: with four year terms, an incumbent mayor or councillor could be in office eight years and only have to answer to the people once. Or be in office 12 years and accountable to the people only twice. Or 16 years and face re-election only three times. Or 20 years and be accountable only four times.

It gives the wrong mayor or councillor a long time to have his or her own way.

We agree with Councillors Cheney, Cahill, Phelan and Nutley, that the four year terms are indeed, a bad idea. A very bad idea.

Anyway, the people will have the final say in November--even if they didn't ask for it.

We hope they, too, will see it as a bad idea and trounce it so badly on election day that we'll never hear it proposed again.

When Sterling Middle School eight grade English teacher Peggy Spencer coaches students in such productions as "Oliver," she's not just working from the standpoint of a teacher.

Spencer has been in her students' shoes as well.

"I can relate to kids' needs," she explained. "I was going to be an actress.

"As a little kid, I was enthralled with the magic of acting," said Spencer, a Quincy native who still lives in the city.

"I realized you could make people happy or sad, different than when they came in," she said.

Her parents enrolled her in children's theatre at the age of eight or nine as a way to help her get over a stuttering problem.

"The stuttering was because I thought faster than I could talk," said Spencer, who had already taken dancing lessons.

She overcame her stuttering problem and has been singing, dancing, acting, teaching and directing ever since.

"It's a wonderful feeling to get up and use a talent you have to give people joy, to move people," said Spencer.

"I was always a bit of a ham," added Spencer, who played ingenue parts such as Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz" in Children's Theatre until the age of 18.

When she enrolled at Northeastern University, Prof. Eugene Blackman, head of the drama department, suggested that the diminutive young woman try character parts.

"That was ok," she said. "I'd rather make people laugh."

But somewhere along the line, she learned that she was good at directing, as well.

"I was always kind of bossy," said Spencer. "But I never knew it would pay off."

And pay off it did in May, 1987, when she was presented with the Outstanding Teacher of Drama Award from the Massachusetts Alliance for Arts Education.

"Winning the award was lovely," she said. "I can't help but think of all the teachers I've had.

I don't think of myself as doing anything so outstanding she said. "I get such a kick out of watching kids in a show."

Spencer, who has a bachelor of arts degree in drama and speech from Northeastern University and a master of arts degree in teaching from Boston College, decided to be a teacher as a way of combining her love of children and love of theatre.

She's been teaching in Quincy Public Schools for about 13 years.

"I love it," said Spencer, who leads the drama club after school.

She has an 80-member cast for "Oliver."

Auditions were run as if it were a professional production.

"I put up a call back list," she said. "It's part of the whole experience."

"I run as close to a professional theatre as I can.

"Any child has it in her or him to be in one of my productions, whether as an actor, or with the set or props," she said.

Spencer considers herself demanding as a director, but not stressful, and adds, "the way to get people to do their best is to have a good time.

"But I don't tolerate fooling around."

Appearing in plays helps students build their self confidence, according to Spencer, an enthusiastic, youthful woman.

"It makes them aware of trust and interdependence," she said.

"You can't put on a show without trusting other people, and you can't miss rehearsal.

"It teaches responsibility and commitment.

"Hopefully, they also have a good time.

"You see different friendship develop, and that's very touching.

"I've seen people become friends who wouldn't have had a reason to speak to each other until the show."

Some students worry about forgetting their lines during a performance.

"I tell them the audience doesn't have scripts. Keep smiling and ad lib," she said.

"The audience is there to be entertained, not to catch mistakes.

"Even if they do mess up, if they remember to stay relaxed and in control, they can overcome it."

One of her favorite ad libs involves a student who was playing the mother in "The Music Man" when porch scenery fell over.

Instead of panicking, the student ad libbed with a thick Irish brogue, "I've been meaning to tighten the screws on that porch," said Spencer.

"Students are so creative at this age," she said.

The vast majority of students in her productions just want to have fun, she said.

But after productions are over, two to three students a year might ask Spencer where they can act during the summer.

"Sometimes I get scared for them when they say they want to go on," she said.

"The amount of people in this profession who make it is so slim.

"I graduated with 20 people, and I'm one of the few who is making a living related to the business.

"It's not an easy life.

"I don't discourage kids, but I recommend they try threatre with other directors."

Her husband, Glenn, is also involved in theatre.

"We met in community theatre," she explained.

"I watched him in a play and was smitten, and he watched me in a play. Then we met for coffee...

"I directed him in "Your'e a Good Man, Charlie Brown.

"He's very, very talented. I'm always very proud whenever I see him in anything. He's very versatile.

Her husband recently decided to go into acting professionally, according to Spencer. In between acting jobs, he is home with the children, a role reversal.

She said her children, Michael 6, and Caitlin, 4, have also shown an interest in theatre.

"They love to go to stage shows," said Spencer.

"If they go in that direction, fine."

Spencer is going in different directions herself.

In addition to raising her children, teaching English, being a creative dramatics leader and drama coach, she is writing a novel with one of her best friends.

"We had an idea for a story, and we wanted to write it down," she said.

"It's been one of the most fulfilling things I've done.

"It's a story about the late 60s and then you see the characters again in the late 80s, 20 years later."

As yet unnamed, the story is almost ready to be sent out to publishers, Spencer said.

She also hopes to modernize the 700-seat theatre at Sterling.

"That's a goal of mine," she said.

But she's content with her life right now.

"I love children and the theatre, and people pay me to work with both," said Spencer.

"And I have the knowledge that I'm playing a role in the life of children, hopefully a positive one.

"Combining the two things makes me very happy."

(Editor's note:

Peggy Spencer was selected for a teacher profile by a panel from the Quincy Education Association for her work as a professional educator, and also, as an involved community person.

Panelists are Deanna White Hebert, Snug Harbor School; Paul Phillips, North Quincy High School; Jack Buckley, Central Middle School; Thomas Walsh, QEA president, Quincy High School; and Mary Curtin, Atherton Hough.)

Executive Director George A. Yarrington said the Quincy Taxpayers Association is going to reopen its long campaign to get the City Council to approve a definite plan for commercial development of 110 acres in Broad Meadows.

"We cannot afford to let the Quincy tax rate go up," he said. "One of the ways to keep the tax rate from going up is to encourage the construction of new taxable buildings."

NEW HAVEN PLANS WARNINGS

The New Haven Railroad plans to install a signal light and bell to warn pedestrians of approaching trains in the Norfolk Downs station it was announced by Mayor Della Chiesa.

The Mayor said the New Haven also plans a chain link fence, four to six feet high, along the tracks from the station to Linden St. to prevent people from walking across the tracks.

He said he will discuss with Boston Gear Works a proposal to build an overpass for employees who park their cars in a lot off Wilson Ave. and cut across the tracks to work. A fence for them would mean an extra half mile walk.

Egg Rolls
Suggested By Rita

At times, when we are just sitting around wondering what to make for dinner that is different, our daughter Rita will suggest her recipe for egg roll and then we go Chinese. We buy the egg roll skins but of course make the filling.

Usually an egg roll consists of three things, a vegetable, shrimp and meat filling. But anything can be substituted such as ham, beef, veal or chicken. For the following recipe, we used pork and shrimp (fresh).

EGG ROLLS BY RITA
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 cup shredded cabbage
about 3 large fresh shrimp diced and cooked
A cup or so of diced cooked pork (you may use ground pork if you wish)
3 scallions finely chopped
3 Tbsps oil (I used peanut oil)
½ cup water chestnuts finely chopped
1 clove of garlic, minced
¼ cup soy sauce

Make a paste to seal the ends of the roll by mixing 2 tablespoons of flour and a little water. Remember, just like in school.

Put celery and cabbage in about a half cup of water and bring to a boil. Drain. In a skillet, heat the oil and add the shrimp and pork. Fry stirring constantly until done. Add the remaining ingredients and fry for about five more minutes. In each egg roll skin, put about 3 tablespoons of the egg roll filling in the center of each and tuck and seal the sides by using the paste you made out of flour. Fry in oil until golden brown. Drain on paper towel.

Baby-Sitting
More Than Watching TV

One of the biggest responsibilities you'll ever have is caring for young children. One way to look after them is to protect yourself as well.

Babysit only for people known to you or to your family. Visit the family first before accepting a job. Don't be afraid to turn down a job if you sense potential problems.

When you accept a job, make sure the family knows what hours you can work and what you charge. Make sure that transportation arrangements to and from the job are clear. An escort home is necessary even if you live only a few doors away!

Before the parents leave, be sure to get phone numbers where they can be reached. Have other important or emergency numbers on hand - like close neighbors. Note any special rules and instructions, know the address, and familiarize yourself with the layout of the house.

Here are some other on the job tips:

- Never let strangers in the house and don't tell callers you're alone. Keep the door locked.
- Don't invite friends to visit. Don't tie up the phone.
- Don't hesitate to call the police if you're frightened by suspicious noises or actions.
- Get the children and yourself out of the first if you smell smoke or detect a fire.
- Call the fire department from a neighbor's home.
- Keep children away from dangerous objects.
- Always let your family know where you are, what the phone number is, and when you'll be home.

Report anything unusual that happened while you were on the job to the parents when they return. Don't let a parent who's been drinking drive you home. Call your parents or a friend instead.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

To be able to say, "Mine has been a helpful life" is probably the most satisfying statement anyone can make. There are many people who can say just that. There are so many ways to be helpful, one to another. One does not have to be rich and donate large sums to worthy causes. Nor does one have to be poor from a life of unselfish service. Helpfulness knows no social class nor recognizes no religious distinctions. Helpfulness is simply an opening of the heart to the needs of others, and doing the little things that mean so much.

Emily Dickenson put it quite beautifully when she said, "If I can stop one heart from breaking, I shall not live in vain. If I can ease one life the aching, or cool one pain... Or help one fainting robin into its nest again, I shall not live in vain."

Drs. Williams, Bennett To Exchange Pulpits Sunday

This Sunday, Dr. Rhys Williams, Senior Minister of historic First and Second Church in Boston, will lead the worship and deliver the sermon at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents," Quincy Sq.

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister in Quincy, will conduct the worship in Boston in pulpit exchange with Dr. Williams.

Dr. Williams has served as minister at First and Second Church for twenty-eight years. A graduate of St. Lawrence School of Theology, he first served the Unitarian Church of Charleston, S.C., for seven years before coming to Boston in 1960.

The title of Dr. Williams' sermon is "The Behaving Conscience." He notes that the Puritans called for a new level of conscience that was not only individual but collective in nature. "From the wisdom and freedom of our time," Dr. Williams says, "We can look back and see that the conscience of that era had both positive and negative aspects." The sermon will examine such areas as censorship, book-burning and religious bigotry.

Dr. Bennett's sermon in Boston, "Grace and Works: The Tale of Two Churches," will consider the conflicting tension between individual rights of conscience with the requirements for social community in light of the history of these two great churches.

First and Second Church was founded in 1630 by John Winthrop and the Massachusetts Bay Puritans. United First Parish Church was first gathered in 1636 as an offshoot of the Boston Church.

It has numbered among its members the visionary Anne Hutchinson and Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

The Church Choir, under the direction of Norman Corey, will sing anthems by Pooler and Purcell. Mr. Corey will also play organ works by Bach, Johnson and Hine. Louise Hall is hostess for the Social Hour following the service.

The church conducts a Church School and child care is provided. Visitors are welcome and are invited to the Social Hour following the service.

PSSB Walkathon April 24

Nearly 700 are expected to participate in the 14th annual Walk-I-or-PSSB walkathon Sunday, April 24 starting at 12:30 p.m. at One Monarch Dr., North Quincy.

Sponsored by The Protestant Social Service Bureau (PSSB) of Quincy, the 10 kilometer walk helps raise funds to support the not-for-profit agency's counseling, foster care and adoption programs.

This year's fundraising goal is $40,000, which, if met, would be a record for the agency.

Last year a record $38,000 was raised.

Drugs, Housing, Education, MWRA Top Priorities For Tobin

During his announcement of candidacy for the vacant state representative seat in the Second Norfolk District, Arthur Stephen Tobin proposed legislation requiring automatic jail sentences for anyone convicted of possessing drugs with intent to distribute.

"You have expressed to me your concerns regarding the distribution of drugs into our neighborhoods and into our schools and I am listening," said Tobin, 32, as he spoke before a crowd of supporters at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

ARTHUR S. TOBIN

Tobin proposed that legislation be filed similar to the "Bartley-Fox" bill, which mandates that "anyone with a gun in their possession without a permit would receive a one year jail sentence."

"My bill would mandate that anyone convicted of possession of drugs with the intent to distribute, would receive an automatic jail sentence, the length of time to be determined, with stiffer sentencing for second or third offenses.

"There are some that may say that this penalty is too harsh," he said.

"To them, I say, listen to the abused and battered women whose families are being torn apart by drugs, and ask them if they think it's too harsh.

"A check of the statistics at our local district court for 1987 shows that 40 percent of the cases involving abuse to battered women involves some type of chemical substance abuse.

"To those people who may be critical of my bill, talk to the families of our police officers and public safety officials who are being gunned down in cold blood participating in drug raids to break up the sale and distribution of drugs that are polluting our neighborhoods," said Tobin.

"Ask them if the penalty is too harsh," he said.

Tobin, son of former Mayor Arthur Tobin and his wife, Shirley, also touched on problems with housing, education and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

"You have expressed your concern that our young people contemplating marriage and raising a family can no longer afford to purchase a home on their own," he said.

"I propose an immediate sit-down with the directors of the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency to work out a variety of formulas that would assist our children and loved ones in becoming first time home owners. What is needed is bold new ideas and imagination."

Regarding the MWRA, Tobin said the state agency would have to answer why its budget has increased $12 million in two years and the waters of Quincy Bay are still polluted.

"They will have to answer why their payroll has increased to over 500 additional employees, which is an average of two new employees of each working day for the past two years," he said.

"What do we have to show for it? A new sludge treatment facility at our shipyard and $1.5 million worth of office furnishings including oak desks, leather coaches and marble ashtrays.

"The inspector general and the state auditor have questioned the arrogance and tactics of this authority, but even as I stand before you this evening, this same authority wants to levy a 46 percent increase to your water and sewer tax, a tax which will burden every homeowner in this city.

"Can you imagine what this will do to those people living on fixed incomes?

"As your state representative, I would seek to bring down the full weight and power of the Massachusetts legislature to deal with the arrogance of this authority," Tobin said.

Tobin also proposed having teachers of the Quincy school system linked to the State Tuition Remission Program, whereby teachers could receive degrees for advanced training at any one of the state colleges, and the costs would be absorbed by the commonwealth.

"This would be an incentive," he said. "The teachers would save money on their tuition, they would receive a higher salary upon receiving their advanced degrees and our children would receive the benefit of the results of this program."

Tobin concluded, "we must elect a state representative who has the vision to bridge the gap between today's problems and tomorrow's solutions.

"The time to approach these problems is now, not the 21st Century.

"I welcome these challenges and with your help and your vote, I will successful."

Tobin is married to the former Francine Comeau. They are partents of a son, Sean Francis.

Creative Hair Works: For A New And Exciting Look

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Spring is here and if you want to give your hair a new and exciting look this season, Creative Hair Works, 58 Billings Rd., North Quincy is the place to go.

Co-owned and co-operated by Jean Cardia and Sue Amato, Creative Hair Works, a full-service salon, specializes in personal care and "service with a smile."

"Our personal service makes us different from other hair salons," said Sue.

"And our prices are right," Jean added.

Both Jean and Sue are qualified and experienced hair stylists.

Jean attended the Wilford Beauty Academy in Boston and performed 1000 hours of practical training before receiving her operator's license.

Sue enrolled in the Hanover Beauty Academy and also performed 1000 hours of training to receive her operator's license.

Both Jean and Sue worked several years as operators before receiving their hair dresser licenses.

Before opening Creative Hair Works five years ago, Jean and Sue worked as hair stylists in Milton for a number of years. When the opportunity to start their own business presented itself, they never hesitated and Creative Hair Works was opened.

And Jean and Sue have succeeded since day one for several reasons.

"We offer warm, friendly service. We strive to keep our customers happy," Sue said. "If you don't," Jean added, "you're not going to have a business."

Creative Hair Works is a female as well as a male hair salon. Jean said 75 percent of her customers are female while 25 percent are male.

Customers are mostly from the Quincy-South Shore area and their ages run from eight to 80. "Some of our customers are nearing 100 years in age," Jean pointed out.

Furthermore, Creative Hair Works customers go away feeling and looking good. "About 85 to 90 percent of the customers are return customers. We have a lot of regulars," Sue said.

In addition to Jean and Sue, there are three staff members. Teresa Tremblay, Sandra and Ann Marie. Jean said there are no plans for expansion.

In terms of style, Jean said hair lengths "go up and down like hem lines."

"Perms are in. People care about how they look and they come out of here looking good," she said.

"People want their hair to be more stylish, more professional looking," Jean added.

Jean said she became a hair stylist because "it was something I always wanted to do. I like working with people. It's creative."

As for the benefits, she said, "I like people. We create and I like to make people look better." Sue added, "We enjoy seeing a finish product."

Jean and Sue also enjoy their North Quincy location. "It's a good area. It's a very busy area," Jean noted.

Despite long hours standing, Jean and Sue never get tired of being on their feet.

"No, you get used to it," Sue said. "I could never get a sit-down job," Jean added.

Creative Hair Works is open Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Thursday and Friday from 9 to 8.

South Shore Check Cashing: A Swift, Satisfying Service

Need a check cashed in a hurry? Want to play that lucky lottery number in a flash? Lack patience when it comes to long post office lines?

Then do yourself a favor by doing business at South Shore Check Cashing Service, 2 Billings Rd., North Quincy. At this small but multi-dimensional and service-oriented store, you'll be helped quickly, courteously and efficiently.

The South Shore Check Cashing Service is operated by Wayne McCulley, president, his wife Peg, treasurer, and Wayne's brother, Anthony, manager. Rounding out the staff are tellers Cheryl Brandolini and Amy Barkas, North Quincy High School seniors currently enrolled in a work study program.

Services available at South Shore Check Cashing include: cashing a wide range of checks including unemployment, payroll and income tax refunds, issuing money orders as well as notary and photocopying services.

Check cashing fees range from one to two and a half percent.

In addition, S S C C S is a full-line Massachusetts Lottery service offering the complete spectrum of lottery games. Wayne is quick to point out that his store will cash any winning ticket regardless of where it is purchased.

Another top quality service offered is a packaging and shipping service. Packages that have been postal wrapped or need postal wrapping can be brought to South Shore Check Cashing for proper shipping through United Parcel Service (UPS), Emery and Purolator. Pickups are scheduled daily for next day air, overnight and international shipping.

"You can send any package to anywhere in the world from our location," Wayne said.

Many people took advantage of their services during the Christmas mail rush. "More than 600 packages were shipped from here during the holidays," Wayne noted.

The procedure at South Shore Check Cashing Service is very simple. First time customers are asked to fill out a small form stating name, address, phone number and social security number and must present a valid Massachusetts driver's license.

This information is then fed into a computer for future accessibility and thus quicker service. Return customers, who comprise about 75 percent of the store's clientele, simply show their driver's license when they wish to have a check cashed. It's that easy.

South Shore Check Cashing Service is unique in this area with several like it in Boston and on the North Shore. Peg said these stores are extremely popular in mid-western cities like Chicago and in California because of convenience. "At our store, you don't have to wait in any long lines," she said.

The idea for a check cashing service on the South Shore was formed after Wayne sold the North Quincy Taxi Company, which he ran for a number of years with his father Garfield, one of the original owners. Wayne became president of the company in 1973 but in May of 1986, was forced to sell it because of a lack of space brought on by the building of the Division of Employment (D.E.S.) structure across the street from the taxi service.

When the company was sold, Wayne pondered his next business venture and after a few months, he decided to open the South Shore Check Cashing Service on the same parcel of land where the taxi company was located.

"We owned the property and the building where the taxi company was. We also wanted to stay in North Quincy because we didn't want to leave our many friends and acquaintances we met through the cab company," Wayne pointed out.

Lifelong North Quincy residents, Wayne and Peg also wanted to keep their family's roots firmly planted there. They are the parents of two sons, Wayne Jr., 15, a student at North Quincy High, and Christopher, 12, a student at Atlantic Middle School.

When the check cashing service began, it was only Wayne and Peg. She had worked as a teller at the Granite Cooperative Bank for four years.

"In the beginning, we cashed only unemployment checks because most of the area banks wouldn't cash them unless the person had an account at that particular bank," Peg explained. "And many people didn't have an account," adding that 80 percent of their customers were unemployed during the business's early stages.

In time, other services were added. To help them with the work load, they hired Anthony as manager and two tellers. Both Amy and Cheryl will become full-time tellers in June after their graduation.

Since the business opened, the service has grown steadily. Anthony said there are plans to build an addition and install approximately 500 post office boxes possibly this summer. "Post office boxes are very scarce in the city," he said.

Not only is Wayne the president of South Shore Check Cashing, he has two side businesses. He operates a vending machine company and the South Shore Taxi Advertising Company which rents out signs to taxis. He owns the advertising rights for 18 towns on the North and South Shores.

"Anthony and Peg mainly run the check cashing service while I manage the other two businesses," Wayne said.

Store hours are Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The cornerstone to the business is a philosophy shared by Wayne, Peg and Anthony. "At South Shore Check Cashing Service, customers have a name and a face to us, they're never a number."

Alfred Cawthorne III Wins Duracell Competition Award

Alfred Cawthorne III, a student at North Quincy High School, was a recent winner in the sixth annual Duracell Scholarship Competition for his design, the Talking Voltmeter II.

He was awarded one of 25 $100 cash awards and a certificate from Duracell.

Open to all ninth through 12th graders and administered by the National Science Teachers Association, the Duracell Scholarship Competition invites students to compete for more than $30,000 in awards.

To enter, a student must design and build a device powered by a Duracell battery. Students are encouraged to be experimental and imaginative in building devices that are educational, useful or entertaining.

Christmas Festival Committee Seeks Parade Theme

The Christmas Festival Committee is continuing its past practice in seeking the general public's suggestions for a "theme" for this year's annual Quincy Christmas Parade.

The individual submitting the winning entry will be invited to participate in the parade and will be presented with a gift of appreciation from the Festival Committee at the Awards Ceremony immediately following the parade.

"People like to be part of a big event," said General Chairman George White, "the winner of the theme contest will be recognized as her or she travels along the three-mile Hancock St. parade route, before an anticipated viewing crowd of 300,000 people."

Some of the entries received are from participating organizations who build the floats. This enables them the opportunity to submit their input on the theme based upon their personal involvement.

"The suggested theme should be appropriate for float builders to work within," White said remember, it is a season of happiness and the theme should create an environment in keeping with the spirit of Christmas."

The theme should easily bring to mind 10 to 15 different ways to develop a float. This is the number of non commercial floats expected to be in the parade. This eliminates the potential for duplication of ideas.

The non-commercial organization that builds the best float in the parade is awarded $1,000, second place is $500, third place is $300 and fourth place is $200.

Floats are judged on the areas of originality, use of materials, use of color, overall appearance and adherence to theme.

Past themes have included "Children's Stories," "Christmas in Toyland," "Christmas Around the World," "The Music of Christmas," "Traditions of Christmas," "Visions of Christmas," "Christmas Fantasy," "Memories of Christmas Past," and last year's winning theme "The Magic of Christmas."

Mail entries no later than Friday, April 22, to Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., North Quincy, 02170.

The 28-member Christmas Festival Committee will select the winning theme Wednesday, April 27.

Quincy Takes Weymouth, North And South

Quincy's baseball team, which missed the Eastern Mass. Tournament by only one win the past two years, got off to a good start last week with wins over the two Weymouth schools.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents opened with a 7-1 victory over Weymouth North and followed up with an 8-6 win over Weymouth South.

Quincy is home today (Thursday) at Adams Field at 4 p.m., will be at Medford Monday morning at 10:30 and will host Peabody next Wednesday at 10:30 at Adams.

Southpaw Wayne Chambers pitched a masterpiece in the win over Weymouth North as he gave up just one hit, led off a single to Weymouth's Ron Dowd, and struck out 17. He fielded two of the non-strikeouts.

The Presidents' Dan Biagini drove in three runs with a bases-loaded triple and Greg Chambers had two hits.

"Chambers threw super," said Weymouth coach Kevin Cobban. "The placement of his curveball kept our kids off balance throughout the entire game."

Chambers allowed only two balls out of the infield and struck out the side in the first, third, fifth and sixth innings.

"Basically, I just threw my fastball and three-quarter curve and mixed in a few over-hand curves," he said. "I didn't throw any changeups or sliders."

"He got into a rhythm," said Sylvia. "You could feel it in the dugout. I thought his selection of pitches was excellent. Our catcher, Brian Taylor, called a really good game. He was putting the ball where Brian wanted it.

"Most of the credit for Wayne's improvement must go to Dave MacMillan, who works with our pitchers. He's a pitching genius. He and Larry Taglieri (now pitching at Bridgewater State College) have worked with him."

Jim Dennis pitched a complete-game seven-hitter in the win over Weymouth South.

Dennis struck out five and gave up only two earned runs. Ed Flavin keyed a five-run sixth inning with a two-run double to break a 3-3 tie. Greg Chambers and Biagini each had a run batted in in the sixth.

North Gets Two Good Pitching Performances

North Quincy's baseball team received two excellent pitching performances last week as it broke even with the Weymouth schools.

Leo Donovan's Raiders dropped a 3-2 squeaker to Weymouth South in their opener, Weymouth scoring the winning run on an error. They bounced back to defeat Weymouth North, 4-2.

North Quincy will play at Medford Friday at 4 o'clock, will host Peabody Monday morning at 10:30 at Adams Field and will be at Revere next Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.

North's Eric DeBoer pitched extremely well as he allowed only three hits.

Steve Kohler had two singles and drove in both of the North Quincy runs.

Billy MacDougall pitched a four-hitter and struck out nine in the win over Weymouth North.

North took advantage of Weymouth errors and scored three unearned runs in the third inning.

"Both DeBoer and MacDougall pitched outstanding games," said Donovan, whose team is trying to improve upon a 5-14 record. "If we keep getting pitching like that and play good defense, we should give a good account of ourselves."

Mount Captures Winter Crown

The Mount continued its dominance of the Jaehnig Chiropractic Men's Basketball Leagues by winning the winter league championship last week with a 71-59 victory over the Jaehnig Club.

The Mount, led by the league's scoring champion, Mark Millane, has now won consecutive titles in the spring, fall and winter leagues.

The Mount's accurate outside shooting and relentless inside play of Millane, the league's Most Valuable Player, keyed the championship win.

Millane, with 20 points, was able to outbattle a larger Jaehnig frontline while Bruno Giles scored 20 points on a variety of drives and outside jumpshots. Tony DePina had 13 points and Ray Baltz contributed eight of his 10 points in the second half.

Jaehnig cut a seven-point halftime deficit to two with 10 minutes to play but was unable to match the torrid outside shooting of the champions down the stretch. Chuck Jaehnig had 16 points, Paul Leonard 14, Rich McGuire 13, Mark Jaehnig 10 and Mark Dwyer six.

The Mount's roster included Capt. Kurt O'Sullivan, Mark Millane, Baltz, Giles, DePina, Dave Williams and Mike Quinn. The team finished 24-1 over the past two seasons.

Playing for the Jaehnig Club, which had its best finish in three seasons, were Mark, Mike, Chuck and Dan Jaehnig, Dwyer, Leonard, McGuire and Marty Connolly.

The Mount had no trouble defeating Timmins Contracting, 77-54, in the semifinals as Millane and Giles scored 26 points each and Baltz had 12 points and six steals. John Timmins had 18, Bill Murphy 15 and Steve Millane 13 for Timmins, which never was able to get any of its usual momentum going.

Jaehnig provided an upset as it topped the tournament's top seed, Joe's Pub, 67-56, in a game that was tight throughout with many lead changes.

The score was tied at 52 with less than five minutes to play when the Jaehnig Club closed out the contest with a 15-4 advantage keyed by solid free throw shooting to nail down the win.

Jaehnig, the only team to defeat the Mount in two seasons, was paced by Maguire's 15 points, while Leonard, Mark and Chuck Jaehnig each contributed 14 points. Dean Coletti with 21 points and Paul Forbes with 19 powered Joe's as they have done all season. Pat Bradley, Peter Forbes and Tom Henry battled valiantly on under the boards.

Quincy Bows In Opener But With Good Performances

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy High boys' spring track team had its best turnout in four years as coaches Jack Raymer and John Taglieri welcomed 38 runners.

The Presidents received some outstanding performances in their opener, despite losing to Newton North, 85-50. They are home today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. against Brockton at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Led by three-year starter and captain Jim Kimmell in the 800, triple jump and 4x400 relay, and the leading scorer the past two years, Boston University-bound Sean Munroe in the long jump, triple jump, 100 and 4x100 relay, the team made a fine showing against a strong Newton North team.

Munroe led all scorers as he won the long jump (19-8) and the triple jump (38-7), ran with the winning 4x100 relay team and finished a close second in the 100 (10.6).

Kimmell finished a strong second in the half mile and Quincy's only other senior, Neal Plant, took third in the low hurdles.

With only three seniors, Quincy's future looks promising.

Outstanding junior performances included Todd Kimmell's win in the high jump (5-4) and second in the high hurdles.

First year runner Chris Noble took third in the 400 and the high hurdles. Junior Dennis Plant was third in the two-mile with freshmen Dan Thackary and Bill Reardon running well.

Also running well in the distances were Jim Munroe, Ken Caldwell, Chris Lewis and Steve O'Donoghue.

Also looking good in the 200 were Jim Dennett, Scott O'Brien and Pagnani. Neal Plant and O'Brien ran well in the 100.

The 4x100 relay team of Charlie Chareck, Dennett, Munroe and O'Brien won in 48.7. The 4x400 team of Fay, Caldwell, Fleuten and Jim Kimmell was just nosed out at the tape.

In the field events Taglieri's boys did well as junior Brian Norris won the javelin (127-0) and Rich Fallis placed third.

Norris also took second in the shot put and Brian Burgess won the discus at 98 feet. Also throwing well were Tom Morrell, Mike Tempesta, Joe Baker, Tony Madden, Pat Neal, Phil Daley and David and Graham Cherry.

"John (Taglieri) and I are very happy at the way the boys are working," said Raymer. "Things look bright and I look forward to a good season."

Central Boys, Girls Off To Good Start

The Quincy Middle School basketball season is under way and the Central boys' and girls' teams, coached by Earl Metzler, are off to good starts with 2-0 records.

The Central boys edged Atlantic, 44-39, paced by Co-Capt. Christian Ciavarro's 21 points. Co-Capt. Mark Kelleher and Chris Olsen turned in fine games for Central, while Desmond Bellot and Timothy Ross stood out for Atlantic.

Central's girls won easily, 35-16, as Co-Capts. Kim Marsden and Holly McDonough scored 13 and 12 points respectively. Christie Richmond played strong defense. Tricia Hughes and Cindy Mitton played well for Atlantic.

The Central boys defeated Sterling, 56-39, as Ciavarro scored 27 points on a variety of running one-handed jump shots. He also had 10 assists. Other standouts were Rob Fitzpatrick and Sergi Wassilon who controlled the boards, and Chris Kavanaugh, who was outstanding on defense.

Sterling got a fine game from Jason Anderson, who grabbed a dozen rebounds and blocked several shots. Mike Malvesti and Mark Zambrowski turned in fine defensive efforts. Malvesti made the highlight film with a 360 degree turn around jumper on the run.

The Central girls rolled over Sterling, 50-19, as McDonough scored 11 points and Melanie Moffet added 10. Central's twin towers, McDonough and Merri Ford, controlled the boards, and Marsden played well at both ends as did her younger sister, Laura. Regina Murphy and Erin Duffy had fine defensive games. Ten different players scored for Central.

Sterling was led by Dina Speranzo's 11 points. Also playing well were Deanna Griffin and Nicole Mullen.

Major Rebuilding Job At North

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy High girls' softball team had its best season ever last year with a 17-3 record and finishing second to Brockton in the Suburban League.

In the Eastern Mass Tournament the Raiderettes defeated Norwood but were eliminated by Somerset.

This year coach Barbara Webster, in her second year at North after 15 years at Quincy High, faces a major rebuilding job with an almost entirely new team.

"One of our starters is out with an injury, another decided not to play this year and another is not playing due to a knee injury," Webster said. "We lost some awfully good players and we go into a tough schedule with many question marks."

Michelle Lynch was expected to play second base but has moved to catcher due to an injury.

Crystal Golden was due to be the right fielder but has moved to second base and Crystal Moffet, who stood out as a sophomore last year, will move from second base to shortstop.

Kristin Drake, who pitched nearly every game last year and had a 15-3 record, will do the pitching again. "Right now I don't have a second pitcher," said Webster.

Veteran Karen Reister will move from right field to center field, another veteran, Sarah Harrington, is the first baseman, Kerry Tolson, one of several players up from the jayvees, will be in left field. Paula Tolson will be at third base and a ninth grader, Soyan Park, in right field.

On the bench are another ninth grader, Erin Twomey, who will play third base and shortstop and a newcomer, Kerry Gordon, who will play first base.

North opened its season Tuesday at Somerville. It will be home for Arlington today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., will host Notre Dame Friday at 4 and will be home to Medford Tuesday at 10:30.

Quincy's Pitching Problems May Be Solved

Quincy's girls' softball team won only three games last season and pitching was one of the big reasons for the First Ladies' lack of success.

This season, coach Jim Piccini hopes that Diane Heeney and Ann Marie McCaffrey will solve that problem.

Quincy was scheduled to open Tuesday against Peabody, will be at Medford today (Thursday) at 4 p.m., will host Somerville Tuesday at 10:30 and will be at Malden next Thursday at 10:30.

Piccini has six starters back, catcher Sue Cullen, third baseman Kristin Curtin, first baseman Camie Levangie, shortstop Donna Deane and outfielders Marion Miller and Lisa Zambruno.

"We have a team of consistent hitters, if not long-ball hitters, Piccini said.

Host Families Needed For Nova Scotia Players In Quincy Youth Tourney

The Quincy Youth Arena Presidential B and C hockey tournament will be held next week at the arena and there is a desperate need for housing for players from Sackville, Nova Scotia, and Sydney, Nova Scotia.

"This is the first year we have had out-of-state teams and we accepted these teams in order to give our own program exposure to Canadian teams," said arena manager Beverly Reinhardt. There will be 17 boys from Sackville and 15 from Sydney who will be arriving Wednesday, April 20, and leaving Sunday, the 24th.

"This is a new venture for most of these boys as most have not traveled before. They have heard all about the hospitality of the Quincy people and are looking forward to visiting us. We are in desperate need of families to put up these boys during their stay here and anyone wishing to take a boy or two should call me at the arena (479-8371)."

The tournament will continue throughout the week, ending on Sunday, the 24th.

Montclair Upsets Sterling, Beechwood Breezes

The first semi-final featured a stunning upset as number one seed Sterling was eliminated by Montclair, 65-46, to move Montclair to the finals.

In the second semi-final Beechwood Knoll took an early lead and never looked back in a 54-29 victory over Atlantic.

The key to Jerry Pratt's Montclair team's win was the three-point shot. Sean Donovan made a tournament high five three-pointers while en route to a 23-point game. Liam Higgins also had six of his 16 on two three-pointers. Sterling played great basketball but could not answer the three-point barrage from Montclair. Jason Anderson once again was top Sterling scorer with 18, followed closely by Gary Collins' 17, and Mike Malvesti's nine. Second-year coach Dan Santry also got two points from Tom King and excellent defense from Mark Nutley. Rounding out the Montclair scoring was Mike McManus with 10 and Vin Anderlionis with five. George Ross played a fine defensive game.

Beechwood Knoll had four players in double figures in a balanced offense that marks the tradition of Beechwood tournament team. Chris Ciavarro with 14, Mark Kelliher 13, Mike McDonald and Paul Keans 10 each were the key to Beechwood effort while Lee Giordano had six and Kevin Murphy two to finish off the scoring. Chris Dupill also contributed some timely defense. Rick Radzik used 14 players en route to the tournament final. Atlantic's Chris Murray topped Atlantic with 14 points, Matt Collins had nine while Nick Mastrogiacomo, Martin Shields and Mike Linnane all had two. Atlantic coach George Dunn praised Bo Smith for his outstanding hustle and Steve Manning for his rebounding.

Ian Marshall of Quincy will be performing as "Danny" in Thayer Academy's production of "Grease" Friday and Saturday, April 15 and 16 at 8 p.m. in Frothingham Hall, Thayer Academy.

'Trojan Women' At Eastern Nazarene

Euripides' classic Trojan Women will be presented Thursday, Friday, Saturday at 7 p.m. at Eastern Nazarene College's Cove Fine Arts Center.

It is against the background of the Peloponnesian wars that Euripides, the youngest of the Greek triad of tragic poets, sets his play as a political outcry against Athen's unnecessary military aggression.

The ENC production will restage the action in a setting which blends the ancient world of the playwright with a contemporary or futuristic world where a superpower has intervened, and the plight of the victims of such aggression is explored.

Eunice S. Ferreira, senior Communication Arts major well-known to audiences as Eliza Doolittle in My Fair Lady, Sister Berthe in The Sound of Music, Kiki in Philemon, and for performances in area regional theaters will debut as director and set designer. Dr. Rhonda Rice Winderl will serve as producer and Professor Michael Ballard as technical director and lighting designer.

Trojan Women will feature the ill-fated Queen of Troy, Hecuba, (Wendy Wicks), her crazed daughter, Cassandra, (Dana Joy), the warrior Hector's widow, Andromache (Jessica Watts), Andromache's young son, Astyanax (Zachary Winderl), the infamous Helen of Troy (Heidi Isler), her betrayed husband, Menelaus (David Geisler), the Greek herald Talthybius (Steven Kitchen), and the captured and oppressed women's chorus led by Kay Linn Birnell and Janelle Haas.

Tickets are $3 and seating is limited in this experimental space. In a continuing tradition of providing quality educational theater, ENC will also present matinee performances for area schools Thursday and Friday at 10 a.m.

What The Former Mayors Think Of Four-Year Terms

from 1976 to 1978, said that two years are adequate.

"I see no value in four year terms," he said.

"I believe that political figures are more responsive if they are running more often for public office, as opposed to being cemented in for four years," said LaRaia, who operates his own business, Joseph J. LaRaia Real Estate.

Hannon, Quincy's mayor from 1972 to 1976, said he very much favors the four year term for mayor, if it is limited to two terms.

But Hannon, now director of real estate and planning for Marina Bay, North Quincy, said that the City Council should remain at two year terms.

In addition to serving as mayor, all three men also were city councillors.

Two of them, Tobin and Hannon were also state representatives. Tobin was a state senator, as well.

"I had no problem going before the voters every two years, whether as a city councillor, legislator or mayor," said Tobin.

"The length of time (in office) was not an issue.

"The important issue when I ran for office was that I felt that I wanted to make some type of contribution to service in public office," Tobin said.

"I wanted to see if I could make an impact, some type of change.

"I had no problem with two years as far as getting things done.

Tobin continued, "I think, as the mayor said, there could be some lively debates on this.

"My experience in the past has been that the voters of Quincy are very intelligent. Given all the facts, they'll make an intelligent decision," he said.

LaRaia said, "You have to treat the position as short term service. It's not meant to fulfill what others would like to fulfill in private industry in terms of career.

"You can't get those things done in public service that you could in private industry in two years," he said.

"Government is meant to be a slow, grinding process under the Democratic system where everyone has a say in its progress, all for the protection of the majority.

"Private industry can move at a faster pace."

LaRaia, who as a city councillor voted against extending terms two years ago, added that if voters wanted four year terms, a recall process should be included.

Hannon said the mayor's term should be extended to give the person in that office more opportunity to get programs through and to make tough decisions.

With two year terms, a mayor can get programs underway during the first year, according to Hannon.

"The second year, when you are running for reelection, you stay in your office and be nice to everyone," he said.

Hannon said that a recall mechanism should be part of the city's charter.

"Then if a person is that outrageous, there can be a recall vote," he said.

The City Council should remain at two year terms, Hannon said.

Downtown Zone Plan Gets Warm Reception

"We need a coherent plan with which to enter the next decade."

A design review board would work to see that new buildings would reflect the old, Cahill said, so that they would flow together, not contrast.

Cahill's seminar would be open to such people as downtown merchants, architects, planners, lawyers and citizens, he said. All city councillors will also be invited, according to Cahill.

A tour of the downtown area would be included.

"We want to come up with a tentative plan by the end of the day," said Cahill.

"The pieces are all there. It's a matter of fine-tuning them, and getting the interested parties involved.

"I'd like to have all this in place by the end of June," he said.

"The idea is to lock everyone in a room and not let them come out until they come up with a plan.

"We want to allow development, quality development, to take place, and to mitigate the side effects such as traffic, trash and parking.

"We have to tread lightly as far as the people in the neighborhoods surrounding Quincy Sq."

The QCBPA plans a similar seminar, geared more towards developers, June 1, he said.

One of the developers at Tuesday morning's meeting, Peter O'Connell addressed the problem of rubbish in the city.

"That's the city's responsibility, not this business organization's.

"The business community is at 150 percent classification right now, it's paying its fair share.

"The city immediately ought to pick up the rubbish that's all over the city and get rid of the Jersey barriers.

"I think those are the first two things that any city that's really concerned about its downtown ought to do."

Cheney Introduces:

Self, Full Service Gas Stations Compromise

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

City Councillor Michael Cheney planned to introduce at Tuesday night's Ordinance Committee meeting a compromise to Mayor Francis McCauley's proposal to allow self serve gas stations in Quincy.

Under Cheney's amendment, self and full serve islands would be allowed at the same station, after approval by the Board of License Commissioners.

In addition, station operators would be allowed to operate the self serve only island from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. because of a labor shortage at night.

"This system offers consumers the lowest and best possible price for gas, while still providing all the services that a full service gas station has," said Cheney.

"I'm hoping for quick action by the council," he said.

McCauley had introduced the ordinance change in January.

The ban on self serve stations had originally been enacted at the urging of former Fire Chief Edward Barry because of safety reasons.

However, the License Board, including new Fire Chief Carl Valenti, recently indicated it was changing its opinion of self service gas stations, and McCauley proposed the change.

At a 45-minute public hearing on the mayor's proposal held by the City Council in March, opinions were about split.

Atty. Robert Fleming, who represented oil interests, said "Self service can benefit the consumer."

However, Bill Marsters, owner of a Mobil Station on Sea St. for 30 years, said "It's big business vs. little business. Service will not be there with self service."

Split island stations are common on the South Shore, explained Cheney.

"Split island is pro-customer because it allows for two different prices, full and self serve prices," he said.

"At the same time, it allows senior citizens and handicapped individuals who don't want to pump their own gas the opportunity to have the benefits of full service.

"It will also benefit the petroleum industry, and foster fair competition."

Cheney said there would be no limit in the number of stations in the city which would be allowed split islands under his proposal. A 25 percent limit had been proposed by councillors for self serve stations in Quincy.

"The License Board would be able to have full control over the license," said Cheney.

"Board members would set the hours of operation.

"Many of the safety conditions are already established by state law."

Cheney said that gas station owners would have to notify people 300 feet in either direction of their station that they are applying for split

Committee Tackles Budget April 25

The City Council's Finance Committee will hold its first session on the proposed $109,772,573 municipal budget for fiscal 1989 Monday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall, according to committee chairman Stephen McGrath.

Mayor Francis McCauley presented the budget to the City Council April 4, and it has 45 days to act.

The council may reduce appropriations, but not add to them.

The budget reflects an increase of $10,157,195 or 10.2 percent, over fiscal 1988 expenditures of $99,615,378.

Last year, the council cut a total of $84,800 from the proposed budget.

Fire Hydrant Testing Begins April 25

The Quincy Fire Department will begin its annual fire hydrant testing program Monday, April 25, Chief Carl V. Valenti announced.

Testing hours will be from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Hydrant testing will take place in all sections of the city at the same time.

During the testing, residents may experience some discoloration in their water. This water is not harmful to drink or use, but should be checked before using washing machines.

Persons experiencing discoloration of their water are requested to flush their water systems by opening their cold water faucet for a few minutes, then waiting approximately one hour. If water does not clear up, repeat the flushing procedure.

Chief Valenti estimated the hydrant testing will take approximately four weeks to complete.

Meeting Called On P & G Odors

Health Commr. M. Jane Gallahue has written to the plant engineer at Procter & Gamble, 780 Washington St., requesting a meeting within the next two weeks on issues such as odors.

The request followed three complaints last Friday of a heavy soap smell.

"The problem turned out to be a faulty dust collection filter," said Gallahue.

"That area was shut down until the filter was repaired," she said.

"Jim Hadiad, an engineer, commended one of the women who called because her description of the odor helped them to identify the problem."

Gallahue said she met last September with plant engineer Thomas Trautwein.

"He expressed an interest in working with us and the neighborhoods on environmental conditions," she said.

"We sent a letter to him Tuesday asking for a meeting so we can be alerted to preventative and corrective action."

Gallahue said she has requested that Peter Kolson attend the meeting since he is an officer in three different organizations in the city.

"We want to develop a network so that we can know what's going on.

"I feel confident that this will be a constructive meeting," she said.

Tax Bill Payments 'Slower Than Usual'

Quincy residents paid a total of $4,500,000 in second half property tax bills as of last Friday, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

"It's a little slower than usual," said McCauley. "But we still have two weeks."

The bills are due May 2, according to McCauley who noted that typically many residents wait until closer to the due date to pay the bills.

Kelly Decides Not To Run Because Of Job

Former City Councillor Leo Kelly, now a project manager for the Quincy Housing Authority, has decided against a run for the state representative seat left vacant by Thomas Brownell who became a judge.

"I've decided against entering the race," said Kelly, who had made no formal announcement of candidacy but was strongly considering the race.

"Under the Hatch Act, I would have to resign my position just to run," he said.

The Hatch Act is a federal law which prevents many U.S. government federal employees from running for political office.

"If I had to leave my job after I was elected, I would understand," said Kelly. "But once I announced my candidacy, I would have to resign.

"That makes a major difference.

"I've thought this out, and pretty well agonized over it.

"But at this point, I can't get in the race."

Kelly's decision narrows the field to three Democratic candidates for the seat in the Second Norfolk District.

They are Patricia Toland, Arthur Stephen Tobin, and Stephen Durkin.

There is still speculation that City Councillor James Sheets might also get into the race.

Kelly, who served for six terms as city councillor from Ward 1, said he has notified supporters about his decision.

"In fairness to the people who were committed to me, I wanted to free them to do what they wish to do," he said.

"I deeply appreciate their involvement and thank them."

Kelly said he enjoys the job of project manager which he has held for four years.

"That was part of my decision," he said. "I enjoy it very much, working one on one with people.

"With my other involvements, it's pretty fulfilling."

Kelly is also a member of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority board, and chairman of Quincy Environmental Control Commission.

"I'll stay involved with ecology and the cleanup of the bay," he said.

"I dreamed about the state representative position," said Kelly. "This was a decision I agonized over.

"But I felt I had to make a decision early enough so other people could make the decisions they wish to make.

"I'm extremely disappointed," added Kelly.

But he didn't rule out a run in the future.

"If the Hatch Act changes, I would consider it," said Kelly, who explained there is a movement to change the law.

"But it won't be in time for this election," he said.

Liquor, Food Licenses Voted For New Tent At Marina Bay

By KRISTINE STRENGE

The city's License Board granted a common victualer license and an all alcoholic license for a new tent with a seating capacity of 788 to be installed at Marina Bay sometime this summer.

Richard Barrett, who will manage the tent, told board members the tent will be open at the end of May to the public and will be located opposite the commuter boats.

The new tent will feature music, cocktails, light food and live entertainment only on Sundays.

The present tent at the marina will remain but will be for private functions.

According to Barrett, the new location of the tent was selected to reduce noise.

"We don't want to annoy any of the neighbors," he said. "If there is a problem we will stop the music."

Walter J. Hannon, director of real estate at Marina Bay, explained to board members the structure and support facilities of the 45 foot wide and 85 foot long tent.

"The support building, made of cement block and is 44 feet long and 25 feet wide, and is to be used for office space, liquor storage and locker rooms, and there are 200 parking spaces and 10 handicapped spaces and many more spaces on adjoining lots," Hannon said.

Auxiliary Police Oppose 3-Month Training Bills

About 30 members of Quincy's Auxiliary Police were scheduled to meet at the State House yesterday (Wednesday) with approximately 70 other auxiliary members from across the state to oppose House Bills No. 77 and 78.

According to Anthony Siciliano, Quincy's Auxiliary Chief, the bills would require auxiliary members, who are volunteers, to participate in a three-month, Monday to Friday, training program.

"How can people afford to take time off from work to attend the program?," asked Siciliano, also chairman of the Massachusetts Auxiliary Police Association Task Force.

"We support the criminal justice training council programs but we need to fit them into our schedule.

"One night a week or on Saturdays is a lot easier for us," he said.

Siciliano also said the question of cost for the program has not yet been addressed.

The 480-hour course is similar to the police training academy, according to Siciliano.

The duties of Quincy's auxiliary have been greatly reduced since December, 1986, because of the threat of legal liability.

It is now limited to acting in a disaster or emergency, as declared by Police Chief Francis Finn.

The auxiliary had previously performed such tasks as patrolling playgrounds and schools.

Siciliano noted that the auxiliary is still participating in training programs, such as a 27-hour program which began earlier this month.

About 16 members of Quincy's Auxiliary assisted with crowd control at the Boston marathon in Hopkinton Monday under a mutual aid request, Siciliano added.

QUINCY LIONS CLUB recently held its annual pancake breakfast at the Lincoln Hancock School to benefit eye research. Over-Serving Holds Up Chevy's Sunday Dance Request

The city's License Board has asked Chevy's Belau Cafe '79 Parkingway, Quincy Center to show cause why its license should not be revoked before it is granted permission to allow Sunday dancing in the establishment.

The board continued until April 26 the request from Chevy's for a Sunday dancing license.

Police Chief Francis Finn wrote a letter to the board requesting Chevy's first appear before the board to show cause why its license should not be revoked for over-serving customers.

Finn said the hearing should address three specific cases.

The incidents involved, Finn said, were:

- A woman who was attacked in the Ross Parking Lot Nov. 30, 1987 coming from Chevy's, who had been over-served along with the people who attacked her.
- Four young Quincy men who were over-served and were later involved and killed in a car accident on Nov. 26, 1987.
- A 25-year-old man from Scituate who was arrested Dec. 4, 1987 at Chevy's for being intoxicated.

Erwin To Retire As Plumbing-Gas Inspector

James Erwin, Jr., 66, has notified Mayor Francis McCauley that he will retire from his $30,073 a year position as plumbing and gas inspector for the city June 30.

Erwin began working for the city May 27, 1968, according to Personnel Director David Smith.

Erwin's position is a civil service appointment, and is appointed by the Building Inspector, Smith said.

Harold-LaRaia Showdown Fades

It doesn't look like Joseph LaRaia is going to challenge incumbent Paul Harold for the latter's senate seat this year.

LaRAIA

McCauley squeaked to a fourth term by a scant 460 votes.

Next day an angry LaRaia said it was "highly probable" he would run against Harold, a former political ally, for the latter's Quincy-Braintree-Holbrook-Avon seat.

HAROLD

It was nothing unusual for Harold to endorse McCauley. He has done so each time McCauley has run for mayor.

But it was a cliff-hanger mayor's race and LaRaia figured that in a close election every little bit helps or hurts. And he felt that Harold's little bit helped McCauley, hurt him, and helped make the difference.

The fact that Harold is a Democrat and LaRaia is a Democrat while McCauley is a Republican didn't make LaRaia feel any better. LaRaia thought Harold should have butted out.

But Harold notes city elections are non-partisan and he has a right to endorse a candidate whether he be Democrat, Republican or Independent.

Although LaRaia would be a serious challenger to Harold observers felt it was the anger in him talking when he said it was "highly probable" he would run against him.

And it apparently was.

LaRaia has been telling people lately that, "I'm not running for anything this year."

Although he adds, "But ..."

ACTUALLY, observers feel that LaRaia is more apt to make another run for mayor in 1989.

He came within a political whisker of upsetting McCauley and regaining the mayor's office. He would have been the first former mayor to unseat an incumbent mayor.

He may feel he staked out his claim to the office in 1987 and will finalize it in 1989.

He certainly would have to be reckoned with regardless of who else is running.

AND, DON'T BE too surprised if one of those running in 1989 is named Frank McCauley.

McCAULEY

He was pretty disappointed at last year's close vote. And he was "down" the morning after. So much so, he indicated that this would be his fourth and final term. The heck with it.

But he now says:

"I haven't decided not to run next year. I won't make up my mind until around January."

That is one of the reasons for tonight's (Thursday) $100 per head fundraiser at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

"If I decide to run again, this will help give me a head start," he says.

Meanwhile tonight's proceeds will help other expenses that a mayor incurs like buying tickets to a number of functions and making donations to various causes.

He says he is not planning on using the money to finance an advertising campaign for his proposed four year terms for mayor and councillor.

"I'll go out to speak to any group on the four year terms but I do not plan an advertising campaign," he says.

IT SEEMED LIKE everyone was circulating nominating papers at the Democratic City Committee organizational meeting the other night.

Among them Governor's Councillor Peter Fleey, Senator Paul Harold, Rep. Michael Morrissey and County Commissioner George McDonald who are all up for re-election this year and Patricia Toland candidate for state representative.

But the one who seemed to cause the most interest was School Committee Vice Chairwoman Mary Collins.

COLLINS

She was circulating papers for County Commissioner right along with McDonald.

There's speculation that McDonald may be in line for a county appointment and that Collins has taken out the papers just in case it happens before this fall's election.

JIMMY JAY, owner of Balloons & Stuff in Wollaston, has had a lot to smile about lately. His oldies show, The Time Tunnel, on WILD, 1090 AM, was rated by Arbitron as number one for the winter in its Saturday morning timeslot.

JAY

Jay, who uses the name Jay Michaels on radio, even outrated the popular Dave Maynard on WBZ. The Time Tunnel is on from 9 to 11 a.m.

Jay is also production manager at the station and does commercials.

Then Jay received in the mail a black, Michael Jackson 1988 Tour jacket from Jackson himself.

"He's a nice guy, very private," says Jay of Jackson whom he met at the Grammy Awards two or three years ago. Since then, he's been invited to Jackson concerts in New York and Hartford, and to a private party in New York.

Jay, whose real name is Jim Julian, also has added a new character to deliver balloons for Balloons & Stuff, a California Raisin.

"It's going to be great," said Jay, a Quincy native. "We're going to have a music pack with the costume playing 'Heard It Through The Grapevine.'"

McCauley Names 3 To MWRA Advisory Board

Mayor Francis McCauley has appointed three Quincy representatives and an alternate to a nine-member advisory task force to the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

The local members are Ward 2 City Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro, Peter Kolson, president, Adams Shore Community Association; and Robert Mood, president, Ward 2 Civic Association.

Michael Wheelwright, principal planner for the city, was appointed an alternate.

According to MWRA executive director Paul Levy, the task force, which will also include representatives from Braintree and Weymouth, will discuss issues concerning the authority's use of the yard.

"We expect there to be questions about trucking and staging operations and interim sludge facilities as well as future development issues," Levy stated.

"Since it is likely that the entire parcel will not be needed, and that areas needed now will not always be needed, we are already looking toward the future development of the area.

"In order to do this effectively, and to address concerns as they arise about our projects at the yard, we need to have consistent input from those towns which will be most affected by our activities in that area," Levy said.

No meeting date has yet been set, but Levy said he hopes the task force will be wiling to meet regularly with MWRA staff to comment on current problems and to give input on the future.

"Members of our planning and development staff as well as those involved with the staging operations for the Deer Island construction and those involved with the interim sludge processing facilities will provide current information and carry comments and proposals from the task force members back to the drawing boards," he said.

"The task force will give us an opportunity to know what they are thinking and doing," said McCauley.

Toland Urges Cuts In Gateway Cities Funding Be Restored

City Council president Patricia M. Toland has written to Gov. Michael Dukakis and local legislators to help restore cuts in Gateway Cities funding which is before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Toland urged the governor as well as Sen. Paul Harold, Rep. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Robert Cerasoli to rally support of their fellow legislators from the 26 gateway communities.

"A large part of Quincy's first grant was used to fund a community profile and a needs assessment of our new arrivals," stated Toland.

"It was an important first step ensuring that we would meet present needs and planm for the future in an efficient and cost effective way.

"With a trilingual ombudsman at the Kennedy Health Center, oversubscribed English classes ongoing, a police department interpreter, and a newly initiated program at the Manet Health Center to plan for health care needs of our Asian population, we have made a good beginning towards the goal of integrating the newcomers into our community," she said.

"Doing a good job at this point will shorten the time when special programs are needed. An abrupt cut in funding will jeopardize present programs and make it unlikely that needs which we have documented will be met.

"The state should not allow money spent for data gathering and planning to be wasted. If these cuts are allowed to stand, we are faced with a situation inaccurately described by an assistant to Administration and Finance Secretary Frank Keefe as just a matter of coordinating local resources to meet a need.

"We do not have the local resources to meet many of these needs and do not have local money to develop those resources.

"A second year of full funding represents only a minimum commitment by the state.

"The need for assistance to communities struggling with an influx of refugee families and the value to all citizens of assisting these new arrivals to full participation as citizens was well articulated by Senate Ways and Means when it sponsored the original legislation.

"The state should not abandon this project before it has had a chance to prove its value," said Toland.

island licenses from the board.

"That will allow for neighborhood input into such things as hours of operation, lighting and any of the issues neighbors might be concerned with," he said.

Stations with self service would also have to display signs indicating that they pump gas for the handicapped.

Cheney said he reached his compromise proposal after a number of meetings with gas station owners, representatives of the petroleum industry and others.

"I feel confident that after discussions with many people and input from the city this measure will benefit the people of the city of Quincy," said Cheney.

"I think this represents an excellent compromise."

Referendum Vote Favors Mass Transportation

April 21-27
1961
27 Years Ago

About 5 percent of the registered voters turned out to case ballots, 1,668 to 704, in favor of mass transportation, even if it meant a tax rate increase; and 1,414 to 185 in favor of Budd railroad cars over rapid transit.

The Quincy Taxpayers Association, supports of rapid transit, withdrew its objections to a plan to subsidize railroad service to Boston by floating three bond issues totalling $12 million.

Meanwhile, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa blamed the state for the South Shore's transportation problems by building too many superhighways. He said the state should assume the cost of solving those problems.

"I am opposed to the various transportation plans," he said, "because Quincy and other cities and towns involved will have to guarantee the millions of dollars to install the new system and to guarantee any deficit.

"Such legislation would place a mortgage on our residential and business property for the next 40 years."

Stuffed Artichokes

A Labor Of Love

Well, I'm finally getting over the jet-lag from our second trip to Germany (our daughter Sue had her second child). And this is what I cooked on our third day home. Stuffed artichokes, my daughter Nancy's favorite! I'll admit they are a little work to prepare, but if you really enjoy them, then it's a labor of love. Sometimes, if they are large, two persons can share one. They are not very filling, but with the stuffing, they're quite a delicacy.

STUFFED ARTICHOKES

2-4 artichokes
depending on the size of your family
2 cups of bread crumbs (seasoned or plain) if plain, season as you wish
1 Tbsp of grated cheese
3 Tbsps tomato sauce
enough water to make the stuffing stick together

The first thing you have to do is to trim the artichokes, by first cutting off the stems, then cutting the edges of all the leaves (they are very prickly). Next, boil the artichokes for about 30 minutes with a little salt in the water. Cool and set aside. In a bowl, add the bread crumbs and all the rest of the ingredients. Mix until blended. When the artichokes are cool, gently open them and place stuffing in each row of leaves, or just place the stuffing on the top of the artichokes pressing down so it won't come out during the final stages of cooking. Place in a baking pan (with about a cup of water on the bottom) side by side, cover and bake in a 325 degree oven for about 30 more minutes. Leaves will be tender.

Armed Robbery

Is Your Life Worth More Than Your Money?

That sounds like a foolish question, doesn't it? Sadly enough, persons will take such risks. Some turn out to be losers. Robbery has become a more common offense in recent years. Criminals are bolder and their use of deadly weapons has increased. What would you do if you were the victim of a hold up?

If you are held up:

Remain calm. Robbers usually are excited and may be provoked easily or might be under the influence of drugs.

- Act natural. Do as you are told; don't move too fast or deliberately hesitate.
- Avoid defending yourself with a firearm when you are already facing a weapon. The odds would be against you.
- Take a good look at the suspects. Notice any details which will aid you to describe them and their mannerisms. When trying to determine age, height, weight, and appearance make comparisons between them and yourself or people you know.
- Many times suspects can be identified by comments made or by the sound of their voices. Listen. Is it high pitched or low? Does he have an accent or drawl? What words did he use?
- Observe any particular type of jewelry the suspect may be wearing. (Watch, ring, chains.)
- Watch to see whether they touch anything so you can preserve it for evidence.
- Observe the direction in which suspects leave. Obtain a description of any vehicles used and write down the license plate numbers. Save this evidence for the police.

After the robbers leave:

- Notify the police immediately. Tell them you have been robbed and give them the following information:

Location of robbery. Be certain to give the exact location and the office or room number when necessary.

Description of suspect.

License number and description of any vehicle used and any occupants of that vehicle.

Direction taken.

Do not touch anything yourself. Lock the doors until the police arrive. Prevent anyone from going into any area where the robbers may have been.

- If you are in a business setting direct other employees not to discuss the crime among each other until they have been interviewed by police.

When the police arrive:

- Answer their questions and tell them only what you know. If an estimate is necessary to answer a question, tell the police that you are estimating.
- Do not exagerate your experience or your description of what was stolen.
- Cooperate with detectives assigned to the case by:

Making yourself available for interview.

Not being reluctant to identify the right suspects.

Testifying in court when called upon to do so.

While this cooperation might not always result in recovery of your losses, you might be able to prevent other persons from becoming victims. Wouldn't you expect someone else to do the same for you?

John McDuff Jr. Candidate For State Representative

John H. McDuff, Jr., announced his candidacy for state representative in the Third Norfolk District Tuesday night at a meeting of the Republican City Committee at Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

McDuff, who lives at 216 South St., Quincy, has been central processing manager at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston, for 25 years.

"On this date, April 19, in the year 1775, a small but dedicated group of patriots gathered in Concord and in Lexington, and fired what we have come to know as the shot heard round the world," said McDuff in his announcement.

"(It was) a shot fired against a tyrannical and repressive government which overburdened the people with taxation while at the same time it ignored their wishes and interests.

"Thus it seems most fitting that we should meet here tonight on April 19, 1988, 213 years later to fire another shot, one of many I believe will be fired across Massachusetts this year and in the years ahead.

"(That is) against another tyrant, the entrenched Democratic party, which oppresses the people of this Commonwealth to an extent that George the Third could never have envisioned. A Democratic party which has accelerated the phrase "creeping socialism" into a full gallop.

"(It is) a Democratic party which has burdened the people with authorities, commissions and regulatory agencies which make the British Parliament seem like libertarians by comparison.

"(It is) a Democratic Party which in its socialistic gallop has saddled our citizens with taxation beyond belief.

"The shot we fire tonight then, will be but the first in the salvo needed to bring this tyrant under control.

"Some suggest that the giant is too strong to be topped - that we are outmanned and outgunned - but that didn't stop our forefathers over two centuries ago, and it won't stop us now.

"As surely as David felled Goliath, I believe that this colossus of over-taxation and over-regulation, of patronage, cronyism, waste and inefficiency, of wheeling and dealing, can be brought down if we have the courage and the will to challenge him.

"Because we here tonight are the heirs of the freedoms fought for and won over two centuries ago - the sons and daughters of those patriots who lit the lamp of freedom in the Old North Church and shed their blood at Bunker Hill that this nation might live in liberty.

"It is our duty to attempt to restore honest, efficient, limited government to a state which seems to have lost its way.

"...After hearing what the Republican Party stands for, and after seeing what years of Democratic rule have done to Massachusetts, I feel that we can do better.

"I feel that we must do better.

"But I face the reality that we are a minority party, and have been for most of my adult life.

"To attain majority status means each of us must work harder, be more creative, more daring and more innovative.

"We have to reach for the stars, and we have to rid ourselves of the parliamentary game playing, wasteful spending, burdensome taxation and political corruption that have been a way of life in Massachusetts for so long.

"To me, our role, whether in majority or minority status, is not just to legislate, but to lead.

"It is to act, but it is also to think and to learn. It is to stay in touch with the people of Quincy and Weymouth, indeed with people from Cape Cod to the Berkshires, to see what they see, feel what they feel.

"It is to experience change and to master it. We must respond to the anxieties, hopes and fears of the people, not by expanding old and costly programs and creating new and even more costly ones, but by creative thinking and planning, cutting the waste and extravagance out of our government, and the corruption it fosters.

"And also by reminding our citizens that government is not meant to be our parent and guardian from the cradle to the grave, and that to follow the socialist trend toward bigger, costlier and more intrusive government can only lead to a future plagued by financial ruin and the eventual destruction of liberty in America as we know it."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

It's surprising, but legal spokesmen confirm that millions of married Americans have no will; that most single Americans have none.

Married couples and single men and women should make wills ... to avoid inequities, complications and injustices, which occur daily in the United States.

Consider the case of a married couple killed in an automobile accident. The husband, who had a will, was killed instantly. His wife, who lived a few hours after the accident, did not have a will. In many states if the wife survives a few hours longer than her husband, she has usually automatically inherited his assets. Not having a will, her estate is then unnecessarily tied up. If there are minor children, they come under guardianship laws ... involving complicated court orders, etc.

Single men and women also need wills. At death their assets go to their parents, then blood relatives, in most states. But there are complications, delays and expenses even if this order of benefits is clear and accepted. A will eliminates such problems, and often taxes and expenses.

Fenno House To Mark 15th Anniversary Sunday

The 15th anniversary of the dedication of Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., will be celebrated as a 10 a.m. service Sunday, April 24, at Wollaston Lutheran Church, 550 Hancock St., its sponsor.

Fenno House is a federally-funded, 154 apartment housing for the elderly.

Forty-eight of the original residents still live at Fenno House, and there has never been a vacancy for more than a few days.

Preacher in the anniversary service is the Rev. William A. Scar of Framingham. The Rev. Dr. Adolph H. Wismar, Jr., pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church and manager of Fenno House, will preside.

Lessons will be read by the Rev. Frank J. Bauer, pastor emeritus of Wollaston Lutheran Church and executive director of Wollaston Lutheran Church Apartments, the owner and operator of Fenno House, by the church's president, Frederick J. Cashman of Quincy, and the apartments' chairman of the board, J. Bradford Hutchinson of Braintree.

REV. WILLIAM A. SCAR

An anniversary dinner will follow the service in the Common Room of Fenno House. Invited guests include present and former members of the board of directors, Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley, Ward 5 Councillor Charles J. Phelan, Jr. and former Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Jr.

In 1967, Hannon, as Ward 5 Councillor, suggested to Pastor Bauer that the church's abutting property no longer be the site for a Christian Day School, but be used to build housing for the elderly. In 1973, as mayor, he participated in the dedication ceremonies.

The Rev. Mr. Scar is vice president of the Lutheran Service Association of New England with the management oversight of four nursing homes in Massachusetts and Connecticut, the immediate past president of the Association of Massachusetts Homes for the Aging, and a fellow in the American College of Health Care Administrators. He, too, participated in the dedication ceremonies for Fenno House 15 years ago.

Wollaston Lutheran Church is also sponsor of Town Brook House on Brackett St., a 151 apartment housing for the elderly and the handicapped owned and operated by Wollaston Lutheran Church Apartments and dedicated in 1980.

'Glorious The Earth' Sermon Topic At United First Parish

Norman Corey, music director, will play organ works by Couperin, Langlais, and Dupre. Matt Malloy will be host at the social hour in the Parish Hall following the service.

Helen Burgess will lead the second of three workshops on meditation Monday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the church.

From its beginning in 1636, Unitarian since 1750, and merging with the Wollaston Unitarian Society in 1958, historic First Parish continues today as a leader in liberal religious thought and practice.

The church conducts a church school under the direction of Brenda Chin, and child care is provided. Visitors are welcome and are invited to attend the social hour following the service.

PSSB Walkathon Sunday

Nearly 700 walkers are expected to participate in the 14th annual Walk-For-PSSB walkathon Sunday starting at 12:30 p.m. at One Monarch Dr., North Quincy.

This year's fundraising goal is $40,000, which, if met, would be a record for the agency.

Last year a record $38,000 was raised.

Registration begins at 12:30 p.m. at One Monarch Dr. (off Newport Ave. at the State Street South complex) and the walk begins at 1 p.m.

For more information, call the PSSB at 773-6203.

Funded in part by local Protestant churches, the PSSB serves community residents of all denominations.

Roofing: Function vs. aesthetics

Even though your old roof may still be watertight, take a close look at it. Have the shingles started to curl, disintegrate, crack, rot, blow off or even harbor fungus?

The fact is that most roofing materials, especially in the Sunbelt, begin to detract from the home's appearance within just a few years of installation.

This deterioration is impossible to avoid with materials such as asphalt, fiber glass, tile and wood. These materials begin to deteriorate the moment that they are installed, taking your roof through a process of becoming unattractive and, eventually, non-functional as well.

For hundreds of years, however, metal has been used on roofs where long life and function are of prime importance. Rustic Shingle aluminum roofing combines the aesthetics of wood shake-shingles with the long-recognized practicality of metal roofing.

Rustic Shingle was engineered in 1959 and has such a successful track record that its manufacturer backs it with a 40-year limited warranty. Coated with Glidden's Ultralast finish, Rustic Shingle achieves the peak of roofing performance.

Rustic Shingle is also energy-efficient. Because aluminum reflects radiant heat, homes are kept naturally cooler in summer and warmer in winter. This makes it particularly popular in the Sunbelt, where it reduces cooling loads by 34 percent and more.

In addition, Rustic Shingle carries a Class A U.L. fire rating. This product's light weight allows it to be installed easily over most existing roofs.

Rather than being a temporary fix, Rustic Shingle is a permanent investment that will protect, beautify and distinguish your home. When distinguish your home. When applied by a qualified professional, Rustic Shingle will provide unmatched home security and long-term economy.

For free information on Rustic Shingle, write to Dept. M-13, Classic Products, Inc., P.O. Box 701, Piqua, OH 45356.

ON THE WALL OR IN THE HAND. Chronotherm III Fuel Saver thermostats by Honeywell can be programmed in four simple steps.

Programmable thermostats: Smart choice for summer indoor comfort

Switch to a "smart" programmable thermostat to ensure a cool home for your family this summer.

You'll wake up comfortable on hot summer mornings and step into a cool home after sizzling sultry days. While you're away from home or asleep, you can save energy because the temperature can be set up to an energy saving mode.

Although the concept of set back heating is widely used, set up on cooling is used very infrequently. Setting the thermostat up to 4° – moving the indoor temperature closer to the outdoor temperature – will result in smaller heat gain and lower cooling cost.

In most cities, about 10 percent of cooling energy can be saved by daytime cooling set up.

Now, programmable thermostats are simple to operate. The new line of Honeywell Chronotherm III Fuel Saver thermostats was human factor engineered, making them the easiest to program thermostats available.

In fact, they operate off a factory set program or can be re-programmed in four simple steps to suit your schedule. The convenient touch panel allows you to set a different schedule for weekdays, Saturday and Sunday or each day of the week. You may also program up to four different time periods and four different temperatures in each schedule.

Once programmed, these "smart" thermostats calculate when the air conditioning will go on to have the house at the desired temperature by the time you wake up or come home.

Typically, a unit pays for itself in one year. Models are available for conventional and electric heating and cooling systems, heat pumps and multi-stage systems.

Innovative Way To Protect Your Hands

Summer means gardening, housecleaning and car repairs, but sometimes cleaning up afterwards can take longer than your chores.

Try a product like Elmer's invisible Glove, a protective cream for hands and nails, that shields them from dirt, grease, grime, paint and stain.

Because the product is non-greasy, it provides an anti-slip grip. Use it before starting artwork, construction, painting, staining or any messy job; grime will wash away easily with just soap and water. It's also non-allergenic and non-toxic.

Exercise the aluminum siding option

Paint, repaint, paint, repaint. The "exterior decorating" of your home can become an expensive and tiresome cycle.

According to many paint manufacturers and contractors, homes should be repainted approximately every three years to maintain their appearance.

In addition, touch-ups may be needed for blistered or peeled paint, and damaged or rotted wood should be replaced.

Homeowners who have had it with the time and cost of maintaining homes with wood or hardboard siding are turning to re-siding materials such as aluminum and vinyl which provide low maintenance and aesthetic appeal.

The one-time cost of aluminum siding, amortized over just a few years, when compared to painting every few years, is a real bonus.

To calculate savings according to the American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA), multiply what it costs to paint your house by six. Assuming you paint your house every three years, the resulting figure would cover 18 years of painting.

Factor in the costs of repairs and inflation, and the savings of re-siding rather than repainting by even more obviously appear.

Added savings can be realized by upgrading the wall insulation when new siding is installed. Besides applying insulating sheathing, the homeowner also should consider one of the insulated aluminum siding brands on the market.

Find out more about the financial benefits of aluminum siding. Also, savings also may be available. Finding, interviewing and supervising painting contractors every three years is a task most homeowners dread," urges William Anton, AAMA executive director. "With siding, it's applied once and you don't have to worry about it again."

Although manufacturers of many types of siding claim that theirs is "low maintenance and worry free," Anton notes that only aluminum siding has a published performance standard that assures homeowners that it will stand up to weathering and many types of abuse.

For a free brochure about aluminum siding, write to AAMA, 2700 River Rd., Dept. RSPR, Des Plaines, IL 60018.

WINDOW GUIDE OFFERS IMPORTANT FACTS

If the great multitude of window brands, framing materials and styles overwhelm you, take heart.

A new 36-page booklet, published as a public service by the American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA), provides simple, yet comprehensive information to help consumers select, install and maintain their windows.

The AAMA label on a window or patio door indicates the product has been tested to meet industry standards for structural strength, weatherability and ability to resist water and air leakage.

Some products also bear a "thermal tested" label that shows their thermal performance rating and their ability to resist condensation.

The booklet describes how to select the proper window style for your home and the ways in which windows can be used to save energy. It also compares the different types of frame materials: aluminum, vinyl and wood. Sliding glass doors, and insulating storm windows and doors are also covered in detail.

Keep cool, and save cold cash!

What are some basic rules to follow for keeping cool at minimum cost? Is central air conditioning more energy-efficient than using window units?

Should I turn my thermostat up when I leave for work in the morning? What are the advantages of buying a system with a high seasonal energy efficiency ratio (SEER)?

These are among 47 questions answered for consumers in the new free pamphlet, "How To Keep Your Cool and Save Cold Cash."

Published by the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute – the trade association representing manufacturers of central air conditioning and heat pump systems – the 24-panel pamphlet updates and combines questions and answers from the first two "Keep Cool" pamphlets in ARI's popular series of free consumer information pamphlets.

Topics discussed include: Typical savings from higher seasonal energy efficiency ratios; heat pump cooling and heating compared to other systems; how often to change air filters; augmenting central systems with window units or ceiling fans; humidification considerations; replacing systems before they wear out; cleaning registers and ducts; heat pump supplemental heat; finding out more about radon and indoor air quality; and how to get more free information about indoor climate control.

For a free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed business envelope to the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI), Dept. U-77, P.O. Box 37700, Washington, DC 20013.

6 Unearned Runs Downfall For North

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy baseball team, which had gotten off to a promising start, fell apart in the field Monday, handing Peabody six unearned runs and losing, 8-4, to drop its record to 2-4.

Leo Donovan's young North team will host Somerville Friday at 10:30 at Adams Field, will play at Brookline Monday at 4 in the Suburban League opener and will be home to Brockton next Wednesday at 4 at Adams.

The Raiders have been getting good pitching all season and sophomore Jeff Calvert, making his first start, did well for five innings, giving up seven runs but only two earned runs. Tony Anderlionis finished up giving up one unearned run.

Jim Glynn had a double and a single. Anderlionis two singles, Eric DeBoer two singles and Calvert and Bill Wysocki a single each.

"We are very young with only two seniors," said Donovan. "We have received excellent pitching and are hitting well, but errors have hurt us. The kids are trying real hard and I think we will do all right the rest of the way."

North lost to Medford, 5-2, last Friday as DeBoer pitched a complete game but was victimized by three unearned runs.

Wysocki and Anderlionis scored on Tim Baker's two-run single in the first, giving North a 2-1 lead but Medford tied it in the sixth and won it in the seventh.

In its previous game North lost to Malden, rated number one in eastern Mass., 7-4, on a day not meant for baseball. The Raiders hit the ball hard but failed to take advantage of their chances.

"It was a lousy day for baseball," said Donovan. "It must have been 30 degrees. It was not baseball weather. Both teams hit the ball well despite the cold.

"We were getting our bats on the ball and their pitcher was not fooling us much. We hit well but there were a couple of innings when we should have scored but didn't."

Malden started off with three runs and North scored one in its half when Wysocki drove in Anderlionis. North tied it in the third but Malden went ahead, 7-3, with single runs in the fifth and sixth and added two in the top of the seventh. The Raiders added a run in the bottom half of the seventh.

Anderlionis was 2-for-4 and Glynn and Calvert also had hits.

Bill MacDougall was the losing pitcher, going all the way in the chilly weather.

Earlier MacDougall's brother, sophomore Kevin, pitched a one-hitter as North blanked Everett, 2-0.

Everett's only hit was a fourth inning single as MacDougall struck out two and also walked two.

Jeff Calvert drove in the only runs when he singled home Glynn, who had singled and Anderlionis, who had reached on an error, in the first. The Raiders had only three hits.

Quincy Gets Off To Strong Start

The Presidents, rained out of their scheduled game at Medford Monday, will play at Revere Friday morning at 10:30, will host Newton North in their Suburban League opener Monday at 4 at Adams Field and will be at Waltham next Wednesday at 4.

After sweeping Weymouth North and South, Bob Sylvia's Quincy team lost to Arlington, 5-1, for the only loss.

Wayne Chambers started for the Presidents and went five innings. Tony Taylor went an inning and Steve McInnis finished up.

Quincy rebounded to top Everett, 13-6, with Chambers going 4-for-4 with two doubles, two RBI and two runs scored. Sean Thompson hit a three-run homer, Dan Biagini went 3-for-4 and pitcher Joe Taylor had two hits.

Taylor survived a shaky start and finished strong, allowing only four hits and striking out five in 6 2/3 innings. Dave Adams finished up.

The Presidents then upset Malden, rated number one in Eastern Mass. at the time, 9-6.

Jimmy Dennis won his second in a row, giving up five hits and two walks and striking out four. A Malden home run and two unearned runs put him in early trouble, but he came back to pitch masterfully the rest of the way.

Eddie Flavin led the attack with two doubles and four RBI, Dennis had three hits, including two doubles and two RBI, and Thompson doubled home a run.

• Volleyball

North Boys 2-2

The success of last fall's North Quincy girls' volleyball team--an undefeated season and state championship--has spurred interest in boys' volleyball and this year, in only their second season, coach John Perkins' Raiders are a competitive team with a 2-2 record.

The North boys jumped right into varsity action last year without a "club" team and took their bumps (3-15), but have benefited from the tougher competition.

Perkins ran volleyball as an intramural sport until the school decided to have a varsity team two years ago. He had extensive coaching experience but little formal volleyball training, so he read up on the sport and received advice from girls' coach Jim Rendle.

"The skill level of the girls is far superior," said Perkins. "We are back to basics, but are developing quickly. We are about three weeks ahead of where we were last year."

The players include Sean Darcy, a football player; Richard Connelly from the hockey team; basketball player Kipp Caldwell, wrestler Brian Mohser, James Lee and freshman Hiep Ngo.

"I would have run spring track, but I got involved in this, mainly because of my girlfriend," said Darcy.

His girlfriend, incidentally, is Holly Rendle, daughter of the coach and one of North's premier players.

The North boys will host Weymouth North Monday and will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday. Both matches are at 4 p.m.

The Quincy Recreation Department all-city basketball championship came down to the final 30 seconds before Beechwood Knoll emerged as the 1988 champion. The game with Montclair was tied at 42-42 with less than 30 seconds to go as Beechwood scored the last four points to win 46-42.

Both Mark Kelliher and Mike McDonald had two each in the first, second and third periods. Joe Welby had his two in the fourth quarter.

Sean Donovan had six points in the second half by canning two three-pointers. Montclair coach Jerry Pratt got strong defensive efforts from Vin Anderlionis and George White.

Montclair led at half time 19-17 and both teams were tied at 30 at the ¾ mark.

The two teams in the championship game were the last two teams in an eight-team single elimination tournament. All participants are from supervised recreation programs in all neighborhoods of the city. The tournament concludes the Quincy Recreation Department 23-week winter gym program.

At the conclusion of the championship game Thomas Mullaney, Park and Recreation Board Commissioner, joined with Recreation Director Barry J. Welch in presenting certificates of achievement to the finalist's Montclair team. They are Tim Ross, Mike McManus, Sean Donovan, Liam Higgins, Vin Anderlionis, George Wirtz, Mike MacDougall, Jeff Pollard, Keith Lentini, Andy Kenney and Coach Jerry Pratt, and assistant coach Gerry Pratt, Jr.

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

Unique hands-free design offers convenience, answers safety concern for cellular phone users

Cellular car telephones can solve many business problems, and their use is on the upswing. In 1986, there were over 680,000 units in use, and U.S. Industrial Output estimates this number will rise to 1.5 million by 1990.

However, statistics indicate using a car phone's handset may increase the danger of traffic accidents.

As insurance companies examine their rates and states review their laws, many drivers are upgrading their car phones by switching to optional hands-free cellular microphones.

The safety and convenience of hands-free cellular phones are proven, however, most models mount on the sun visor and suffer from such poor sound that the driver risks being misunderstood.

To eliminate this problem, Shure has introduced the new ClearVoice™ System, the only hands-free microphone to offer crisp, clear sound while actively promoting safe driving.

Revolutionary hands-free design

This unique system includes an all-new, lightweight microphone design that mounts comfortably on the driver's shoulder harness, plus a dual low-noise amplifier that is compatible with virtually all popular hands-free cellular phones.

Most hands-free microphones pick up all sorts of surrounding noise from the car engine, accessories and passing traffic. In addition, they are mounted too far from the driver.

The result is a "shock wave" of noise that blasts the listener, and a "bottom-of-a-barrel" sound that is hard to understand.

Now these problems have been solved through a combination of custom electronics and intelligent microphone positioning.

The microphone has a highly directional pickup pattern to reject unwanted noise, and a specially tailored frequency response to enhance the human voice.

Audio intelligibility is further improved by positioning the microphone on the shoulder harness, very close to the sound source.

According to Lee Habich, Shure's manager of marketing communications, "ClearVoice is the optimum hands-free microphone system for cellular phones. The driver can communicate clearly, with no fear of being misunderstood. The system is easy to install, and was designed with safe driving in mind."

The best of both worlds

Stressing the safety benefits of the new product, Habich continued, "By integrating the microphone onto the shoulder harness, ClearVoice creates an extra benefit for the user. Not only are both hands kept free for driving, but the driver is also reminded to buckle up for safety.

"Users of the Shure ClearVoice get more than just a great sounding car phone—we like to think they'll drive more safely, too!"

This timely new product is available through most cellular car phone dealers.

MAKING BUSINESS CALLS by cellular car phone is safer and more convenient with the Shure ClearVoice™ Microphone System. The ClearVoice Microphone mounts easily on the driver's shoulder harness, providing great sound while leaving both hands free for driving.

Be Informed: Know The Facts About Wheel Alignment

Is your car ready for "front end alignment" service? Don't be surprised to find out it needs rear wheel alignment too says Car Care Council. If you own a front wheel drive car. These occasionally require adjustments to the rear wheels as well as to the front in order to gain perfect alignment.

Wheel alignment, which means the angular relationships between the front and rear suspensions, steering components, wheels and frame is essential to proper handling of the vehicle. The Council answers a few of the more commonly asked questions about this critical aspect of vehicle maintenance.

What causes wheels to go out of alignment? The most common reasons are worn steering and suspension parts or impact with curbs, chuckholes or other obstructions.

How can you be aware of a misalignment condition? Your first tip-offs are uneven tire wear and or poor handling. An experienced technician can tell which aspects of alignment are misadjusted merely by looking at the tread wear pattern of the tires.

He also can tell by driving the car whether it pulls to one side or the other, if it fails to return properly to a straight-ahead position after a turn, or if it shakes or vibrates.

How long should wheels stay in alignment? Usually a year or more, says the Council, if the car has good suspension components and if it has not been subjected to heavy impacts or accident damage.

What are the benefits of keeping wheels aligned? The most obvious advantages are longer tire wear and better steering. But safer driving and better fuel economy are important too. A car with misaligned wheels has a higher rolling resistance, resulting in more work for the engine to keep the car in motion.

Will wheel alignment correct most steering and handling problems? Most, but not all. A car cannot be aligned properly when parts are worn. Also, tires out of balance can cause shaking, which will be exaggerated when shock absorbers are weak.

Even when everything is perfectly aligned, concludes the Council, a car may steer or handle erratically due to imperfect or unevenly worn tires.

Benefits Of Remanufactured And Retreaded Tires

An increasing number of economy-minded motorists are turning to remanufactured and retreaded tires as a sensible alternative to the high cost of new tires.

Thanks to new technology, remanufactured and retreaded tires look and perform the same as new tires at a far lower cost, without sacrificing any of the safety and handling features of new tires.

Remanufactured and retreaded tires are now available for campers and recreational vehicles, as well as 4x4s and other light trucks. High performance tires, mud and snow, and all-season designs are now available on steel belted radial casings.

Remanufactured and retreaded tires are used on school buses, taxis, police and emergency vehicles, and by major airlines.

Scarborough Players At 1000 Southern Artery

Under a grant recently awarded by the Quincy Arts Lottery Council, the Scarborough Chamber Players will present a full-length concert of music for flute and guitar at 1000 Southern Artery Senior Citizen Housing in Quincy on Friday, April 22 at 7 p.m. in the South Wing auditorium.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Led by artistic director, Virginia Sindelar, the Quincy-based ensemble will present works ranging from Manuel de Falla's Spanish pictorial, Suite Popular Espagnole, to local composer David Leisner's lilting Dances in the Madhouse.

This concert comes exactly one week prior to the Scarborough Chamber Players' international debut. On April 29, Scarborough will travel to Korea for a repeat performance of this same concert at the Seoul Arts Center.

While in Seoul, Scarborough will continue to demonstrate its commitment to education, as it has done throughout Massachusetts, with a series of master classes in the surrounding Korean schools. Director Sindelar hopes to have an opportunity to discuss with Korean educators their philosophy of music and its place in Korean society and to bring back and share with local musicians and educators what she has learned.

Scarborough's spring season will be a busy one. Upon returning from Seoul, the group looks forward to a concert collaboration with the Cantabile Trio at the annual Rockport Chamber Music Festival to be held in June. Scarborough will appear for the first time in the Merrimack Valley region in a concert entitled "Music of Spain" to be held on June 10 at the historic Methuen Memorial Music Hall.

As Scarborough concludes its sixth season, it is proud to have added two newly-commissioned works to its repertoire - one by composer-guitarist David Leisner and a multi-media composition by composer David Alpher and visual artist Stacey Speigel. The '87-'88 season included Scarborough's first gala benefit concert and ball, a collaborative concert with the Portland String Quartet, and the broadcast of a series of television programs produced by Sindelar and American Cablesystems of Cambridge. Scarborough also received substantial grant gifts from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and several local arts lottery councils.

MAX AND BOBBY

(National Geographic World Magazine)

Young Quincy Cartoonist In National Magazine

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Bobby Tobin, 12, of Quincy, who received national attention last March when he won the "U.S. Acres" Create a Character Contest, is featured in the April issue of National Geographic World Magazine.

A story about Bobby, who lives at 158 Phipps St., and a picture of him and his cartoon creation appear in the "Kids Did It" section of the children's educational magazine, published by the National Geographic Society, in Washington, D.C.

Young Bobby entered his cartoon character, a fat bird named Max who rides a skateboard and eats gourmet food, in a contest held to create a new character for Jim Davis' comic strip "U.S. Acres." Davis, who created Garfield the Cat, chose Bobby's idea from more than 15,000 entries.

Students from more than 1,000 schools competed.

For winning the contest, Bobby received a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond, and

New Inspector Estimates:

$500,000 Illegal Building Each Year

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

There is an estimated half a million dollars worth of illegal construction in Quincy each year, and the city can't do much about it right now, according to Building Inspector Matt Mulvey.

The reason is too much work and too few inspectors, said Mulvey, Quincy's building inspector since October.

"We need six more inspectors," said Mulvey, whose department currently has five inspectors in addition to himself.

In a city with so much development, that's not enough, he feels.

Mayor Francis McCauley has budgeted money for three more inspectors starting in July, according to Mulvey.

"In a year that's tight (budget-wise), his is one of the few departments where I added personnel," said McCauley.

"I felt it was almost mandatory to give him some more help."

And the mayor has left the door open for requests for more inspectors in the next fiscal budget if their positions can be justified, Mulvey said.

But in the meantime, there is frustration in the department, he said.

"It bothers us down at the office," said Mulvey.

The illegal construction ranges from porches and decks on residential buildings, to commercial construction and signs and zoning violations, according to Mulvey.

Field inspectors see the illegal construction without posted building permits or other violations, but because of their already heavy workloads, there is often only time to crack down on flagrant offenders.

Many of his inspectors put in their own time, without being paid, to keep up with the workload, Mulvey said.

About 70 percent of the illegal construction is residential, and 30 percent is commercial, according to Mulvey.

Ninety percent of the offenders are ignorant of the rules and regulations, he said.

"Only about 10 percent are trying to get away with something," Mulvey said.

"A lot of homeowners don't know about the requirements," he said.

The problem is, according to Mulvey, if a homeowner puts on a deck without a permit and doesn't do it properly, if someone falls

Fire Victim Identified As Concord Man

Police have identified the body of a man burned in a brush fire behind Roxie's Market, Quincy Center, last week as Paul Cosgrove, 37, of Concord.

Cosgrove would have been 38 May 30. His family has been notified, police said.

Firefighters discovered his body while they were extinguishing a brush fire.

Lt. John McDonough said that earlier in the day, a homeless man had approached police and said there was a body behind the supermarket.

However, a patrolman failed to find anything in the thick grass, he said.

McDonough said the site had been a "hobo camp" for years.

Cause of death is under investigation.

Two men, apparently homeless, were able to flee the fire.

Chretien Wants Reduced Speed For T-Buses

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien has written to MBTA general manager James O'Leary requesting that "actions be taken to reduce the speeding of buses on streets in my ward."

"I am writing in regard to MBTA bus service as it relates to traffic conditions in my part of Quincy," said Chretien.

"Recently, I held public hearings on the subject of traffic safety in the area between Beale St. and West Squantum St. Numerous complaints were heard about traffic in general.

"However, you should be aware that several complaints were made about MBTA buses speeding excessively on the following streets: West Squantum, Wilson, Highland Ave. and Beale.

"The people I represent appreciate your bus service," Chretien said.

"They are also concerned about safety, especially the safety of children and senior citizens."

Chretien requested a prompt response.

Police Seek Suspect In Kidnapping-Attack Of 7-Year Old Girl

Police are still seeking a man wanted in the Easter Sunday kidnap and sexual assault of a seven-year-old girl in Quincy Point.

Norfolk County investigators released a sketch last week of the suspect described as a white male, between the ages of 20 and 30, with brown hair and a thin build, according to J. Michael McGorty, a spokesman for District Attorney William Delahunt.

The day of the attack, the suspect was reportedly wearing a white dress shirt, dirty gray shoes with ties, grayish pants, gray socks and a black belt with a silver buckle, McGorty said.

ARTIST'S SKETCH of a man wanted in the Easter Sunday kidnap and sexual assault of a 7-year-old Quincy Point Girl.

He may have been driving a small, brown compact car, possibly a two-door Toyota, investigators believe.

The girl was kidnapped April 3, as she was walking with her brother and a friend, according to authorities.

About two hours later, she was found in an industrial park on the Malden-Medford line.

The girl was hospitalized for several days, and then recuperated at home, said McGorty.

Anyone with information is asked to call the District Attorney's Office at 1-800-422-4335 or Lt. Neil MacDonald, Quincy Police Detective Bureau, at 479-1212, ext. 371.

Last Call On Tax Bills May 2

If you haven't paid your second half property tax bill yet, time is running out.

The bills are due no later than Monday, May 2, at 4:30 p.m., according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

"We are urging residents to pay their second half tax bills, or any unpaid municipal bills, so we can finish fiscal 1988 in as good condition as possible," McCauley said.

Penalty for missing the deadline is 14 percent annual interest retroactive 30 days, he said.

New Date To Be Set For Chevy's Hearing

By KRISTINE STRENGE

The city's License Board voted to continue to a later date, the hearing regarding Chevy's Belair Cafe, 79 Parkingway, Quincy Center, at the request of the establishment's attorney.

Atty. Morris M. Goldings, who is representing Chevy's, wrote a letter to City Clerk John Gillis, also chairman of the board, asking that "a new date be established because of the extreme shortness of notice in view of the complexity of the issues involved."

Last week the License Board asked Chevy's to show cause why its liquor license should not be revoked for allegedly over serving customers on three occasions.

The three incidents involved women being overserved on Nov. 30, 1987, four young Quincy men who were over-served and were later involved and killed in a car accident on Nov. 26, 1987; and a man was arrested on Dec. 4, 1987 for being intoxicated.

Goldings is also waiting the results of various investigative reports relating to the three incidents.

Recycling Committee Area Officials, Residents Meeting

The Quincy Recycling Committee was scheduled to meet yesterday (Wednesday) in the second floor conference room at new city hall.

The consultant, Alternative Resources, Inc., was scheduled to attend the meeting to begin work, according to committee chairman Larry Chretien.

The committee was also to begin working on a school-based educational program.

Plans were also to be made for a meeting of elected officials and concerned citizens from Braintree and Weymouth with the recycling committee and Quincy City Council, possibly Monday, May 2.

Denis Tardo Candidate For State Representative

Denis Tardo officially became a Republican candidate for State Representative in the Second Norfolk District Tuesday night at Freedom Park.

In his announcement, Tardo noted his dealings with the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

"I will tell them again, as I have told them before, they are not good neighbors," said Tardo. "The MWRA literally sank the shipbuilders' hopes of buying the shipyard and now they continue to squeeze the shipbuilders out of a contract that would return shipbuilding jobs to the City of Quincy.

"The MWRA is an agency of fraud and financial waste. Throwing parties, renting prime office space, buying lavish furnishings, buying luxury automobiles, renting parking spaces, creating consulting jobs, and awarding contracts that are under investigation of both the Inspector and Attorney Generals, while they tell us they need more money and our cost for services will quadruple.

"I say the MWRA must be stopped, and should answer to the people of the communities they serve. We must bring state government back to the people.

"To bring the government back to the people, it would help if we had a representative on Beacon Hill. Unfortunately, the Second Norfolk District has not had a voice in the General Court since January. A special election would have assured all the citizens of Quincy a voice on Beacon Hill. I have continually expressed the need of a special election.

"Very soon you will receive a retroactive bill for your 1987 auto insurance (that's right 1987 auto insurance). I hope you will question the credibility of anyone who said a special election was not necessary.

"And speaking of a voice on Beacon Hill, a very important question will be asked of the voters of this great commonwealth, in November. That question is, should the legislature keep the $11,000 pay raise they voted themselves? A pay raise that sailed through the legislature with an emergency preamble attached so it would take effect immediately.

"I stand before you today and say, as your representative in the General Court I would have voted against that pay raise. And, in November, as a citizen, I will vote against that pay raise.

"We must send to the State House a legislator who can stand and declare his independence from the majority party without fear of being called a member of the minority party, or attacked by any other discriminatory remark directed to cause retreat.

"I stand before you as the sole candidate who can individually and rationally make a decision. The one candidate who can cast a vote in the chambers of the State House and remain in tune with the wishes of the people of this community.

DENIS F. TARDO

"Some may say, just who is Denis Tardo and what has he done to help people, why should we vote for him?

"As the president of the Quincy Tenant Organization, I am dedicated to the issue of affordable housing. The days of talking about affordable housing have to end. It is now time to act. We need to create a housing court, that will assess accountability of landlords as well as tenants.

"We must pass legislation that will allow the sale of public housing and we must replenish that stock with new housing. We must regulate the development of multi-unit complexes and assure our communities of adequate public services.

"As a March of Dimes volunteer over the years, I progressed from knocking on doors to four consecutive terms as a member of the Executive Board of the Massachusetts Bay Chapter.

"While I was a member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 2013, I served as steward and as treasurer. I spoke solidly for the working man. Today I am employed as a maintenance foreman working nearly 18 years on Beacon Hill.

"So my friends, you and I know I am the only candidate that is willing to stand in leadership and speak on behalf of you and the community. I am the candidate involved with you in the community. I am the candidate listening to and addressing the needs of the community.

"Just about 19 years ago, as a senior at Don Bosco Tech, when I was asked by the yearbook committee to list my long term ambition I said, I wanted to be president under an assumed name. Today, however, I stand before you and ask you, to elect me your State Representative."

License Board Briefs

The city's License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall.

- Granted a request from Egan's Service Station (641-647 Adams St., Quincy) for three 10,000 gallon gas tanks and two 1,000 waste fuel gas tanks.
- Granted a request from Pneumatic Sale Corporation Association to conduct a yard sale May 22 in the parking lot on Holbrook Rd., West Quincy. Raindate for the event will be June 5.
- Granted a request from Paul Schofield for a common victualer license to re-open Sub 21, 1272 Sea St., Houghs Neck. City Clerk John Gillis also board chairman told board members that he and Ward 1 City Councillor Michael Cheney are in favor of Schofield receiving a license. Schofield, who is the owner of Houghs Neck Superette has run clean business for years, said Gillis.

McCauley Seeks Meeting With 43 Communities On Harbor Cleanup Charges

Mayor Francis McCauley said he hopes to host a meeting before the end of May with representatives of the 43 communities served by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority which are being charged for the cleanup of Boston Harbor and Quincy Bay.

"I hope to come up with a steering committee," said McCauley, who plans to take a leadership role in the effort.

"Then we can educate the legislature about the serious problem of funding the cleanup.

"It can't be handled by cities and towns under Proposition 2 ½."

McCauley noted that he has filed legislation asking the state to pay for part of the cleanup.

The mayor said that a list of mayors and chairmen of the boards of selectmen in the 43 communities is being compiled by David Colton, Deputy Commr. of Public Works.

The meeting could be held in the second floor conference room at Quincy City Hall or in a function hall, according to McCauley.

Paul Levy, MWRA executive director, will be invited to attend, he said.

"Hopefully we'll come out of it (the meeting) with some direction," said McCauley who noted that sewer charges have gone up 224 percent, almost $4 million, since 1985.

"We want to dramatize what the costs are," he said.

Cheney Proposes Archives For City's Old Records

The City Council's Finance Committee made no cuts Monday night in the proposed $109,272,573 municipal budget for fiscal 1989.

During the committee's first session, which lasted an hour and a half, the budgets of 18 departments were reviewed.

At the request of Ward 12 Councillor Michael Cheney, a $50,000 request from Treasurer-Collector Dana Childs for records retention was placed on hold.

Childs suggested that the department's records, which date back to the 1800s, be stored on microfilm.

Cheney proposed that the city begin archives, since other departments are having similar storage problems with old records which must be kept.

Councillors also questioned the decision to transfer Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom from the Planning Department to General Services.

Chairman Stephen McGrath said the committee will hold its second and final session before May 9.

Major budgets such as police and fire will be reviewed, McGrath said.

Urges Reconsideration Of Point-Sterling Merger

Editor, The Quincy Sun

If the Point-Sterling consolidation isn't enough for the people of Quincy to realize we are headed for trouble, I wonder what it would take for parents to realize what lies ahead could be trouble!

What if Central Middle School was now in line to have changes made? Changes that will affect "your" child? Would you be upset then? Or are the only people who are upset the parents of Quincy Point?

Well no matter where your child goes to school you'd better take notice as to what's going on. As it is now, "Central" is the school that is being discussed among our superintendent and our School Committee members. And the plans they have in mind are going to upset many parents. And I wonder how many of the new programs that are to be implemented at Sterling this September will actually happen? I see the Squantum School and Lincoln-Hancock School will also be adding "Day Care." What will these schools have to sacrifice in order to participate in such programs? So far with all new programs that have been proposed, if you look closely, you will see something is being taken away! And I can't help but wonder where else is the chairman of the board who is also Mayor? In my opinion this doesn't seem right! How do we know what our chairman proposes in accordance with the school budget is fact? Especially if he is the Mayor?

Doesn't anybody wonder what figures are actually existing? And how much money is coming into Quincy for these funded programs? And what if come September the Mayor decides to cut the school budget - what then? We have no guarantees.

Because I oppose strongly many of these needless changes I have contacted the "Mass. Board of Regents of Higher Education" in regards to the transportation for the children of Point going to Sterling. A call was placed to Dr. Ricci stating what was acceptable and unacceptable. I have also filed a complaint with the Atty. General's office, and sent out letters to Governor Dukakis, Secretary Bennett of Educational Affairs in Washington, and went as far as sending a letter to President Reagan.

I have received letters from them all, pointing out what we as the people of Quincy are able to do in situations as such. Also I have contacted the School Committee members in Rhode Island as well as the chairman of the board. This is where Dr. Ricci came from. With all this in mind I urge our School Committee to bring back on the agenda, for re-consideration, the consolidation - as they know this is a mistake.

Especially with the "new figures" released in the expansion in population. And I strongly urge all of Quincy to stand firm whether or not it is your school involved in changes, because if it isn't now it probably will be eventually. If this still isn't enough for you to see what will happen how about a statement from Dr. Ricci recently at a Point-Sterling combined P.T.O. meeting. I quote "I intend to make Sterling the No. 1 school in Quincy." Dr. Ricci even considered billboard advertisements stating this! If we don't all stand together as a city we will soon be fighting amongst ourselves! And, for our School Committee, what is more important to you, our children and their quality of education, or the raise you are waiting to see be approved?

Politics Is Politics

Politics is a fascinating – and crazy kind of world.

Always something to speculate about, guess about, wonder about, shake your head about, etc.

DUKAKIS

Like how many of us shook our heads when Michael Dukakis announced he would run for president. He had about as much chance of winning the Democratic nomination as Uncle Louie.

What he was really running for, some of the so-called political experts said, was the vice presidency.

HART

Gary Hart was going to waltz away with the nomination. But then Hart was thrown a curve or two which did him in and gave Dukakis the political opportunity of a lifetime.

It's just another illustration that anything can happen in politics -- and often does. Even though the speculation before it happens might seem far fetched.

Not just on the national scene, but locally, too.

For example, there's speculation even now that Rep. Michael Morrissey would like to be state senator and might even make a run for it, say in 1990.

MORRISSEY

Only problem with that, of course, is that the Quincy-Braintree-Holbrook-Avon seat is now occupied by by Paul Harold.

HAROLD

But, wait a minute.

There's more speculation that Harold might run for mayor. Maybe next year. If not then, in 1991. And if he won, he would give up the Senate seat and Morrissey would have his shot at it.

Morrissey, some think, might not wait for Harold to vacate his senate seat. He might go for it anyway.

Morrissey isn't on the shy side when it comes to running against an incumbent. That's how he got to the state house in his political debut, ousting incumbent Rep. Joseph Brett.

Now, if Morrissey gave up his House seat to run for the senate, who would run for the vacancy?

The speculation Corps is already busy on that one, too.

NUTLEY

Names being tossed around include Ward 6 Councillor Tom Nutley, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien and Tom Koch, Council on Aging executive director, former City Council candidate and political activist.

PHELAN

CHRETIEN

KOCH

For Nutley and Koch it would be something to consider. All of Ward 6 is included in Morrissey's new First Norfolk District.

Also for Phelan. Part of Ward 5 is also in the district. Same for Chretien. Part of Ward 3 is in the district.

Of course, all this might sound pretty wild right now but two or three years from now who knows.

Anything can happen.

Thirteen months ago when Dukakis made his announcement who would have thought he would be where he is today.

And anything can happen locally.

Politics is politics. Fascinating and crazy.

TED DeCRISTOFARO is trying to shoot down reports that he won't seek re-election to his Ward 2 City Council seat next year.

DeCRISTOFARO

"I don't know how or why the reports got started," he says, "but it just isn't so. I definitely will run again next year."

DeCristofaro is now in his fourth term.

"I have an obligation to the people -- especially those in Quincy Point as far as the shipyard is concerned -- to stick around and help them as much as I can."

THE STATE PRIMARY election, in case you haven't heard, will be held on a Thursday this year instead of the traditional Tuesday.

The exact date: Thursday, Sept. 15.

The reason is because of the Jewish holiday Rosh Hashanah.

GILLIS

City Clerk John Gillis and other City Hall observers say they can't ever remember a primary or other city or state election being held on a Thursday.

The final election, Nov. 8 will be back to a Tuesday.

Incidentally, Tuesday, May 3, 5 p.m. is the deadline for filing nomination papers.

Sheriff Marshall Warns:

Would Have To Release Dangerous Inmates To Meet Jail Population Cap

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall notified a federal judge in Boston last week that he could no longer meet the ordered cap on inmate population at the Norfolk County Jail and House of Correction without releasing people he considered a danger to society.

A number of inmates charged with lesser offenses have already been released, he said.

"It's very frustrating," said Marshall, whose facility has been limited to 172 people. At the time the judge was notified last week, the facility had 181 inmates.

During an interview on WJDA Radio's Party Line with Roy Lind, Marshall discussed some of the problems he faces, chief among them lack of space.

At his facility, inmates are housed two to each of the 72 cells, 13 are in the boiler room and 16 in the recreation hall, which has limited recreation, he said.

In addition, 44 are located in the minimum security facility in the former nurses quarters at the Mass. Respiratory Hospital, Braintree.

"It's separated from the hospital," noted Marshall.

CLIFFORD MARSHALL

"And inmates are screened in Dedham before they are sent there."

Most have been charged with operating under the influence of alcohol, he noted.

Nine people have "ankle bracelets" which allows the correctional facility to monitor them 24 hours a day as they live at home, according to Marshall.

They can go to their jobs during certain hours, but then must remain within a specified distance from their homes, Marshall said.

The electronic monitoring is done through the individual's home phone, he explained.

The majority of those sent to his facility in Dedham are ages 17 to 24, said Marshall, and have an eight to 10th grade education.

"Many students who come out for our drug and alcohol awareness program comment that many of the inmates are the same ages they are," he said.

The majority of those housed at his facility also have serious drug and-or alcohol problems, according to Marshall.

A new correctional facility on the media strip of Rte. 128 in Dedham has been under consideration since July, 1982, but is now on hold, he said.

"The federal government denied it, and it's on appeal," said Marshall.

"There are no other proposed sites.

"Now the light at the end of the tunnel is closed to us," said Marshall, who has been sheriff since Jan. 1, 1975.

"A lot of people have the NIMBY attitude - not in my back yard.

"Now the federal people are saying, not on my federal highway.

"I feel strongly this is the only site we can move forward with."

Marshall noted that the governor filed a bill this year making money available to any community that accepts a jail.

The money is up to 25 percent of the cost of the jail, according to Marshall. If a jail costs $42 million, $10, $11 or $12 million would go to the community, in addition to other money, he said.

Marshall said there is "tremendous stress" connected with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department.

"Since November, 1978, we've had a fire, strikes, a blizzard, collapsed wall, shootings, escapes," he said.

"We've also had high school graduations, baptisms, confirmations.

"You name it, we've had it," he said.

Marshall commented on a bill that would put more judges and support staff in the judicial system.

"More judges create more people going to jail," he said.

"We have to build more jails.

"Corrections has been the unequal partner in the system.

"We face releasing prisoners because we don't have room."

Marshall urged residents to contact their senators and representatives with their thoughts on the issue.

No Bake Lemon Pie

Straight From Germany

While in Germany this past month, our daughter Suzie made a no bake lemon pie that was very different from the lemon pies I've had so I just had to share this with you all.

It is so easy and delicious, and can be made ahead of time especially for a light summer dessert.

SUE'S NO BAKE LEMON PIE
1 large can condensed milk three fresh lemons
1 Tbsp lemon rind
a smidgen of salt
graham cracker crust

You can follow the recipe for a graham cracker written on the graham cracker box, or purchase a ready made one. Sue usually makes her own.

It's so simple that all you have to do is put the condensed milk in a bowl, mix the juice of the lemon, the salt and lemon rind until the mixture thickens before your very eyes. Place in a pie shell, and cool in the refrigerator for at least 2 to 3 hours. Serve with generous helping of fresh whipped cream. We like our pies thick so I doubled the recipe.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at That's Italian, Franklin St., South Quincy; Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point , Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Durkin Urging Passage Of RICO Bill To Fight Crime

Atty. Stephen Durkin, candidate for state representative for the Second Norfolk District, is urging passage of a bill calling for the creation of a state RICO (Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization) Act.

In a letter to the chairmen of the House and Senate Judiciary Committees, as well as to the Quincy legislative delegation on Beacon Hill, Durkin said:

"The legislation would give Massachusetts prosecutors an effective weapon against organized criminal activities and individuals and businesses engaged in the egregious crimes of narcotics distribution, hazardous waste-dumping, murder, arson and other crimes.

"A RICO law would allow law enforcement officials to move effectively prosecute entire networks of organized crime, and to confiscate profits which are illegally obtained and laundered through legitimate business ventures.

"For the most part, existing state law allows us to prosecute only individuals for individual offenses, and does not allow for the forfeiture of the profits of crime."

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Robbery Prevention

Here are a few methods that businessmen can use to prevent themselves from becoming the victims of a robbery.

- Do not keep large amounts of cash in the register. Extra money should be kept in a locked safe or deposited in the bank. Do not store cash in a cigar box under the counter. Even an amateur holdup artist knows enough to check there.
- If possible, have a couple of bills in each drawer that you retain permanently and keep a record of the seriel numbers. This can aid identification greatly in case your property is recovered.
- Keep checks separated from cash at all times. Cancel all checks with "deposit only" stamp at time of receipt.
- Never turn your back on an open cash drawer.
- Keep a spare key hidden in your store room. Often a robber will try to detain his victims by locking them in a store room or closet. A spare key hidden in such areas can quickly get you out and to a phone.
- A television or radio playing in the back room suggest that someone else may be present.
- Do not clutter windows with signs and displays that block viewing from the street. Keep the premises well lighted. It is very frustrating for a police officer to ride by a convenience store and not be able to see inside because of ads that are all over the windows. Keep those windows clear so that the police and the public can see what is going on inside.
- Install a drop safe and instruct your clerks never to keep over $60 in the cash drawer. The more money you keep in the cash drawer the better your chances of being held up.
- Place a sign on the front door of your business stating that "No more than $60 is kept in cash drawer at any time." Also a sign at the register informing the public that "We don't take bills larger than $20" might help to discourage potential robbers.
- If suspicious persons loiter around your place of business notify police IMMEDIATELY.
- Always ask potential employees for references and check those references out.
- Install a holdup alarm system and make sure that all employees are familiar with it. Make your employees aware of these robbery prevention measures. While doing this you can also make them aware of what to do if a robbery does occur.

City To Request Recycling Proposals

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien and Mayor Francis McCauley announce that the city will request proposals from companies interested in collecting and purchasing recycled paper.

Chretien, chairman of the city's Task Force on Recycling, stated "Our Task Force has already been in contact with a few waste paper dealers. We are confident that at least one will make an offer to purchase our recycled paper. It should also be easy to find a qualified bidder to collect the paper."

According to Chretien, preliminary plans indicate that recyclable paper will be separated from trash by residents for curbside collection and by groups participating in paper drives. Such a program could begin quickly, after an initial education campaign has been undertaken to promote the concept.

Mayor McCauley congratulated Councillor Chretien and the committee for the hard work and speed with which they have operated. "After just three meetings the committee has come up with a proposal for recycling paper that is worth serious consideration," McCauley said.

"Eventually," Chretien said, "the city will move towards composting and the recycling of other items. But paper is the best thing for us to start with."

Cardinal Law Presides Over Funeral Mass For William F. O'Connell

WILLIAM F. O'CONNELL

Bernard Cardinal Law presided over the Christian burial Mass for William F. "Papa" O'Connell, of Quincy, retired vice president of O'Connell Brothers Construction Co., celebrated Monday in St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

Mr. O'Connell died April 22 at home after a long illness.

Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, was the celebrant.

There were 10 concelebrants: Rev. James Tuxbury, Rev. Daniel Graham, and Rev. Gary Sullivan, all of St. John's; Rev. Joseph Fahey S.J., president of Boston College High School; Rev. Raymond Callahan S.J., former president of Boston College High School; Rev. Alfred J. Hicks S.J., rector of Jesuit Communities at Boston College High School; Rev. Bartley McFadden, president of Stonehill College; Rev. Thomas Oates of St. Williams in Dorchester, Rev. Timothy J. Moran, secretary to Cardinal Law and Rev. Richard Craig, director of Catholic Charities in Boston.

Bishop Daniel Hart was seated in the sanctuary.

Cardinal Law paid special tribute to Mr. O'Connell and to the O'Connell family at the Mass.

Rev. McCarthy eulogized Mr. O'Connell as a "sensitive man to the needs of others."

"I have seen this illustrated in situations in which we both were involved. Love of neighbor played an important role in his daily life.

"He also gave practical and sound advice with regard to the needed equipment of the parish truck, as well as in his concern for everyone," Rev. McCarthy said.

"By his strong work ethic he set an example for his family, which is probably the reason the family is so successful today. This is also personified this afternoon by the presence of the pallbearers, who he referred to as his crew.

"His crew were certainly devoted to him, as he was to them. He was a genuine leader," Rev. McCarthy said.

He joined the firm as executive vice president in 1972, retiring earlier this year.

His late wife, Phelma (Schaffer) O'Connell, was the bookkeeper for the family firm, which is one of the largest and most successful real estate and development companies in New England.

The firm was started by his sons, Peter F. O'Connell and William S. O'Connell, both of Quincy, who built their first apartment building on land they purchased next to the family home on Parker St.

The firm built Hancock House and Granite Place apartments in Quincy Center, Clipper Apartments in Adams Shore, Louisburg Square and Sagamore Towers in North Quincy and luxury units at Quincy Adams. They also built the Monarch complex and buildings in the State Street South Complex in Montclair.

This year they moved their offices to their Marina Bay complex in Squantum on the site of the former Squantum Naval Air Station.

Other major projects include the World Trade Center, Horticultural Hall and Constitution Plaza in Boston and Monarch Place in Springfield.

A lifelong Quincy resident, Mr. O'Connell was a graduate of Quincy High School.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D Scott Deware

William Penn said: "Time is what we want most, but what alasl we use worst."

"Tempus fugit." Time does fly and we are always asking ourselves where it has gone ...

One of the best ways to use time and to be happy is to keep one's mind on the interest and goodness inherent in human life. Granted there are burdens to be borne ... disappointments to be thrust aside and forgotten ... sorrows to be surmounted. Still life is good. We have the beauty of nature by day; the beauty of stars by night; the interesting personalities we meet by day; the challenges we meet every day. The world goes about at an astonishing rate on axis and orbit. But what of it? Won't tomorrow's sunrise bring with it the promise of another good and great day? ...

Private Kennels For Strays Possible Animal Shelter Alternative

The city will investigate having its stray animals placed with private kennels for a fee as an alternative to building a new animal shelter, Mayor Francis McCauley said.

"It's probably a shot in the dark, but it's worth a look," said McCauley, who has assigned Dep. DPW Commr. David Colton to the task.

The action was proposed after bids to build a new shelter came in much higher than expected.

"We were talking $450,000 to $500,000," said McCauley.

"But bids came in at $818,000; $875,000 and $887,000," he said.

"It reflects the economic condition. Firms are so busy, they can make high bids.

"I don't feel it would be worthwhile to go out to bid again."

If the alternative plan does not work out, McCauley said he will decide by May 12, whether to accept one of the bids.

"It's a tight (money) situation. We want to do this as reasonably as possible."

McCauley reaffirmed his commitment to do something about the shelter.

"We have to do something," he said. "The shelter is in bad shape," he said.

The bids were made by Westbrook Co., Charlestown, $818,000; Zambernardo Construction Co., North Andover, $875,000; and Paul J. Rogan Co., Dorchester, $887,766.

If McCauley decides to accept one of the bids, the city will purchase a bond to pay for the cost of the shelter.

"We can't take it out of existing reserves," he said.

Cardiovascular Education At South Shore YMCA

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Last year, there were 650,000 deaths in the United States attributed to coronary heart disease, making it the number one killer in the nation, according to statistics from the American Heart Association.

Beginning May 12 at the South Shore Y.M.C.A., 79 Coddington St., Quincy, a first-time ever Cardiovascular Education Program will get underway to help educate people in the area of cardiovascular health and disease.

The bi-weekly lecture series, directed by Debbie Jackson Cooper, R.N., and Gayle Pizzi, a degree holder in exercise, physiology and health fitness, will feature topics ranging from coronary artery disease to exercise benefits to the cardiovascular system.

The program will be held every other Thursday beginning May 12 from 7 to 8 p.m. The last lecture is scheduled for July 7 with a make-up lecture July 14.

Cooper, who will give the lectures, said the program is intended to not only educate people of all ages, but also to motivate them into adopting a healthy lifestyle.

The essence of the program is preventive medicine, doing what you ought to do like eating properly and exercising your heart, thus lowering the risk of coronary heart disease, Cooper said.

"There are some things you can't change but there are other things that you can change," she said. Some "things" or risks one can't change or modify are age, sex, heredity and being diabetic. Cooper pointed out that males have three times the risk of experiencing a major cardiovascular "event" than females.

However, there are many risks one can change or modify. These include physical activity, weight, cholesterol level, blood pressure, stress and whether one smokes.

And these risks make up the basis for the education program.

"We can't do anything to remove coronary plaque but we can change a person's eating and exercise habits," Cooper said.

According to Cooper, these modified risks are all interrelated and that makes educating the public so important. "You have to teach them how the puzzle works."

Besides educating those who attend the lecture, Cooper said she hopes these people will in turn educate their family and friends.

"If one family member is committed to changing their lifestyle, such as the foods they eat and by exercising, he'll start feeling and looking better. Then he gets his wife interested and then their children will be raised in this fashion.

"We have the opportunity within the Y.M.C.A. and community to start the process of having healthy families," Cooper said. "Education on diet will hopefully spread."

The May 12 lecture topics are "Anatomy and Physiology" and "Benefits of Exercise to the Cardiovascular System." Cooper will discuss how the heart works and the effects that exercise has on one's cardiovascular system.

"Risk Factors for Coronary Artery Disease" on May 26 will focus on the knowledge of risk factors that contribute to coronary artery disease as well as recognizing the signs and symptoms of a heart attack.

On June 9, Cooper will discuss blood pressure and the factors related to high blood pressure. She will also speak on the medicines and methods used to control high blood pressure. Individual blood pressure readings will be taken as well.

"Smoking and Your Health" is the topic for June 23. Cooper will focus on cigarette smoking with emphasis on the cardiovascular system and pulmonary system. Different programs available to quit smoking will also be discussed.

The final lecture on July 7 will be "Cholesterols and Fats." Cooper will help people to identify the main dietary sources of fat and cholesterol. She will also discuss saturated and unsaturated fats as well as blood lipids. Cholesterol screenings will be offered for a nominal fee.

Slides and other visual aids will enhance each lecture.

Registration is underway now and will continue up through the first class.

Program cost is $20 for full Y.M.C.A. members and $35 for associate Y members (non-members).

Cooper is a graduate of the Quincy City School of Nursing and has worked at University Hospital in Boston. A former medical director of Phase Four Cardiac Rehabilitation at South Shore Y.M.C.A., she has also been a guest lecturer for the Y's Marathon Training Group.

If there is a good response, a similar program will begin in the fall, she said.

As for those who attend this program, Cooper said, "I hope they will make a commitment to taking responsibility for their own health."

Families Sought To Host Spanish High School Students

The American Institute for Foreign Study is recruiting families to host high school students from Spain.

The students, ages 16 to 19, will be here for four weeks getting to know the Boston area and the people of the South Shore.

Students have various levels of English fluency and have been screened by their school representatives in Spain. They have their own spending money and are provided with comprehensive insurance coverage by the sending program.

American families with small children or grown children, as well as those with teenagers, are welcome to apply. Single parents are also encouraged to participate.

The area coordinator visits each family to discuss the program. Host families are expected to furnish meals and room, which may be shared with a family teenager of the same sex.

The family's most important contribution to the student, however, will be its English conversation and American culture. In turn, host families will have an opportunity to participate in other AIFS programs and trips at a reduced cost, establish cultural and language exchanges, and attend summer trips and tours with their guests.

For more information contact Kathleen McNamara, area coordinator, at 472-3311.

It's HOME IMPROVEMENT Month

STORE CHECKS, BILLS AND OTHER PAPERWORK in file boxes to simplify record keeping and minimize clutter in the home. These files can be carried from room to room to make it easier to work where you choose—in the kitchen, bedroom or even on the road.

Use spring cleanup time to end paperwork nightmare

Have you ever spent unnecessary hours searching for an unpaid bill? Or have you hunted endlessly for receipts to justify expense claims on a tax return or expense voucher?

If your system for storing paperwork is either nonexistent or in disarray, spring cleanup season is a good time to get records in order.

You may want to reserve one area of the home to work on bills, checkbook balancing, correspondence and other tasks. However, if space is at a premium or if other household members are encroaching on your space or running away with your supplies, you might want to try another solution.

Home office accessories can help you keep records straight. A variety of desktop organizers and file boxes from Rubbermaid are designed to work where you want to work.

Constructed of sturdy, molded plastic, these organizers allow you to design your own storage space. File organizers, letter trays and other units can be added on as needed to keep bills, receipts and records easy to find and use.

The Box Office™ file, a combination file box and supply organizer, holds up to 15 pounds of paperwork and accommodates hanging files. A separate compartment in the lid houses pencils, pens, paper clips, stamps and other items for quick access.

The box has a convenient carry handle and tucks neatly away in a closet or under a table when not in use. This file and smaller file boxes stack for convenient storage. Files accommodate legal- or letter-size documents.

If you write a large number of checks each month, you may want to keep them in a separate file. A Utility File sized for holding checks has a handy divider to hold them in place when the unit is partially full. This file also holds tape, receipts, coupons or other supplies.

Some people prefer to store bills and receipts by the month, with one folder for each period. Others, who may itemize expenses for business or tax purposes, prefer to store records by category—that is, all expenses in one folder, household repairs in another, medical bills in another.

However unless you're under your expenses for business or taxes, the one-folder-per-month strategy should work well.

You'll find keeping bills and other paperwork organized makes record keeping much easier. Tax preparation will also become a less hurried experience. Though the forms and rules may change almost yearly, you'll feel more confident when you can put your hands on all the needed paperwork at one time.

For a brochure on organizing your whole house, send a self-addressed stamped #10 (long) envelope to: Rubbermaid, Dept. MHO-1147, Akron Road, Wooster, OH 44691.

Keep cool, and save cold cash!

What are some basic rules to follow for keeping cool at minimum cost? Is central air conditioning more energy-efficient than using window units?

Should I turn my thermostat up when I leave for work in the morning? What are the advantages of buying a system with a high seasonal energy efficiency ratio (SEER)?

These are among 47 questions answered for consumers in the new free pamphlet, "How To Keep Your Cool and Save Cold Cash."

Published by the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute, the trade association representing manufacturers of central air conditioning and heat pump systems, the 24-panel pamphlet updates and combines questions and answers from the first two "Keep Cool" pamphlets in ARI's popular series of free consumer information pamphlets.

Topics discussed include: Typical savings from higher seasonal energy efficiency ratios; heat pump cooling and heating compared to other systems; how often to change air filters; augmenting central systems with window units or ceiling fans; humidification considerations; replacing systems before they wear out; cleaning registers and ducts; heat pump supplemental heat; finding out more about radon and indoor air quality; and how to get more free information about indoor climate control.

For a free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed business envelope to the Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI), Dept. U-77, P.O. Box 37700, Washington, DC 20013.

Houseplants Help Fight Indoor Air Pollution

Want to fight indoor air pollution in your home? According to National Wildlife magazine, thousands of people may be poisoned in their homes each year by toxic substances such as carbon monoxide and nitrogen dioxide.

Luckily, houseplants, particularly spider plants, are excellent air cleaners.

So put some greenery in your home and breathe more easily.

Is It Really Home, Sweet Home?

"Home, Sweet, Home" may not be so "sweet" after all. According to National Wildlife magazine, studies have found that the air inside homes may be more dangerous to human health than the air outside.

In fact, the number of people claiming to be victims of "building sickness" has tripled in this country since the early 1970s. Some of the indoor pollutants include formaldehyde, radon and tobacco smoke.

Keep cool with caulk: Spring is the time to repair winter damage

Don't wait until fall to seal cracks with caulk. Keep the cool air inside your home and repair winter damage by sealing cracks and crevices now.

Warm, dry weather is the best time to seal your home with caulk. Caulking also helps to keep bugs, rain and dirt outside.

Simple, economical sealing and caulking at the first signs of damage can help head off extensive, expensive repair jobs.

Potential trouble spots

Here is a list of 10 potential trouble spots provided by the Elmer's people, who make a series of caulks and sealants for different household jobs.

- Shingles or nails on the roof that may have worked loose.
- Cracks in chimney masonry.
- Loose flashing on chimneys and other roof joints.
- Leaky gutter and downspout seams.
- Caulking around windows, doors and attic ventilation outlets.
- Glazing compound around window panes.
- Loose nails or other damage in siding.
- Spaces around foundation flashing and outside faucets.
- Cracks in foundations, patios and porches, steps, walkways and driveways.
- Spaces under wooden porch columns where water can collect and cause rot.

Roof inspections and repairs require caution; always be sure any slanted roof-walking devices are secure before putting your full weight on them.

Use a good, general purpose indoor/outdoor caulk such as Elmer's silicon-ized acrylic latex caulk for sealing wood, aluminum, cement, brick, plaster and stucco.

Color options

The product is available in brown, woodtone, redwood, gray and clear, or choose white and paint it to match your surface 30 minutes after application.

This type of caulk resists moisture, mildew, cold air and dust, and is non-flammable and non-toxic.

Upgrade your outdoor furniture

Your picnic table set or outdoor furniture doesn't have to be built of redwood to give your patio area a touch of class.

This spring, plan on giving those pieces made of less expensive wood a coat or two of a clear protective finish which will not only bring out the warmth and beauty of natural or stained wood but also repel abuse by the elements.

First, when you purchase a piece of unfinished wood furniture, let it weather in order to open the grain and remove chemicals that can cause darkening.

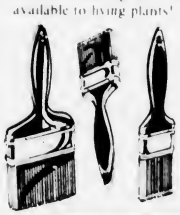
Once the wood has weathered to the desired tone, however, it is important to protect it from rain, dirt and whatever else the four seasons might throw at it.

Apply a quality coating like Fabulon marine spar varnish which provides a film that doesn't crack when wood contracts or expands under different weather conditions.

This prolongs the life of the finish, and helps guard the wood against color fading and deterioration.

Chairs, tables and trim as well as natural or stained garage and outside doors also take a beating from the penetrating ultraviolet rays of the sun.

During the spring and summer, especially, this UV exposure can work quickly to fade the original luster and color of the wood.



You can save yourself regular fix-up aggravation by applying a specially formulated UV-absorbing finish such as Fabulon Sun Bounce, which is warranted to last for five years under the brightest and harshest of conditions.

The attention and protection you give your outdoor furniture and other exterior woods will keep your patio area aesthetically pleasing and functional for years to come.

Majority Of Termites Benefit Ecology

It's true that termites do more than $750 million of damage each year in this country. But, according to International Wildlife magazine, their ecological good may outweigh the economic harm.

Of the 2,000 species, only about 10 percent cause any economic damage at all. On the other hand, all of them benefit us, because they recycle vast quantities of cellulose, making its atoms available to living plants!

Richard Harris Candidate For State Representative

Richard A. Harris of 22 Oakland Ave., a teacher in the Quincy Public Schools since 1965, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for state representative in the Second Norfolk District.

Harris, son of Fred and Gladys Harris who owned the Parkway Variety on Furnace Brook Parkway for 27 years, made his announcement at a meeting of the Republican City Committee, of which he is vice chairman.

He is married to the former Martha Sue Fuongo and they are parents of three sons.

"In many ways, I do not fit the media image of your typical Republican candidate," said Harris in his announcement. "I am not wealthy and I have no high-powered contacts in the business community. I suspect I am much like the average voter in the district who is desperately trying to maintain a home and provide for a family despite rising prices and continually accelerating tax levies.

"Much has been said about the "Massachusetts Miracle," but how many of us are really sharing in it? Housing prices have skyrocketed. In many cases, both husband and wife must work, sometimes more than a single job, in order to pay their mortgages. Young couples just starting out often have to move out of state to find a house they can afford. And yet development continues at an alarming rate.

"To be sure, some people have benefited from our present economic climate. They are the developers and the bureaucrats who administer the agencies that oversee new construction projects. Massachusetts government is rife with incompetence, waste and cronyism.

"At the present time, there aren't enough Republicans in elective office to hold the Democrats accountable. All of the state legislators with poor attendance records are Democrats. The Democratic party has such an overwhelming numerical advantage in both houses of the Great and General Court that only half of their members need to be present and voting to pass or defeat a bill over Republican opposition.

"This is a deplorable situation. Here in the Second Norfolk District, we have a unique opportunity to help change the complexion of the state House of Representatives this year. Ours is an open seat. No one has any prior claim to it. This is the time to break with tradition and strike a blow for responsible government.

"Quincy, I believe, is in reality a rather conservative city whose residents value individual initiative and self-reliance. They do not want Big Brother controlling their lives and they are often resentful of the financial burdens placed upon them by the many social welfare programs that Democrats see as solutions to all of society's problems.

"It is time for Quincy's voting habits to more accurately reflect that political philosophy.

"As a member of the Republican City Committee for the past 10 years, I have often spoken out on issues affecting our community. I have been active in petition drives to keep schools open and to regulate the pace and character of development in the city of Quincy. Now I would like to use this same energy and sense of commitment as your representative on Beacon Hill.

"As a Republican running in a heavily Democratic district, I recognize the importance of every vote. My willingness to be accountable to you, the voters, is virtually guaranteed because I need your support to defeat several Democrats, all of whom have the potential to raise far more in campaign contributions than I can.

"However, I do believe it is possible to achieve an upset victory this fall.

"With your help we can surely overcome and usher in a new era in which the legitimate concerns of constituents are given the attention they so justly deserve."

Quincy Edged By Newton N., 5-4

By TOM SULLIVAN

After going 6-2 against non-league opposition, Quincy's baseball team lost a heartbreaking 5-4 extra-inning decision to Newton North Monday in its Suburban League opener.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents faced the top team in the league, Waltham, yesterday (Wednesday), will be idle Friday, will host Brookline Monday at 4 p.m. at Adams Field and will play at Brockton next Wednesday at 4.

Quincy continued to get excellent pitching Monday as Joe Taylor pitched two-hit ball, but a dropped fly with two outs in the eighth inning allowed Newton to score the winning run.

Quincy errors and a perfect squeeze bunt had given Newton a 4-3 lead but the Presidents tied it in the bottom of the sixth on a walk, infield out, wild pitch and Joe Taylor's sacrifice fly.

In the eighth a walk and infield out put a Newton runner on second base. Relief pitcher Wayne Chambers appeared to be out of it but the right fielder dropped a fly to let in the winning run.

In Quincy's eighth walk, a sacrifice and a two-out infield hit put runners on first and third but a ground out left the tying run on third.

"This was tough to take, especially losing it on our home field," said Sylvia. "You don't mind so much losing on the road, but we can't afford to throw away games like this at home. Joe Taylor pitched a tremendous game but our errors cost us. This is the third time in two years Newton has snatched a game from us like this."

Last Friday Quincy lost to Revere, one of the top teams in eastern Mass., 6-1, as the bats were again quiet.

Nick Dragone was the whole Quincy offense as he had a home run, double and two singles.

In their previous game the Presidents had pounded Peabody, 9-3, scoring four runs in each of the fourth and fifth innings.

Quincy had left the bases loaded in the first and runners at the corners in the third but exploded in the next two innings.

Jim Dennis pitched his third straight win as he allowed only two hits in six innings. Rich Kissel pitched the final inning.

Ed Flavin had two hits, two RBI and two runs scored; Greg and Wayne Chambers combined for four singles, three runs scored and two RBI; Sean Thompson reached three times on a single and two walks; Danny Biagini had a two-run triple; Scott Logan had a double and Brian Taylor a single.

Earlier Quincy had defeated Medford, 8-2, with Joe Taylor pitching fine ball for six innings and Bobby Austin finishing up. Joe and Brian Taylor sparked the offense in this game.

"I am satisfied with the way we have been playing, but we have gone into a hitting slump the past two games and I hope we are not getting ourselves in a rut," Sylvia said. "Our pitching has been excellent with Taylor, Dennis and Chambers doing well as starters and I have been able to get kids like Austin, Kissel and Steve McInnis in late in the games for experience, which will help us as the season goes on.

"Up until the Revere and Newton games, we had been hitting well with Biagini, Brian Taylor, Thompson and Dragone all doing a good job. Our defense has been good most of the year but we have been sloppy the last couple of games.

"We beat both Weymouth teams and went 4-2 against some real solid Greater Boston League teams. The Suburban League is going to be really competitive this year and I feel Waltham is the best team. Brockton, which has dominated for several years, is down with us mortals this season. All our remaining games are with league teams so we just have to take a game at a time.

"The credit for our fine pitching must go to Dave McMillan, who is doing a great job. I leave the pitchers entirely in his hands."

NANCY FLUKES, who broke all North Quincy girls' basketball records and was selected the Most Valuable Player in the Suburban League, was recently honored as one of the top 20 high school players in Eastern New England by McDonald's and the Celtics. She is shown with Bob King, left, owner/operator of two McDonald's restaurants, and Celtics forward mark Acres. (Fox Foto Service)

Whitelaw Honored By N.E. Hockey Writers

Bob "Scotty" Whitelaw, a former three-letterman at North Quincy High, never played a minute of college hockey but he recently was presented the 30th prestigious Shaeffer Pen Award at the annual New England Hockey Writers Awards Banquet.

Whitelaw, the commissioner of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC), received the award for outstanding contribution to college hockey.

Whitelaw, who played football, basketball and baseball at North Quincy High and was inducted into the school's Football Hall of Fame three years ago, joins an impressive list of Shaeffer Award winners, including former Boston College coach John 'Snooks' Kelley, Herb Gallagher of Northeastern, Jack Riley of Army and Mike Eruzione of Boston University and the 1980 Olympic champion hockey team.

"I look at the names that have won and they are legends in hockey," said Whitelaw, a 1945 graduate of North Quincy. "I'm flattered and honored to be included with such people, especially seeing I have never even scored a goal in college hockey."

Scotty joined the ECAC in 1960 as assistant commissioner after serving as assistant athletic director and head basketball and baseball coach at MIT. He became commissioner of the nation's largest athletic conference in 1972.

He has served as tournament director of the ECAC Division I hockey championship since 1962 and was instrumental in forming championships at the Division 2 and 3 levels.

"Scotty has done a truly great job as ECAC commissioner and is most deserving of the award," said former Quincy High hockey coach Bill Hutchinson.

Last Friday North defeated Somerville, 6-3, for its third victory as sophomore righthander Eric DeBoer pitched a five-hit, complete game.

Mike Wesson's two-run single in the bottom of the sixth gave the Raiders the insurance they needed.

Earlier in the week North was bombed by Revere, one of the top teams in Eastern Masss., 15-3.

Steve's Third In Softball Classic

Steve's Painting of Quincy finished third with a 6-2 record in the second annual City Sports Spring Softball Classic in Cambridge. Twenty-four teams from Massachusetts and New Hampshire took part in the double elimination tournament.

Steve's was led by the speedy outfield of John Spencer, George Bouchard, Frank Riley, Bill Flynn and Peter Chernicki.

The infield of Rob Glynn, John Kozlowski, Paul Flynn, Peter Orseno and Chuck Dooley played well as did Howie Chadbourne, Mike Burnes, Dan Dellamano, Dana Pringle and Steve Spencer, who pitched all eight games.

Quincy, North Again Rejected By Old Colony League

For the second year in a row the Old Colony League rejected the applications of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools for membership.

But the two teams may be getting closer to joining the league.

A 7-2 vote of league schools is needed to admit Quincy and North and a year ago the vote was 5-4. This year the league athletic directors and principals accepted the applications by a 6-3 vote.

It was reputed that, the two Quincy schools lost out when Bridgewater-Raynham, Taunton and Marshfield voted against them.

"The minute I got the word, I wrote a letter, thanking them for considering us," said Quincy athletic coordinator Marty Finnegan. "I told them we hoped in the future that some opening will occur for us. We'll stay optimistic about it."

The vote means Quincy and North, the two smallest schools in the league, will remain in the strong Suburban League at least for another year.

"I don't think we have any other open options right now," Finnegan said. "Of course, we don't know what the MIAA will do in terms of realignments. It's a problem all across the state.

"I don't know all the reasons some schools voted against us. We feel the Old Colony League is a good league and would provide a good arrangement for our kids. We feel we'd be a plus for their league, too." Several Old Colony League schools have larger enrollments than Quincy and North.

"Primarily, we feel the character of the league is chaning to a city-type league," said Bridgewater-Raynham principal George Campernaros. "This was a vote to admit two city schools."

There are no city schools in the OCL, which will have eight members when Randolph shifts to the South Shore League this fall.

Campernaros also cited travel distance as a reason for voting against the two Quincy schools.

"I know it would be close," said Weymouth athletic director Bob Donovan. "The two Weymouth schools were in favor of admitting Quincy and North Quincy. We're always had a strong relationship with the two Quincy schools."

Weymouth North and South which, like the Quincys, had little luck in the Suburban League, have done far better since moving into the Old Colony League.

Finnegan said the two Quincy schools would reapply for admission to the Old Colony League.

"You get knocked down, you come back up again. We have to try to do what is best for our kids," he said.

Quincy Has Strong Seniors Nucleus

Quincy girls' track coach John Franceschini greeted 22 candidates, which included nine freshmen from whom he expects some good performance.

The heart and soul of the squad are the seniors, led by Co-captains Jeanine Quigley and Rene Gaura. Quigley is an outstanding middle distance runner and Gaura scores consistently in the 110 and 330 hurdles.

Quincy's "super twins," Patti and Gayle Morrell again led the field event corps. Kathy Cahill (sprints), Maria Politano (sprints) and Jennifer Fay (field events) also will score.

The junior class is strong with sprinter Karin Picarski and hurdlers Beth Weixler and Jessica Rutan leading the way.

Deanne DeSantis, Michelle Connolly, Rachael Gilmore and Karan Boussy are competing in both running and field events.

"The freshman class is one of the finest to come along in some time," said Franceschini.

Lori Novak and Jennifer Richard are strong in the middle distances and Franceschini feels both will be outstanding runners.

Jennifer Verlieco, Jackie Potter, Maureen Cully, Susan Doyle, Amy Hennesbury and Julie McCloskey make up the rest of the promising freshman group.

The First Ladies have two meets on the road before hosting Cambridge Rindge and Latin May 5 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

They were at Brookline yesterday (Wednesday) and will be at Waltham next Tuesday. All meets start at 4 p.m.

Chris Fave of Merrymount had 13, Steve Keddy 10, and Danny Thackery's four rounded out the scoring. Tom Smith, the Merrymount coach, was pleased with the rebounding of Marty Reardon.

Quarter-final action was played in two nights at the Atlantic Middle School. Sterling and Atlantic opened the action with a hand fought 65-50 victory by Atlantic. The game was 13-13 at the first period, 24-26 at half, before Atlantic slowly pulled away. Golf Card Available For Mother's Day

George Bennett, Quincy representative to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association Board of Directors, announced that the association's Golf Privilege Card for the 1988 season is available.

"The Golf Privilege Card is really a fantastic bargain," stated Bennett. "This year the card has 29 courses on it. That's one round of golf at each of the 29 participating courses. It's worth over $250, but thanks to the generosity of the golf courses, the card is available for only $30.

"It's a great Mother's Day or graduation gift, and an excellent way to help support our programs for children and adults who are afflicted with lung disease."

Estimated $500,000 Illegal Building Each Year

through or something else happens, the insurance company may not cover the damage.

"If they do something illegal, and someone gets hurt, the insurance company won't pay," said Mulvey.

He noted that many fires are the result of illegal wiring.

"The primary reason we are concerned is to protect the building occupant," said Mulvey, who downplayed the 1 percent permit fee and 1 percent sewer rehabilitation fee that isn't being paid.

"We need a PR program," said Mulvey.

As a first step, when a business owner comes with the City Clerk's office, he or she is handed a piece of paper with requirements for building and zoning, according to Mulvey.

When the department gets three new personnel in July, Mulvey said the inspectors will begin spending some time going from ward to ward noting violations.

If they live in Quincy, they will not be assigned their own neighborhood, he noted.

"Those who are in violation will be notified in a letter that they have 30 days to be in compliance with the law," he said.

"If they don't comply, then a complaint will be made in court."

Mulvey stressed that the problem is not restricted to Quincy, but is national.

"You see this every place. It's because of lack of help," said Mulvey, who has been building inspector in Wayland, Acton, Littleton and Boston over the past 15 years.

"Good people can make twice as much in the private sector," he said.

Inspectors in his department receive salaries in the high $20,000s, according to Mulvey.

He said he is working on a committee with the state to make sure that building inspectors are qualified, and is also a member of the Architectural Access Board.

In addition to needing more inspectors, Mulvey is working on an overload of paperwork.

"Some of our procedures date back to the 1930s and 1940s," said Mulvey.

"The mayor has allowed us to close the office the third Wednesday of every month to do paperwork.

"So far it has worked out well."

In addition to the building inspectors, there are three clerks and two plumbing inspectors in the department, Mulvey noted.

Mulvey said it will probably take four years to get the Building Department operating the way he feels it should be.

"We need a lot to bring us into the 1980s," said Mulvey. "But I knew that coming in," he said.

Young Quincy Cartoonist In National Magazine

Davis awarded the bond to Bobby at a ceremony held at St. Mary's School in West Quincy. At the ceremony, Davis said, "The judging wasn't easy. We couldn't get over how original and creative the kids were.

"There were many terrific entries to choose from," he said.

In his entry, Bobby wrote, "Max is friendly. He can't fly, so he rides his skateboard."

During his visit to Quincy, Davis was made an honorary citizen by Mayor Francis McCauley, who also praised Bobby for his great accomplishment.

Bobby said he got the idea for "Max" from his dog, who prefers expensive food, and his parrot, also named Max, who doesn't fly. He said he wants to be a veterinarian when he grows up--or maybe a cartoonist.

Excel Bancorp Announces First Quarter Earnings

Excel Bancorp, Inc. and its operating subsidiary, Quincy Savings Bank, produced net income of $1.6 million, or 24 cents per share for the first quarter ended March 31, 1988.

Net income for the first quarter 1987 was $3.3 million or 47 cents per share.

The decline in earnings was anticipated and was attributed to reduced gains on sales of mortgages and investments, to changes in the accounting rules for recognition of loan fees and to a lower volume of mortgage loan originations.

As of March 31, 1988 total assets equalled $640.8 million, a 10.3 per cent increase over the $580.8 million reported at March 31, 1987. Total deposits of $481.8 million represented an increase of $54.7 million from the same period last year.

"We expect the market for mortgage loan originations to continue to be slower than last year," stated Charles A. Pearce, chairman and CEO. "Our adherence to strict underwriting standards will place the company in a conservative growth mode throughout the year."

Toland Urges Increased Funding For Vocational Education

City Council President Patricia Toland has called for increased funding of vocational education and training to prepare young people to work on two major projects in Massachusetts.

Toland stated, "After attending an extremely informative meeting at Quincy Vocational Technical School on the subject of the depression of the Central Artery and the building of the third harbor tunnel, I am convinced that we must begin planning now to train Quincy citizens to fill the jobs which will be needed to complete this $10 million project."

Jessica Rom of Bechtel-Parsons & Brinckerhoff, the firm which is managing the design and construction of this project, noted that the 10-year effort will employ 1400 laborers, 400 cement masons, 700 carpenters and 700 iron workers.

She said that unions in this area are recruiting now for apprenticeship programs to prepare people to assume these positions.

"We must work with parents and students to increase their awareness of the exciting job opportunities available to them in the next 10 years," Toland urged.

In addition, said Toland, the project must comply with federal guidelines to employ females, minorities and the disadvantaged. "We must not miss this golden opportunity to encourage girls to train at Quincy Vocational-Technical School for the variety of jobs which will await them upon graduation," Toland added.

"Everyone is pleased that the work on the Central Artery and the third harbor tunnel will reduce congestion, save travel time and reduce the highest accident rate of any urban expressway in the United States. We should be as pleased that a project funded 90 percent by the Highway Trust Fund will provide a whole generation of Massachusetts residents a head start on careers that will make them productive members of this growing economy.

"But we must begin now to increase funding for vocational training throughout Massachusetts and to provide information and awareness to students and parents so that appropriate career decisions can be made.

"Let us use this money to invest in the future for citizens of Quincy as well as for the benefit of Massachusetts."

'100 Years Togetherness, Happiness

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

To Anne and Jack Klaver of Merrymount, family togetherness has been more than just a phrase during their 50 years of marriage.

For the Klavers shared their wedding day with another couple, his sister and her brother, Beatrice and Eliot Rosen, who were also married April 10, 1938 in a double ceremony.

The couples went on their honeymoons together in Boston, and then lived for five years with Mrs. Klaver's parents, Sarah and Samuel Rosen, of Whitman.

They have remained close over the years, and celebrated their golden anniversary together recently.

"We were married 50 years ago, and it seems like yesterday," said Klaver.

He explained that his and his wife's fathers had been friends in Europe before they came to this country.

The Klavers settled in New York and the Rosens in Whitman, and they kept up their friendship as their families grew.

"Beatrice Rosen used to spend summers with us," said Mrs. Klaver.

"Then she fell in love with my brother."

Mrs. Klaver knew her husband-to-be for about six years before they were married.

'Adequate,' McCauley Says

Concerns Over Police Protection

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday that the city is receiving adequate police protection despite concerns expressed at Monday night's meeting of the City Council's Public Safety Committee.

The concerns regarded an apparent problem with manning 13 patrol cars and five walking beats, and were expressed by councillors as well as the head of a Quincy Police union.

"I've never seen a bigger mess on the streets than now," said Paul Quinn, president of the Quincy Police Betterment Association.

"Like any department occasional shortfalls occur," said McCauley.

"But we just added 10 new police officers last week.

"Four should be ready to go out on the streets next week," said McCauley. "The other six are attending the police academy and should be on the streets this summer."

The mayor said that the personal services budget for the police department, which includes salaries and overtime, has risen 34 percent since 1984 when $6,870,000 was allocated.

The 1989 budget for personal services is $9,173,000 he said.

In addition, the police current expenses budget, for such things as supplies and the cost of running the police station, has risen 21 percent, from $415,000 in 1984 to $502,000 in 1989, McCauley said.

At Monday night's meeting, Police Chief Francis Finn said he is operating his department under strict budget constraints.

"The mayor said we couldn't overrun our budget," said Finn.

"We've tightened our grip on the budget considerably. There isn't any danger.

"We have to curtail slightly some services to stay within the budget.

"So far they have been reasonable."

Finn said that he asked the mayor recently if he would consider a supplemental budget request from the police department.

"He said no," said Finn. "I know from the mayor there is no more money."

Finn said he preferred not to disclose where services have been somewhat curtailed because that could endanger citizens.

Councillor Michael Cheney said police officers responding to calls are not being given enough information, and that a computer program should be brought on line.

"I have the greatest admiration for the Quincy Police Department," said Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley.

Nutley also said the department should crack down on public drinking.

"It's time to do more than tell the kids to move along," he said.

"The department does a good job with the funds it has," agreed Councillor at

$22 Million Project

Remick's-Lerner's Being Transformed Into Hancock Plaza

When the $22 million Hancock Plaza is completed at the site of the old Remick's and Lerner Buildings in Quincy Sq. in the spring of 1989, it will look familiar to residents on the outside but completely different on the inside.

"From the outside, it will look the same," said Michael Kenealy of Key Realty, which is marketing the 150,000 square foot project.

"But the building is going to be brand new on the inside," he said.

According to Kenealy, the inside of the building has just about been gutted.

When construction is completed, there will be 50,000 square feet of retail space and 100,000 square feet of office space, he said.

The retail space, on levels 1 and 2, could be rented to specialty stores and a family clothing store, Kenealy said. "They will be upscale stores," he said.

The office space, on levels 3, 4 and 5, could include a floor of doctors' offices, said Kenealy. Pricing for the units has not yet been confirmed.

A four-story atrium with multi-level waterfall will be located in the main lobby between the Lerner (Clivedon) and Remick's buildings.

Entrances will be on Clivedon, Hancock and Parkingway, he said, and

$1,914,560 In Excise Tax Bills

Just when you thought it was safe to go to your mailbox, the city has another bill for you.

About 40,000 excise tax bills for motor vehicles went into the mail Monday, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

The bills, which total $1,914,560, will be due June 2, McCauley said.

"We are urging all residents to pay the bills as soon as possible," he said.

McCauley also urged residents to pay any outstanding real estate, water, or other bills.

Excise tax bills go out at several times during the year, but this is the major billing, he said.

Health Topic For QCA

The Quincy Citizens Association was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. at the Montclair Men's Club, Holbrook Rd.

Bonnie Seely, registered pharmacist, was to discuss "Our Health" and how to protect it, through the correct use of medicines, daily activities and positive mental outlook.

She was associated with Presidents Pharmacy for 10 years, and is the new owner of Blackwood Pharmacy, Wollaston Center.

Association members as well as other Quincy residents were invited to attend.

Board Urges Crackdown On Fraudulent ID Cards

By KRISTINE STRENGE

The City's License Board will urge the Speaker of the House and other state legislators to pass tougher laws on youths who try to obtain liquor identification cards.

City Clerk John Gillis, said as chairman of the License Board he will write a letter to Sen. William Bulger, House Speaker George Keverian and State Reps. Michael Morrissey and Robert Cerasoli.

Tuesday at a License Board meeting Sgt. Richard Laracy, Liquor Inspector, brought to the attention of the board members what he thinks as the most serious problem that he has as the liquor inspector and representative of the Licensing Board.

"That problem is the easy accessibility of liquor ID cards. Massachusetts ID cards and duplicate licenses to young people under 21 years of age," Laracy said.

Over the past 10 months Laracy has been investigating the problem in Quincy. Over that time, he has encountered and has the documentive proof that 80 percent of the forms of identification used to get in liquor establishments are fraudulent and are presented by people under 21 years of age.

In a police report given to the board Laracy stated: "They have a liquor ID card and a duplicate license with their picture on it but the information (names, address, Social Security number, date of birth of another, usually a friend or member of them family."

The fraudulent ID's are easily obtained from the Registry of Motor Vehicles because only three forms are needed for identification, many of which do not require a picture on it.

According to the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission, acceptable documents without pictures include, a birth certificate, bank book, W-2 forms, lease or loan papers.

Laracy said he spoke with the legal department of the Registry of Motor Vehicles and was told that they issue liquor ID cards, Mass ID cards and duplicate licenses in good faith according to Massachusetts law, although it may be inadequate, it is the law and until it is changed they will continue to issue them under the present guidelines."

Laracy said he does not put any of the blame on the Registry. The clerks do a very good job at questioning the people but their hands are tied. If the proper ID is presented, the right questions are answered and the computer comes back with the information presented, although it doesn't belong to the presenter, an ID is issued, he said.

Laracy has requested many Quincy liquor establishments not to accept any form of identification except a valid Massachusetts drivers license.

"I have talked to all the liquor establishments and they would welcome an order telling them not to honor these forms of ID's but there are still some that are going to accept them because there is money to be made."

The establishments cannot be held responsible because of a state chapter which allows any liquor establishment who relies on a liquor ID or motor vehicle license for proof of age, not suffer any modification, suspension, revocation or cancellation of its liquor license.

Laracy has also found that it is hard to fight the problem in the courts.

"I went to the court. They take it kind of lightly over there. They are crowded," he said.

"In my opinion, and the opinions of all the police officers I have talked to, liquor ID's are a joke and a new guideline should be imposed for obtaining them."

Board Accepts Guidelines One Day Liquor Permits

The city's License Board voted Tuesday to accept guidelines for a one day all alcoholic license written by Sgt. Richard Laracy, Liquor Inspector.

The guidelines will be issued with the license according to City Clerk, John Gillis, also board chairman.

Laracy said the guidelines were made because many people who receive a one day all alcoholic license don't know the laws.

The guidelines include:

- Absolutely under no circumstances should any liquor be served to anyone under 21 years old.
- No more than two drinks can be served to anyone at any one time.
- An assigned, uniformed Quincy police officer must be in attendance during hours of the license.
- No drinks can be taken off the premises at any time.
- It is recommended that no drink containing a combination of four or more liquors be served.
- Do not run any raffle or lottery without the proper permit and under no circumstances can alcohol be used as a prize if a permit is obtained.
- The only acceptable form of identification as to proof of age is a valid Massachusetts original driver's license. All other forms, such as Massachusetts ID's, Massachusetts liquor cards, duplicate driver's licenses are not acceptable, if there is a question of age.

License Board Briefs

The city's License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall.

- Granted a request from Richard C. Barrett to serve Bloody Mary's and Mamosa's during Sunday brunch at 11 a.m. at Amelia's Restaurant, North Quincy.
- Continued until June 7a hearing regarding Sagamore Grille, 78A & B Sagamore St., Quincy, concerning a police report.
- Placed on file a request from Quincy Cab Company for four additional hackney permits. City Clerk John Gillis, also board chairman, said there were no permits available at this time.
- Requested that Kelly's Pub and Grub, Billings Rd. appear before the board May 17 regarding alleged building violations found by Mathias J. Mulvey, Building Inspector.

McGrath Supports $2 Billion Bond Issue For Harbor Cleanup

Councillor Stephen McGrath has written to Rep. Emmett Hayes (D-Whitman) indicating his support of the representative's proposal for a $2 billion bond issue to help pay for the cost of the Boston Harbor cleanup.

"It is totally absurd to expect the 43 communities in the M.W.R.A. district to foot the entire bill for the Boston Harbor cleanup," said McGrath.

"The City Council was able this year to protect the citizens of Quincy from separate billing for sewer use this year, but the city budget will absorb this cost at almost $4 million."

"Boston Harbor is a major resource, not only of the M.W.R.A. but of the entire Commonwealth.

"Accordingly, the commonwealth has an obligation to assist in the cleanup cost," said McGrath.

"I applaud your efforts to solve this problem and would appreciate being notified should this be the subject of a legislative hearing."

Sheets For Mayor?

Why didn't Jim Sheets run for the vacant state representative seat in the Second Norfolk District?

Some political observers were sure he would jump into the race when a good chunk of his Ward 4 was shifted into that district when it was redistricted. It would give him a strong base to operate from.

SHEETS

But at this week's filing deadline for nomination papers there were none from Sheets. He never took them out.

Why didn't he run?

The speculation is that he is interested in another office: mayor.

In fact, friends of his report he has told them he will run for mayor -- next year.

He almost ran in 1981 the year Frank McCauley was elected but decided against it because of family reasons.

If he actually does run next year it could mean a real mayoral battle royal.

Councillor Steve McGrath is expected to make a run for it. Former Mayor Joseph LaRaia who came within a 460 vote whisker of winning back the mayor's office last year, will probably take another crack at it in 1989.

And, McCauley may decide to try for a fifth term. He'll make that decision in January.

Could be a real interesting year.

SEEMS TO BE some new life in the Republican party in Quincy this year.

Three Republicans are ready to take on the Democrats and two of them one another.

Denis Iardo, president of the Quincy Tenant Organization, and Richard Harris, a Quincy school teacher seek the Republican nomination for state representative in the Second Norfolk District.

IARDO

They will battle one another to see who faces one of the three Democrats (Steve Durkin, Patricia Toland, Steve Tobin) in the November final election.

The seat was vacated by Thomas Brownell, a Democrat, to become associate justice of Plymouth District Court.

McDUFF

The third Republican, John McDuff, Jr., president of the Quincy Animal League, will try to unseat Democrat incumbent Rep. Robert Cerasoli in the Third Norfolk District.

The Republicans left Rep. Michael Morrissey unchallenged in the First Norfolk District.

But it's a healthy sign that at least three Republicans decided to run instead of letting two of the seats go by forfeit.

Democrats still far outnumber Republicans in Quincy. In fact there are more Democrats in Quincy than Republicans and Independents put together. Democrats 28,338, Independents 10,471, Republicans 6,042.

Up until the early 1950's, this was elephant land with the GOP far outnumbering Democrats. Then came John F. Kennedy and the political power switched.

Republicans have their work cut out in providing a challenge to Democrats. But they have taken a step in the right direction -- especially Iardo, Harris and McDuff.

The worst thing that can happen to a city or state is to have one party control most -- if not all -- of the elective offices while the other party sits around and does nothing about it.

The odds are against Iardo, Harris and McDuff but they deserve a tip of the hat for getting in and trying rather than let their party toss in the towel.

'100 Years' Of Real Togetherness, Happiness

"He was so good and honest and had a wonderful sense of humor," she said. "I admired all those things."

"She had a very good sense of humor as well," said Klaver.

The two couples decided to get married in a wedding at the Rosen's home.

"We were so used to doing everything together, it seemed natural," said Mrs. Klaver.

Beatrice and Eliot were 18 and 20, respectively, Ann and Jack were 23 and 25.

"We did all the preparation for the wedding ourself. Beatrice and I made pastries, turkeys, chickens," she said.

"We invited all of our relatives and friends. There must have been 200 people.

"We may not have had a lot of money, but we had a lot of love.

"It was a beautiful day."

The couples eventually went out on their own and raised their families.

The Klavers, who moved to Quincy almost 30 years ago, have three sons. Paul, now 45, of Waltham, Herbert, 42, of Brookline, and Samuel, 34 of New York.

When the boys were growing up, Mrs. Klaver's mother lived with the family and they were raised to have respect for old age, she said.

The Rosens, of Halifax, have a son and a daughter. Mrs. Rosen was seriously injured in a car accident seven years ago.

"We always got along well," said Mrs. Klaver of the two couples.

That describes her relationship with her husband as well.

"I can't remember us ever having a fight," said Mrs. Klaver who is described by her husband as a peace maker.

"We have disagreements, but we talk it out."

A common bond between them is their religion. Orthodox Jews, they are active members of Beth Israel Synagogue, Quincy Point.

Klaver has been president of the congregation for about 20 years. Mrs. Klaver has been president of the Women's Council for about 12 years.

Their children attended Hebrew School.

In their younger days, the family would walk the two miles on Saturdays, the Sabbath, to the synagogue.

For health reasons Klaver retired eight or nine years ago from S. Blechner Co., Quincy, where he was a bookkeeper and general office worker.

Prior to that he worked on Wall St., operated a furniture store in Mansfield, was a partner in The Rosen Furniture Business for 20 years, and also worked at the Hingham Shipyard.

He loves to read, particularly religious books according to his wife. He would love to visit Israel.

Mrs. Klaver, who worked in a fabric store the first year she was married, enjoys cooking and tending to her house plants, including a impressive collection of African violets.

The Klavers say their days are not long enough for all that they would like to do.

But there is always time for family.

"Every Sunday is family day," said Mrs. Klaver.

Klaver emphasized how much parents appreciate hearing from their children.

"A telephone call can make a whole day," he said.

Respect and love are important in a marriage according to Mr. Klaver.

So are patience and understanding, said Mr. Klaver.

"You make the best of things," she said. "You accepts me for who I am."

"Who is rich? He who is content."

"We're rich because we are satisfied."

"As long as you have your belaht, what else matters?"

"That's being rich."

6 City Employees To Be Honored May 12

This ceremony will recognize six City of Quincy employees who have been selected to be honored under the employee recognition program.

The program was instituted by Mayor McCauley to periodically give recognition to dedicated and loyal municipal employees whose service to the City of Quincy is outstanding and consistently exceeds what the job description requires.

Recipients of the 1988 awards come from Quincy City Hospital, Planning Department, Police Department, School Department, Auditors, and Public Works Department.

As an elderly outreach worker she makes home visits to shut-ins, provides medical transportation, assists with health insurance forms, and real estate abatements. She works in the Houghs Neck section and has been described as "Not a worker with the elderly, but as a friend of the elderly." A widow, she has four children, John, Thomas and Theresa O'Connor and Lisa Martec.

Noted for her outstanding record keeping and attention to detail, she deals with both active and retired city employees. Her complete knowledge of complicated pension forms, health plans or savings bond programs, makes her a constant resource to all city personnel. Although her work requires much detail, she always takes time with each individual, putting their needs before her own. She and her husband, Edward, have two children and four grandchildren.

• William Wright, Huckins Ave., Squantum, a working foreman in the Sewer, Water and Drain Department. Employed for 10 years, he is cited for his outstanding diligence to public service, in a department that is called to many emergency situations which occur at all hours. He and his wife, Veronica, have a daughter, Ann.

There are approximately 3500 persons employed by the City of Quincy. There have been 30 previous winners, with this year's awards.

Quincy, Braintree Reject T Extension

May 5-11 1948 40 Years Ago

Voters of Quincy and Braintree overwhelmingly rejected a proposal to extend Metropolitan Transit Authority rapid transit lines to the South Shore. Balloting in a special referendum was 11,463 to 1,909 against the proposal.

"The people have plainly said that they do not want MTA transit service and it is now up to the special commission to bring in something better," said Quincy Mayor Charles A. Ross.

MTA Chairman Carroll L. Meins explained to a public hearing at City Hall a plan under which Quincy and Braintree would shoulder the entire deficit for South Shore commuters boarding trains at their stations.

He said fares from Norfolk Downs and Wollaston stations would be set at 15 cents, Quincy and Quincy Adams stations at 20 cents and Braintree station at 25 cents.

Charged Rep. Avery W. Gilkerson (R-Quincy): "Recognizing the fact that Mr. Meins was formerly a distinguished Boston politician, isn't this whole proposition a part of your plan to bring Quincy into Boston?"

Do Ahead Potatoes

Anita's Way

As we were walking to church last Sunday, my sister-in-law Anita told me about a new recipe she had for mashed potatoes. Later in the day I called and got it over the phone and tried it. It's called do-ahead potatoes and means just that. Either they can be done immediately or fixed before hand and refrigerated until baking time.

DO-AHEAD POTATOES, ANITA'S WAY

About 4-5 potatoes
depending on how much you usually prepare.
Small container of sour cream
Small package of cream cheese
Salt & peper to taste

Boil and mash potatoes as usual. Then add the rest of the ingredients. Mix well until fluffy. Dot the top with either butter or margerine and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 25 minutes. Serve hot with any kind of meat or fish. I sprinkled the top with fresh parsley for color.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at That's Italian, Franklin St., South Quincy; Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point , Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

They're At It Again

It's that time of year, once again, when the infamous "driveway sealer con" is pulled on many unsuspecting senior citizens.

There have been several reports of this con being used in Quincy already. At this time these con-artists are working in the Elm Ave. area. In one case a senior citizen was bilked out of $2500 dollars.

Typically these unscrupulous individuals work out of the back of a pick up truck. They will come to your door and offer to seal your driveway "cheap" because they were just in the neighborhood and had some materials left over. The sad part of this is that they are coating your driveway with motor oil which only ruins the driveway.

If you want your driveway sealed use a reputable contractor. Try to find someone that will give you references of satisfied customers and check those references out.

Get several estimates. Most contractors offer free estimates.

Don't give the contractor all of the money until the job is done and your satisfied with it. Above all -- Don't Do Business with Door to Door Contractors! The contracting business is very good at this time and most legitimate contractors do not have to go door to door to get more business.

If you are approached by any of these con-artists, call the Quincy Police immediately.

"McGruff on Strangers" program is still available. If you are a Quincy group and want to have this program presented to a group of youngsters, forward your request to Chief Francis X. Finn, Quincy Police Dept., 442 Southern Artery, Quincy, Mass. 02169. You will be contacted about a date and time for the program.

South Shore Bank Launches Scholarship Program

The program is indicative of South Shore Bank's continuous commitment to be actively involved in the communities that it serves, Paul S. O'Reilly, vice president and marketing director, noted. "As a community bank, we wanted to give something back to the communities that we serve. Since we see these students as the future of the South Shore community, we wanted to help promote their education."

Information about the "our Best To You" Scholarship Program and applications are available at any South Shore Bank office. Applications must be received on or before May 7, 1988.

Mayor 'Disappointed' On Litter Ordinance Defeat

Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday he was "very disappointed" that the City Council defeated his proposal which would have required property owners keep up their property and adjacent area clean or face warnings and then a fine of up to $100.

"It was a proposal to update the ordinances on the books to the current period," McCauley said.

But the council didn't see it that way Monday night as it questioned enforcement and other factors.

"We're getting into something we really can't control," said Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro.

"We should try to educate people rather than talk about fining them."

Council president Patricia Toland said that a $100 fine was too high, and proposed that it be lowered to $25 for a first offense, $50 for the second, and $75 for the third.

She also questioned who would enforce the ordinance.

Ordinance Committee chairman Michael Cheney said that future mayors could abuse the ordinance.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley said he would support the proposal "if they would go after the large chronic offenders, rather than residential owners."

"The city is attempting to make people do what the city should do," said Councillor at Large Stephen McGrath.

"I don't think this solution is any solution at all."

He and DeCristofaro said that the city has a mechanism for dealing with litterers through the Health Department and Board.

McCauley said he had no plans to resubmit the proposal.

Another of the mayor's proposals requiring no smoking sections and air cleaning devices in restaurants, remained in the Ordinance Committee.

SADD Rally Held At Quincy Vo-Tech

A student rally sponsored by Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) was held Monday at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

The rally launched SADD Week with a proclamation from Mayor Francis X. McCauley, and featured hundreds of students from the vocational school and Quincy High School.

"Given the statistics of teenage deaths and the recent study that reported that automobile accidents are the number one killer of young men between the ages of 17 and 25, it is imperative that we constantly raise consciousness about drinking and driving," said Quincy Vo-Tech Director Joseph Mazzarella.

Former New England Patriot player James Nance was the keynote speaker at the rally.

Robert Trott, SADD faculty advisor, announced three limousines have been provided by Authentic Limo, Weymouth, at a special discount for the prom. "We are determined to ensure that all students are safe, that accidents do not occur, and that we are not forced as a community to witness the death of a teenager," he said.

Also participating in education programs during SADD Week are a group of emergency room nurses who comprise an organization called - Cancel Alcohol Related Injuries (CARE).

James A. Gilmore, 45

Former Poster Child For March Of Dimes Polio Fund

A funeral Mass for James A. Gilmore, 45, a lifelong Quincy resident and once a national poster child for the March of Dimes Polio Fund, was celebrated April 30 at St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point.

Mr. Gilmore died April 27 at his home after a long illness.

He left his work as manager of the former W. T. Grants Store, Weymouth, when he became blind. He later graduated magna cum laude with an associate's degree from Massasoit Community College.

In a 1977 Patriot Ledger article, Mr. Gilmore said of his blindness, "Initially losing my sight was, of course, traumatic. Mothers are for warm bottles and extra blankets and patty-cake and finding pacifiers ... Mothers are for holding hands and kissing bumps and turning off a night light and waving bye-bye ... Mothers are for picking up pajamas and finding shoes and packing lunches ... Mothers are for letting down hems and sewing on buttons and athletic letters ... Mothers are for saying no and saying yes and saying we'll see and ask your father ... Mothers are for going away from and going home to and slamming doors on and looking for ... Mothers are for remembering birthdays and anniversaries ... Mothers are for crying at weddings and remembering to pay the caterer and thank the in-laws and dance with the bridegroom ... 'Mother's Day And Peace Sunday' At Bethany Congregational

In 1870 when Julia Ward Howe first conceived of a special day to honor mothers, she proposed that it be "a day of celebrating motherhood as that which cherishes and protects all human life, decrying violence and war."

The entire worship is designed to recapture the original intent of Mother's Day by celebrating life and peace.

There will be two services Sunday, May 8, in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon "Blessed Are The Peacemakers" based on texts from the Gospel of Matthew 5:1-10 and from the Old Testament, Micah 4:1-5.

The lay scripture readers will be Barbara Miller at the chapel service and Marsha Archer in the sanctuary. The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist at both hours leading the congregation in "A Litany for World Peace."

During the 10 a.m. service, under the direction of organist Peter F. Krasinski, the Chancel Choir augmented by women from the Bethany Mother's Club, will sing as the anthem, "The Prayer of St. Francis" and as the offertory, "Let There Be Peace On Earth."

The Bethany Folksingers, led by guitarist Tora Fernald Huntington, will sing "Walls and Windows" composed by Judy Small and Pat Humphries. The folksingers will also lead the congregation in singing the spiritual, "I Ain't'a Gonna Study War No more."

The 10 a.m. worship service will be broadcast "live" direct from Bethany's sanctuary over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through 8th grade. Nursery care for babies and toddlers is also provided.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour with light refreshments in the Allen Parlor.

In connection with the theme an "Arts For Peace" show is being held with entries from members and friends of Bethany being on exhibit in the parish house beginning Sunday, May 8 through May 15. The public is welcome to view the show.

Individuals and groups including children, have submitted a wide variety of art forms expressing their desire for a peaceful world. The members of the Arts for Peace Committee, arranging the show, are Joan Arnold, chairman, Lisa Coolidge, Helene Crofts, Margaret Fernald, Lena Foster, Tora Huntington, Linda Nicholson and Ron Rivera.

Tobin Receives McIntyre Award At Law Day

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

At a filled courtroom in Quincy District Court Friday morning, Clerk Magistrate Arthur H. Tobin was presented the James R. McIntyre Award for distinguished service.

The award, presented by Atty. Barry Reed, author of "The Verdict," was among a number given during the annual Law Day ceremonies held for two hours at the court.

Tobin's award was "in recognition of selfless contribution on behalf of the citizens of Quincy in upholding the ideals and goals exemplified by the late James R. McIntyre, former mayor-senator."

"I think you know how special this is to me because of who this award is named after," said Tobin, with emotion in his voice.

"He was my mentor, my colleague and my friend."

However, Tobin opted to give the award to another person, his wife, Shirley.

"In my approximately 25 years of public service, there was someone else who was very close to James McIntyre. He was extremely fond of her."

"Down through the years, she seemed to always take a back seat, she just took care of all the problems in the family.

"I think perhaps she deserves this award more than I do," he said.

"He's right," said Mrs. Tobin with a smile as she thanked him for the award.

"I should have known she'd upstage me," said Tobin.

In addition to presenting the award to Tobin, a long-time friend, Reed gave the law day address on the meaning of law to young people.

He told young people at the ceremony that they were "the vitality of the country" and urged them to consider more than one career, as did such notables as Anton Chekhov, Jack London and Amelia Earhart.

Reed also talked about the Japanese relocation camps during World War II.

A native of California, Reed said with emotion that after his high school graduation, half of the students went into the army and the other half went to concentration camps because of the war with the Japanese.

When one of the Japanese charged that he had not been given due process under the law, the Supreme Court ruled 6 to 3 that the Japanese were not entitled to due process, according to Reed.

"Young people, you are the hope of the court," said Reed. "You will be the judges."

Assistant Clerk Robert Bloom delivered some humorous remarks, then noted the improvements Tobin has made to the courthouse building and its procedures.

"He has always treated us with the utmost respect and consideration," said Bloom. "Arthur Tobin is our man of the year."

A framed print of "Clamming at Quincy Bay" was presented to Tobin on behalf of the assistant clerks.

Presiding Justice Albert Kramer congratulated all the recipients and presented the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Award to Stephen Valle, Sc.D., of Valle Associates, Inc.

The Jason Feldman Special Citizen Award was presented by Judge George Ciss to Richard S. Makman, M.D., and Joan R. Katz, MSW, Inc.'s.

"I've known them both for many years," said Mrs. Feldman. "They are very caring and dedicated people."

Recipient of the Alfred P. Maloney Award was Supreme Court Judge Robert Prince, former presiding justice at Quincy District Court.

Prince was not able to attend the ceremony but Judge Lewis Whitman commented that "Al Maloney would be pleased" with the choice of a recipient.

Carrie Card of the Woodward School for Girls was Quincy's award winner in the Dennis F. Ryan Essay Contest on whether or not children should be tried as adults.

It was presented by Dennis Ryan's son, Atty. Christopher Ryan.

Officer Stephen D. Marrin of the Quincy Police Department was one of seven recipients of the Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement.

It was presented by Dana's widow, Charlotte, a Metropolitan Police officer.

Mrs. Kevin Murphy, widow of the Metropolitan Police officer who was killed in an automobile accident Dec. 31, 1987 at age 31, received an award honoring her husband.

Frustrating Week For North

The North Quincy baseball team, which has found the going rough, won't put in a more frustrating week than it did last week.

Leo Donovan's Raiders, who fell to 3-8, opened the week by losing, 5-3, to Brookline. They followed up with a heart-breaking 6-5 extra-inning loss to Brockton and last Friday dropped a last-inning 5-4 squeaker to Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

North faced Newton North yesterday (Wednesday) will play at Waltham Friday at 4 p.m. and will meet Quincy Monday at Adams Field at 4 p.m.

"We lost three really tough decisions," Donovan said. "We had the lead in every game and the boys went all out but to no avail. They played excellent games and it was a shame they had to lose all three games."

The Raiders led Cambridge, 4-0, last Friday but Cambridge made it 4-2 on a two-run homer in the fourth and added an unearned run in the fifth.

In the bottom of the seventh with two men on the North outfielder slipped and fell on the wet grass and both runners scored on the hit to win it.

Mark DiMattio pitched his first game since a pre-season injury and went all the way, allowing six hits, striking out four and walking three.

Tony Anderlions had two hits and Mike Walsh and Eric DeBoer contributed doubles. North scored two runs on sacrifice flies.

The raiders twice overcame two-run deficits against Brockton in an extra-inning game, but the Boxers scored on an infield out in the eighth inning to win it.

North tied the game at 1-1 on Anderlions RBI single and in the third Anderlions drove in Jim Glenn and DiMattio with a double.

Brockton scored twice in the fourth but in the fifgth North put together four walks and singles by Anderlions, who went three-for-four with four RBI, and Jeff Calvert to tie the score at 5-5.

--TOM SULLIVAN

CLAIRE McCARTHY, left, and Diane Kelly, both of Quincy, members of the Swogjan Synchronized Swim Club of Norwell, have qualified for the national meet. They placed third in the 13-14 year old duet competition with a score of 63.04 and, together with Laura Furman of Scituate, won in the 13-14 trio event. Their score was 60.84.

Quincy Drubbed By Waltham

Quincy baseball coach Bob Sylvia said he thought Waltham was the top team in the Suburban league this year and last week this opinion was borne out as the Hawks handed the Presidents their worst defeat, 13-6, dropping Quincy's record to 6-4.

Quincy was idle last Friday and its game with Brookline Monday was postponed by rain and cold weather. The Presidents played at Brockton yesterday (Wednesday) will host Cambridge and Rindge and Latin Friday at 4 p.m. at Adams Field and will meet North Quincy Monday at 4 p.m. at Adams.

Walthm collected 13 hits to support pitcher Walter Johnson last Friday.

Dan Biagtini hit a two-run homer for Quincy, but Jim Dennis, losing his first decision after three victories, was unable to halt the Waltham bats.

Third Annual JFK Regatta On Memorial Day Weekend

The third annual John F. Kennedy Regatta, a classic sailing event pitting vessels of all types against each other, will take place Memorial Day weekdn. May 28-29, at Marina Bay in North Quincy.

The two-day regatta will feature well over 100 IMS & PHRF as well as One-Design sailing vessels.

The Skippers Reception will kick off the race Friday evening, May 27 at the John F. Kennedy Library. After a full day of sailing on Saturday, an outdoor BBQ and dance for the skippers, their crew, welcomed spectators and guests will be held under the tents at Marina Bay.

Skippers and crews will start the final day of sailing with a complimentary breakfast at 7 a.m. at Marina Bay.

The event will close Sunday evening with the presentation of the Perpetual Trophy as well as keeper prizes for the top three finishers in each sailing category.

Last year's successful race had with over 100 PHRF's and 45 One-Design boats entering the competition. This year's field promises to double.

Despite the 53 degree temperature and a wind chill factor of 40 degrees, last year, the competition was stiff and the race course challenging.

"It is our hope with each passing year that the John F. Kennedy Regatta will be the sailing event for Memorial Day weekend," said Peter O'Connell, the developer of Marina Bay.

The JFK Regatta is a tribute to John Fitzgerald Kennedy's love of the sea, his constant drive for excellence and his intense competitive spirit.

"Marina Bay is proud to sponsor the 3rd Annual J.F.K. Regatta and is dedicated to instilling the rich sense of spirit that captures all that John F. Kennedy represented," O'Connell said. "It is Marina Bay's hope that the J.F.K. Regatta will find a life-long home here, with a regatta more richly steeped in tradition with each passing year."

Central Edges Beechwood For City Championship

The Quincy Recreation all-city basketball championship game in the Senior High Division had on paper all the ingredients for a great game.

Both Central and Beechwood Knoll were undefeated in league play. Beechwood was defending champion for the past two years. Central was the number one seed in the nine team tournament. Beechwood was number two seed.

The opposing coaches were from the same family. Rick Radzik is the long time Beechwood coach, sister Nancy is married to Brian Buckley, the coach of Central. Family dinner bragging rights were up for grabs. In the end neither players didn't disappoint.

Central broke a 46-46 fourth quarter tie to defeat Beechwood, 64-60, in an action packed, well played championship that was a credit to the players on both teams.

Beechwood jumped to 17-12 first quarter lead behind Joe Mulvey's 10 first period points. Mulvey finished with 16. Leading scorer for Beechwood was Kevin Duffy who had 17. 15 coming into the pressure packed second half. Jamie Greene had 10 to round out the Beechie scorers in double figures. Brother Jackie also scored well with 7 first half points. Mike Danick had four while Danny McDonald had three on a third period three point play and Steve Briere made use of the three point line for his three pointer.

The Central team also had three players in double figures. Dan McLaughlin topped all scorers with 19, while brother Peter had 14. Dan did the bulk of his scoring in the second half, tossing in 13 of his 19 while Peter had 10 of his 14 in the second half. Rich Keddy, had 10 first half points and 2 third period points for his 12. Six others scored for Central. Kevin O'Brien had six, Brian Higgins and Craig four, Joe Gately and Anthony Ragnetta two each, while Kevin Roach rounded out the scoring with a fourth period free throw.

Beechwood coach Rick Radzik also got strong floor games from Joe McDonald, Danny Steele and Chris Nelson. Coach Brian Buckley had praise for Kevin Roach, Mark Lindentelzer, Brian Higgins and Joe Gately who came off the bench to spark a Central rally that turned an 11 point second period deficit into a two point halftime lead.

The senior all-city championship is made up of nine teams from supervised recreation programs in all areas of the city. Participants are in grades 9, 10, 11 or 12th and cannot have played on high school varsity basketball teams. The tournament concludes the Quincy Recreation Department 23 week winter Recreation Program.

At the conclusion of the tournament recreation commissioner Howard Crowley joined Recreation Director Barry J. Welch in awarding Achievement Awards to the finalist's Beechwood Knoll team, the coaches and players are: Joe Mulvey, Joe Foley, Kevin Duffy, Danny McDonald, Dave Murphy, Mike Danick, Steve Briere, Paul Murphy, Danny Steele, Jamie Greene, Jackie Greene, Joe McDonald, Chris Nelson, Mike Connor and Coach Jack Kelly assisted by Rick Radzik.

Shaughnessy Shines At Curry

The Curry College baseball team has five regulars hitting over .400, but a lack of pitching depth has caused problems and the Colonels were only 3-6 after nine games.

Quincy's Bill Shaughnessy can't be faulted as he is 1-2 pitching, losing tough decisions, and is batting .448, playing shortstop when not pitching. He has been the team's most effective pitcher and in his latest game went all the way in a 15-3 win over Anna Maria.

Wilson Memorial Games Success But Not For Executive Team

The fifth Quincy Youth Hockey Scholarship games recently played in memory of former Quincy Executive League goalie Dick Wilson was a financial success, but the Executive League has yet to win a game.

In the first game the Weymouth Pops edged the Executive League B team, 5-4. The Quincy goals were scored by Paul O'Brien, Steve DiMent, Skip Manganaro and Art Boyle.

Also playing for the Execs were Ralph and Rich Gibbs, Artie Boyle, Mark Matanes, Joe Verlieco, Larry O'Connor, Tom O'Connor, Stan Lizowski, Bill Lewis, Al Gullickson, Joe Keating and Bill Parsley.

In the second game the Senior League all-stars had little trouble rolling over the older Executive League A team, proving the old adage that experience can beat youth is not true in hockey. The young Seniors (under 30) won the game easily and it was agreed that next year's format will be changed to intersperse the seniors with the Execs.

Playing for the Executive League were Mark and Kevin Iago, John Ryan, Bobby Sheehan, Jack Aldred, Dennis Bertoni, Jay Powers, Peter Janis, Bill Shea, Jim Connolly, Rick Patton, Chip Linscott, and buss goalies Chuck Hughes and Bob Goodman.

The Senior League players were Capt. Jim Moore, Jim Fitzpatrick, Frank McGinnis, Dave Hickey, Brian Ward, Rick Igo, Fred Palmer, Eddie Kane, Glen Ferguson, P.J. Hussey, Bill Elwood, Jay DeAngelis, Tom Geary and goalie Bob Hetney.

The Wilson family and friends were happy with the outcome of the evening as the game produced enough money to continue the Wilson scholarship.

Special thanks go to comptroller Ed O'Riordan, treasurer Charles Watt, co-chairmen Ted Milller and Bill Lewis, referees Paul Hussey and Charles Chambers and refreshment chairman Paul Bausmer. Quincy Youth Arena board chairman Tom Benson and rink manager Beverly Reinhardt also contributed to the success by donating the ice surface for both games.

Donations are still being accepted in Dick Wilson's name and can be sent to Quincy Youth Hockey Association scholarship chairman Lorraine Rooney, 62 Murphy Memorial Drive, Quincy 02169.

MSPCA Honors Morrissey For Contributions To Animals

Rep. Michael Morrissey received a public service award yesterday (Wednesday) from the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The MSPCA saluted both human and animal heroes during its 120th anniversary celebration and humane awards ceremony at the Westin Hotel, Copley Place, Boston.

Prior to becoming chairman of the Committee on Public Safety, Morrissey served as house chairman of the Committee on Counties, where he worked with the MSPCA and other organizations to recodify laws pertaining to animal control.

Morrissey also co-sponsored a bill, recently signed into law, that will help fight pet overpopulation by requiring mandatory sterilization of shelter animals, according to the MSPCA.

This year, he is leading an effort to secure passage of a bill that would prohibit the carrying of animals unsecured or unrestrained in pick-up trucks.

$22 Million Project At Remick's-Lerner's

(cont'd from Page 1)

there will be a pedestrian footbridge from the Ross Parking Garage.

Three elevators will transport customers to the different floors.

Kenealy said the project is being developed by A&S Development Co. of Quincy whose work has included such local projects as Shawmut Bank Building and Adams Office Park.

A restaurant is also planned, he said.

"We don't anticipate a problem renting it," said Kenealy. "We see a great future for Quincy Center. There is a strong demand for space.

"I think you'll see $100 million in new construction and rehabilitation of property including Hancock Plaza in Quincy Center over the next two years.

"Quincy Center is not going to be the way it was.

"But I think you'll see a different Quincy Center - healthy and vibrant."

You'll Soon Be Able To Pump Your Own Gas

If you like to pump your own gasoline, you'll soon be able to do it in Quincy.

The City Council voted 7 to 2 Monday night to allow stations in Quincy to have self serve islands as long as they also offer full service from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Councillors Stephen McGrath and Charles Phelan voted against the proposal made by the mayor. It was amended by Councillor Michael Cheney and other councillors.

The Board of License Commissioners will issue permits for such stations. The board set the cost Tuesday at $250 a year, in addition to stations' other fees for gasoline storage and repair of vehicles.

Stations will be required to post signs at least 80 square inches high at self service pumps that vehicles bearing handicapped or disabled veteran number plates may be served at the self serve pump by an attendant on duty.

Prior to issuance of any license, the applicant must provide the License Board with proof that all property owners within 300 feet of the applicant's property have received at least seven days notice of the application.

No food is to be sold at such stations.

The Ordinance Committee had given a favorable recommendation on the proposal.

But McGrath said that 9 p.m. was early in the evening for stations to go to self serve.

He proposed that it be moved back to 11 p.m., and Phelan seconded his motion.

The amendment failed 7 to 2, and the hours for full service remained at 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Concerns Raised Over Police Protection

Ward Stephen McGrath.

"It's our responsibility to continue to monitor continued progress or lack thereof of walking beats.

"Maybe we can free up some funds."

Quinn said, "I'm here not to beg. I came as head of the police betterment association.

" I think we deserve better.

"The public is going to get the zero end of the deal.

" I hope something of a progressive nature can be done."

Committee chairman Charles Phelan said he would like to work with the chief if he wants to submit a supplemental budget.

"Maybe we can put pressure on the mayor to seriously take a look at this."

Safety, Surface Improvements Underway At Furnace Brook Parkway

Parkway maintenance is underway on Furnace Brook Parkway in Quincy as part of the Metropolitan District Commission's annual resurfacing contract.

"This is one of the largest resurfacing projects in the MDC district," said Sen. Paul Harold.

"It's part of a $2.5 million Rehabilitation of Parkways Bond Issue that was approved last year by the state legislature," said Harold.

Construction crews have begun to restrict portions of the eastbound side of the parkway at the Willard St.-Rte. 3 rotary intersection to make the appropriate safety and surface improvements.

Maintenance work on Furnace Brook Parkway will begin at Willard St. and continue to the Quincy Shore Drive intersection.

Work will be conducted from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. weekdays and will take approximately one month to complete. Construction work will be broken up into phases along the Parkway with crews beginning improvements to portions of the eastbound side of the parkway.

Identical construction work will then be conducted to the westbound side and proceed to Quincy Shore Drive.

MetroPolice officers will be strategically stationed along the construction area to move traffic through the vicinity of construction and to assist motorists.

Parkway maintenance work includes removing the existing road surface, resurface the road with a new pavement, reset and replace the curb stones, adjust the manholes and catch basins, upgrade the traffic signals and paint permanent pavement markings.

Road maintenance to Furnace Brook Parkway is being conducted by Irvmount Bituminous Products of Everett.

The improvements to Furnace Brook Parkway are part of the MDC's $2.5 million resurfacing program to rehabilitate the parkways within the metropolitan area.

For additional information on this rehabilitation program, contact the MetroParkways Hotline at 727-5208.

Free Skin Cancer Clinic At Quincy Hospital

Quincy City Hospital will sponsor a free skin cancer detection clinic Thursdays, May 12 and 19, 5 to 7:30 p.m. in the Ambulatory Care Department of the hospital, 114 Whitwell St.

Five staff dermatologists, medical doctors who specialize in the care of the skin, will conduct the clinic.

Early detection is crucial in the treatment of skin cancer, according to George Blumenthal, M.D., director of the Division of Dermatology at Quincy City Hospital.

The clinic will provide the evaluation which can prevent more serious problems, he said. Most types of skin cancer are curable, Blumenthal said.

Anyone who has a sore that does not heal, a "wart" or suspicious lesion or mole that changes shape or color, or an unusual skin growth, should plan to attend this clinic, or consult his or her personal physician for evaluation.

Those in need of further evaluation and treatment will be so advised. Experience has shown that the majority of participants are found to have no serious skin lesions, according to QCH. They can be reassured of the benign nature of their condition, and instructed as to proper care of their skin to avoid future problems with sun exposure.

While the Skin Cancer Detection Clinic is a free service, an appointment is necessary.

For additional information, or to register for either of the sessions of the clinic, contact the Office of Community Relations at 773-6100, ext. 4016, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

DeCristofaro Commends Drugs Committee

Ward 2 City Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro has commended the Committee for Substance Free Middle Schools, as well as the students and faculty who recently contributed to a drug awareness effort.

"I witnessed something very special last week -- Quincy Middle School students playing basketball with the Boston Patriots -- with the theme of "Shoot Baskets, Not Needles," said DeCristofaro.

"This was an outstanding event; there was excitement in the air. On Thursday evening, April 28, the gym of the Vo-Tech School in Quincy was jam-packed with onlookers, parents, students, school administrators and faculty. The evening was arranged by the Committee for Substance Free Middle Schools which is made up of dedicated Middle School personnel.

"I have to publicly commend this committee and the students and faculty who contributed to this drug awareness effort. Saying "NO" to drugs in Middle School is vitally important -- as is saying "NO" to drugs beyond middle school," he said.

"I would also like to say thanks to the members of the Patriot's team who participated in this special awareness program. Saying "NO" to drugs is the "IN" thing to do -- the fashionable thing to do in the 1980's. These youngsters are being shown in a positive way how to be the best they can be.

"It is very heartwarming to see so many people working together in such an enthusiastic manner not only to keep our students drug-free, but ensuring that they are very proud to be drug-free and enjoying clean-cut lives striving to be the very best they can be.

"This is education at it's finest," DeCristofaro said.

Lincoln Hancock Parent-Teacher Council To Meet May 12

Refreshments will be served. All parents are encouraged to attend.

Public Hearing On Walkway Over T-Line

The Quincy Planning Department was scheduled to hold a public hearing last night (Wednesday) at 6:30 p.m. on its plans to construct a pedestrian crossing and walkway across Burgin Parkway and the MBTA Red Line, according to Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien.

The meeting was to be held in the second floor conference room of City Hall Annex.

According to Chretien, the city intends to submit an application to the State Office of Transportation for a $240,000 grant to construct the crossing-walkway.

The crossing-walkway, which is expected to facilitate commerce downtown, would replace the footbridge removed due to the Burgin Parkway extension construction, he said.

In order to receive the $240,000 in state money, the city is committed to spending $60,000 of its own funds.

Councillor Chretien said, "Senior citizens at 125 Granite St., 25 School St. and 45 School St. have long been in favor of this crossway. Hopefully, their very reasonable wish will soon come true."

Chretien added, "This public hearing is required as part of the application process. Without state funds, the city cannot afford to pay for this project. Consequently, I strongly encourage anyone interested to attend the hearing."

Ward 3 residents may call Councillor Chretien at 472-1400 for information.

Steady Climb For 5 Years

Parking Tickets, Fines Soar

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The city has issued more parking tickets so far this fiscal year than in any of the past five years.

And if collections continue at the rate they have been coming in, that too will total more than in any time since the city has taken over the operation from Quincy District Court.

From fiscal 1983 until now, a total of 386,200 tickets have been issued.

Through March of this year, some $1,574,601 has been collected in fines.

According to Parking Clerk Robert F. Denvir, Jr., also Quincy's Purchasing Agent, some 71,500 parking tickets have been issued so far in the fiscal year which ends June 30.

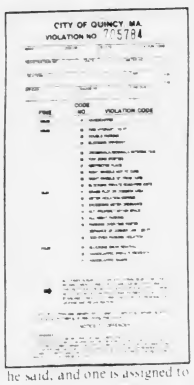
Through the end of March, the latest figures available, the city had collected $258,239 said Auditor Robert Foy.

The figures for the past five years according to both officials are:

- Fiscal 1987, 71,300 tickets, $330,986 collected.
- Fiscal 1986, 71,200 tickets, $283,670.
- Fiscal 1985, 62,700 tickets, $263,521.
- Fiscal 1984, 60,100 tickets, $213,105.
- Fiscal 1983, 49,400 tickets, $225,[illegible].

There are two reasons for the increase in tickets this year, according to Denvir.

One, he said, is that the Police Department began cracking down on parking violations after last November's early snowstorm during which city snowplowing efforts were hampered by on street parkers, he said.



The second is the return to full force of the city's four traffic control officers, (meter maids), under the General Services Division of the Quincy Police Department, Denvir said.

"There has been more of presence over the last six months than in the previous two years," he said.

The Police Department has requested an additional traffic control officer in next year's budget, Denvir noted.

Three of the traffic control officers cover Quincy Square, he said, and one is assigned to

2 Wollaston Stores Told To Clean Litter

In an effort to keep Wollaston clean the License Board called in two Wollaston area businesses telling them to spruce up their property.

Cumberland Farms, 610 Hancock St., and Christy's Market, 721 Hancock St., appeared before the board Tuesday and were told they must clean up the trash outside their stores daily.

Both stores will be monitored for one month by board members and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan. If the problem persists they will be called before the board on June 14.

Robert McGrath, manager of Cumberland Farms said the clean up company he contracted for outside did not fulfill its obligation.

Salvatore Trifiro of Christy's Market said because of the employment problem there is only one person on duty at the store making it difficult for them to go outside and clean.

McGrath and Trifiro agreed that the trash outside their property should be cleaned up. They said they will make sure something is done about the problem right away.

Nearly 40% Complete

Crown Colony Place Seen 'Premier' Office Park In State

Crown Colony Place in West Quincy, which the city's planning director predicts will be the premier office park in the state, is about 35 to 40 percent completed.

"It's going to be a first class office park," said Planning Director Richard Meade of the 175-acre site which is expected to be completed in five to seven years and to have a first class hotel.

"It's one of the hottest developments in the city," he said of the former location of Old Colony Crushed Stone.

Permits have been issued by the Building Department for six buildings, and four are at various stages of construction, Meade said.

The 36,123 sq. ft. Bay State Milling Co. building at 1 Congress St. is just about completed, according to Meade.

Other structures include a 125,000 sq. ft., five-story office building at 300 Congress St.; 123,000 sq. ft., six-story office building at 400 Crown Colony Dr., which are nearing completion; and a 60,000 sq. ft., three-story medical office building which is 75 percent complete.

Permits have also been issued for a 132,000 sq. ft. office building with 26,400 sq. ft. parking garage at 1100 Crown Colony Drive, and 230,000 sq. ft., six-story office building at 1200 Crown Colony Drive, scheduled to house Aetna Insurance.

The Patriot Ledger plants to move to the office park.

The Crown Colony property was purchased by Vazza Associates and Edward A. Fish Associates, both of Braintree, from the Musaad Al-Saleh family of Kuwait for a reported $28 million in January, according to Meade. Vazza and Fish own 80 percent of the land and 90 percent of the total building area, Meade explained.

The Kuwait family had purchased the land from Old Colony Crushed Stone in 1982, he said.

Subdivision plans were approved by the city in 1983, he said, and the Planning Board and City Council approved a hotel use on the property a short time later.

Construction of two new roadways, Crown Colony Drive and Congress St., was completed in 1985, according to Meade, and the first building permit was issued in 1986.

Three retention ponds have also been constructed to bring drainage from the expressway to conduits and then to Town Brook, said Meade.

"Flooding problems in the area have ceased," he said.

Noise from the crushed stone company and truck traffic have also been eliminated, according to Meade.

"I anticipate there will be little traffic through the neighborhood as a result of the project," Meade said.

A big plus for the office park is its accessibility, he said. It is located by the Quincy Adams MBTA station, which will have shuttle buses to the project, and by Rtes. 93 and 95, according to Meade.

The marketing outlet for the buildings is bright, said Meade, especially with the expected traffic disruption in Boston due to construction of the third harbor tunnel.

He said he anticipates occupancy will begin this summer.

Meade said he will continue to work with developers to encourage a 300-350 unit hotel and conference center in the office park.

"There's a tremendous market for it," he said.

In addition to Quincy zoning regulations, Crown Colony Place has its own internal covenant regarding parking requirements and setbacks, noted Mead.

"They want to do it right," he said.

$20,000 Starting Pay For Teachers Gets Committee Approval

In a very brief meeting Monday night, the City Council's Ordinance Committee voted to recommend acceptance of a state law setting the minimum salary for teachers in Quincy at $20,000.

The acceptance must be approved by the City Council to become official.

According to Ordinance Committee Chairman Michael Cheney, starting salary for teachers in Quincy is currently $18,000.

He noted that funding for the salary increase is provided through the state law, Chapter 71, MGL, Section 40.

"It won't cost the taxpayers a nickel," he said.

Councillor Timothy Cahill commented, "It's about time we got teachers up to a decent level."

McCauley Proposes Excise Tax On Hotel-Motel Rooms

Mayor Francis McCauley says he will propose an ordinance at Monday night's City Council meeting which would impose a four percent excise tax on hotel or motel rooms rented in the city.

"Many other communities have done this," said McCauley.

"The time is now to get this in place."

According to McCauley, a new state law allows this option to communities.

Figures from the Assessor's Department showed that the city could have raised $??,000 with such [illegible] 1987.

McCauley said.

He noted that developers of such Quincy projects as Marina Bay and Crown Colony have proposed hotels.

"We have to do these things," said McCauley. "We have to get revenues where we can.

"Prop 2½ has really got us tight.

"If there is something out there that is legitimate, we should do it.

"It's time for us to put this into effect," he said.

If approved by the council, the tax would go into effect immediately, McCauley said.

When told of the proposal, Loren Strout said that he had no comment as president of the Quincy Tourism Association.

But as owner of the President's City Motel, 845 Hancock St., he said that any added cost doesn't make motel owners happy.

Strout noted that there is already a five percent state tax.

"Quincy only has 160 rooms in its three motels," he said.

"We pay a substantial tax as it is."

THAT'S ALL FOLKS -- Only the front of the old Quincy Court House remained Tuesday morning. Demolition is to make way for the $55 million Presidents' Place project.

McGrath Urges UDAG Monies For Wollaston Fire Station Renovations

City Councillor Stephen McGrath has asked Mayor Francis McCauley to use UDAG monies to pay for renovations at the Wollaston Fire Station.

McGrath, chairman of the City Council Finance Committee, noted that under HUD regulations, renovation of the city facility would be a permitted use of the UDAG funds.

"As these funds are available, their use is preferable to any borrowing of funds to pay for needed repairs," he said.

McGrath noted that the Wollaston Fire Station, built in 1900, has not had upgradings as other fire stations have in the city.

"We are in the process of selecting a designer," said McCauley. "Then we will review the building upgrading of the Wollaston Fire Station."

McCauley Seeks 'Reasonable Cost' For Animal Shelter

Mayor Francis McCauley will meet today (Thursday) with Deputy DPW Commr. David Colton and Building Inspector Mathias Mulvey to discuss the latest plans for a new animal shelter.

The city had planned to build a new shelter on Broad St. at the site of the old pound.

But bids came in higher than expected.

"Something has to be done (to replace the pound)," said McCauley.

"But we want to do it at a reasonable cost."

Last week, Mulvey proposed constructing the shelter out of wood to reduce the cost.

Colton has been investigating the city place its stray animals with private kennels.

He has also been looking at shelters in other communities, the mayor said.

The city had planned to spend $450,000 to $500,000 for a new shelter, but bids came in at $818,000, $875,000 and $887,000.

A 30-day extension has been obtained on the bids which were good until May 12, McCauley said.

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Observations . . .

Observations:

Any pedestrian who can safely scramble across the intersection of Burgin Parkway and Granite St. should be able to qualify for the Olympic in track and field.

And maybe win at least a bronze medal.

It's got to be the wildest intersection in town.

Late one recent afternoon an elderly man had the guts to try to cross there with the lights in his favor.

But before he could get halfway across -- Zoom! Zoom! Zoom! -- cars coming at him in every direction.

He managed to make it to the safety island where he stood frozen and frightened while cars sped around him, like high speed sharks around a tropical island.

It looked like someone might have to send in a helicopter to scoop him off the island.

I haven't been back that way to check because it's a zoo for motorists, too. He might still be there.

It's too bad that when the Burgin Parkway Extension was being planned that someone didn't think to make the parkway an underpass or Granite St. an underpass at that point.

The Quincy Planning Department wants to build a pedestrian crossing and walkway across Burgin Parkway and the MBTA Red Line tracks.

CHRETIEN

Build it!

Councillor Larry Chretien says the city intends to submit an application to the State Office of Transportation to construct the crossing and walkway.

Submit it!

But before the city can receive the $240,000 in state funds the city must spend $60,000 of its own money.

Spend it!

That will help the pedestrians.

Then maybe they could do something about the synchronization of the lights before an epidemic of nervous breakdowns breaks out among the non-speeding, non-daredevil drivers who suddenly find themselves on what is beginning to look like the Indianapolis Speedway on Memorial Day.

I DON'T GO looking for bumper stickers. But for a guy who seems to have the Democratic Presidential nomination pretty much wrapped up, there seems to be a scarcity of Mike Dukakis bumper stickers around town.

I've seen more Steve Tobin bumper stickers.

WELL, THAT BROKEN glass is still covering those two parking spaces in the Hancock Parking area.

Guess it doesn't bother Kinney Systems or City Hall.

Maybe it's the same theory as that about snow. Let the sun melt it and it will go away by itself.

In this case as cars pull into and leave the two spaces they'll take a little of the glass away each day -- in their tires.

HOW COME MOTORCYCLES can make all the noise they want but if you ride around with a pin hole in your car muffler, you could get hauled in to court by the Registry for having faulty equipment?

WHY AREN'T SKATEBOARDS outlawed? They're the biggest pain to society since the boom box. Dangerous as they are jockeyed through and around traffic on streets, weaving through pedestrians on the sidewalks and when being used for jumping stunts. And why do all of us have to listen to a blaring boom box because someone thinks noise is music and insists everyone hear it?

WONDER WHY THE Quincy District Court directional sign on Hancock St. in Quincy Sq. is more prominent -- or seems so -- than the one for Quincy City Hospital at Hancock and Granite Sts. Maybe its because the hospital sign is partially hidden by a traffic lights post. Or does it mean more people go to court than to the hospital?

Father Bill's Place To Be Dedicated June 26

Father Bill's Place, a 45 bed shelter for the homeless at the former Registry Building on Broad St. will be dedicated June 26.

A worship service will be held at United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) 1306 Hancock St. at 2:30 p.m. the day of the dedication.

Following the service, about 200 to 300 people are expected to walk from the church down Coddington St. across Southern Artery and down Broad St. to the shelter for the ribbon cutting ceremony beginning at 4 p.m.

Sen. Paul Harold will be the main speaker at the dedication ribbon cutting ceremony.

Developer Richard Buechert of Quincy, was the general contractor for the project. Buechert, head of R.E.B. Management Inc., worked with architect Arnold Jacobson, who also volunteered his services.

In addition members of trade unions affiliated with the Quincy and South Shore Building and Construction Trades Council gave their time during evenings and weekends.

The move by the Registry of Motor Vehicles to the Quincy Fair mini-mall in January cleared the way for the Sheltering Coalition to begin the $300,000 conversion of the building.

Operating money for the Shelter will come from contributions and some state grants.

The facility will replace the temporary homeless shelters in two Quincy churches and serve the South Shore.

The city's first permanent shelter for the homeless is named for Rev. William R. McCarthy, a former president of the coalition and long time advocate for the homeless on the South shore. He has been pastor of St. John the Baptist Church for 11 years.

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition has moved from several temporary quarters, including the Salvation Army facility, St. John's Church, Faxon House at the Quincy City Hospital, Wollaston Lutheran and Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Donations are needed and may be sent to the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, P.O. Box 2512, Quincy, MA 02169.

Quincy High Students, Employers Meet At Fair

Several hundred Quincy High School students were able to investigate the job market at a job fair held in the school gymnasium recently.

The job fair was sponsored by Jobs for Bay State Graduates, a state and privately funded program offered at Quincy High School.

Students at the fair were able to sit down with representatives of a number of area businesses to discuss careers, part time and summer work, and job hunting strategies. In many cases, these discussions evolved into interviews, with a number of students being hired on the spot.

According to Stacey Brogioli, JBSG coordinator, a number of business persons praised the attitudes of the students. "They're serious about working," said one, "and they know how to present themselves to a prospective employer."

Among the businesses presenting at the job fair were the Boston Five Cent Savings Bank, Friendly's, First Mutual Insurance, McDonald's, The Patriot Ledger, Liberty Mutual, Filene's, Star Market, Putnam, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, and New England Telephone.

Parking Ticket Collections Soar In Last 5 Years

(Cont'd from Page 1)

North Quincy and Wollaston.

They hand out tickets ranging from $5 for such violations as expired meters, $10 for such things as double parking, $15 for blocking a ramp for the handicapped, and $50 for parking in a space reserved for the handicapped, according to Denvir.

Contrary to popular belief, they have no quota for giving out tickets, he noted.

Those who receive tickets are given 21 days to pay the fine, Denvir explained.

Within about 10 days, the ticket information is put into the city's computer which has been available to the Parking Clerk since last July.

"Without the computer, we wouldn't be able to process things like we do," said Denvir.

"In the old days, we had large books to record things in.

"Now we just punch them into the computer."

If the fine isn't paid within a reasonable amount of time, a notice is sent out from the city and the recipient may request a hearing before Denvir.

"In about 50 percent of the hearings, I agree that there were extenuating circumstances," he said, "such as a meter that was broken.

"In the other 50 percent, I find there is no valid reason to void the ticket.

"People attempt to justify why they do things. No one wants to admit they were wrong."

Denvir said he has almost no sympathy for people who park in spaces reserved for the handicapped, or who block a ramp for the handicapped.

"They all say they were only in there for a minute," said Denvir. "But it only takes a car 10 seconds to need that space."

The most abused space for the handicapped is on Hancock St. in Quincy Sq. near a donut shop, he said.

Denvir also has little sympathy for those who park in front of a hydrant.

"That's very dangerous," he said.

At times, the hearings get heated, according to Denvir.

"Do I get yelled at? You bet," he said.

"Do I yell back, of course I do."

Illegal parkers who ask for a hearing usually have an inbred toughness, Denvir added. There are usually no tears.

But there is sometimes laughter.

"An elderly lady got a ticket for parking on a sidewalk," said Denvir.

"It was only two wheels, sonny," she told Denvir at her hearing.

"She was so good that I voided the ticket."

Then there was the time a businessman paid fines totalling $500 in pennies.

But those kind of incidents are few and far between, he said.

The most common thing he is told at hearings is that the recipient can't afford to pay the fine.

"I tell them then they shouldn't have gotten the ticket," Denvir said.

Those who don't respond to the city's notice are then vulnerable to having their license or registration put up at the registry for nonrenewal for non-payment of tickets.

According to Denvir, most of those who receive tickets in Quincy Sq. work there.

And yes, complaints do go up when there is a full moon, he said.

"At first, I used to joke about it. But now it's true."

A Houghs Neck resident, does Denvir ever receive any parking tickets?

Only rarely, he answered.

"I don't park illegally, if only out of fear of ridicule," Denvir said.

"But if I do get a ticket, I pay it just like everyone else."

First Italian Restaurant Opens

May 12-18 1918 70 Years Ago

The Bella Napoli, believed to be the first restaurant in Quincy specializing in Italian food, opened on Chestnut St. with Phillip Zona, the owner himself, serving the delicacies to some of the city's top politicians.

Sampling the dishes were Mayor Joseph L. Whiton and his secretary, Jimmy Burke; City Council President Alfred H. Richards; and Councillors William A. Bradford, Thomas Griffin, Charles A. Ross, Alexander W. Russell and Russell A. Sears.

They were served, an observer reported, "large platters heaped full of steaming hot spaghetti and the way that spaghetti disappeared, by the yard as one guest said, convinced the host that his cooks had not failed him."

'Enchantment Of Christmas' Selected As Parade Theme

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee theme contest for this year's annual Christmas Parade drew 225 entries, the greatest number of responses ever, according to George White, general chairman.

Mrs. Frances Flynn, committee float coordinator, said "This year's theme contest response far exceeded our expectations. Even though this makes the process of selecting the winner more difficult, the knowledge of the public interest makes it very worthwhile."

This year's theme winner is Jane E. Teevans, 10 Duggan Lane, Milton. The winning entry is entitled "The Enchantment of Christmas." She will be invited to participate in the parade.

The theme selected offers participating organizations building a float latitude and flexibility in complying with the parade theme.

The best overall float is awarded a $1,000 cash prize and the Father Thomas Tierney Trophy, second place is $500, third place $300 and fourth place, $200. The floats are judged on how creative they appear in meeting the parade theme criteria.

Organizations will be notified of the theme and parade entry forms for this year's participation will be mailed shortly.

Mrs. Flynn requests that organizations return these completed forms as soon as possible. The past two years, a waiting list had to be established for float participation.
